THOUSANDS PAY FINAL TRIBUTES

Ethel, Jackie Join Vigil

NEW YORK (AP) — By the tens of thousands, the young and old, the wealthy and the poor filed past the body of Robert F. Kennedy as it lay in state today in towering St. Patrick's Catholic Cathedral.

The widow, Ethel Kennedy, and three of her children came at noon, after attending private services with other members of the Kennedy family at the Holy Family Church a few blocks away.

They sat in quiet vigil for a while, then approached the coffin.

Mrs. Kennedy paused momentarily, gently touched the smooth, reddish surface, and left.

Mrs. John F. Kennedy, widow of President John F. Kennedy, arrived several minutes later.

Dressed starkly in black, her face almost covered by a black lace mantilla, she kneeled alone in prayer in a pew.

Outside, the lines stretched 18 blocks six abreast, meandering among the skyscrapers of mid-town Manhattan in 90-degree heat.

There were girls in mini-skirts, elderly ladies in print dresses, men in work clothes standing next to well-groomed men in double breasted suits.

There were whites, Negroes, Puerto Ricans and the tongues of many lands were heard among them, talking quietly of the man who had hoped to lead the nation as its president—as his assassinated brother had done.

Police estimated that in the first six hours, some 36,000 persons had passed the coffin.

Family, friends and associates stood vigil over the body of the fallen senator.

Church officials said that because of the size of the crowd the church would remain open all night if necessary.

A crowd of about 1,000 persons, many of them teen-agers, was waiting in the grey dawn light when the massive doors to the old cathedral swung open at 5:41 a.m. Some had been waiting through the night.

In solemn and somber mood they filed by the dark redwood closed coffin in final tribute to the 42-year-old Democratic senator who had aspired to be the second of his family to occupy the White House.

Many in the line were Negroes. There were also a number of nuns.

Some of the mourners, particularly women, kissed the coffin and ran their fingers slowly across its polished surface as though reluctant to say a final farewell.

A candle burned at each corner of the catafalque as friends and relatives of the Kennedy family began a constant vigil, four at a time in half-hour shifts, around the bier.

In the early hours of the night Senator Edward M. Kennedy, the sole surviving son of four in his family, had kept watch over his brother whose life was taken, as was the late President John F. Kennedy's, by an assassin's bullet.

For a half-hour one of the guards was Bobby Kennedy Jr., 14-year-old second son of the late senator, who kept both hands on his father's coffin throughout the vigil.

Mothers with babies in their arms, school children, blind men, others on crutches, students and a large number of old persons, many weeping openly, filed past the closed coffin on its catafalque flanked by six yellow candles.

The cathedral, a New York landmark for 80 years, was closed to the public at 7 p.m. Thursday, while workmen on scaffolding prepared the great nave for Roman Catholic funeral services scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday.

Then Robert Kennedy's body will be taken by train to Washington, for burial at Arlington National Cemetery, where his brother, the late president, rests beneath an eternal flame.

Robert Kennedy was shot down early Wednesday as he celebrated his California presidential primary victory at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles.

He died in Good Samaritan Hospital there at 4:44 a.m. Thursday.

ANGRY REPLY TO BOOS

Separatists Peddling Hate That Killed RFK: Trudeau

Special to The Times

ROUYN, Que. — An angry Prime Minister Trudeau told booing separatists Thursday night they were peddling the type of hate that killed Senator Robert Kennedy.

He tore into a group of youngsters who tried to drown him out when he was having mike trouble at a rally here.

Mr. Trudeau told them they should be ashamed of themselves, particularly of their actions on the day that Kennedy died — a man who had fought for the underprivileged and poor.

It was a noisy meeting — but the crowd was with Mr. Trudeau.

He was cheered and applauded as he took his one-Canada message into rural Quebec, into the Creditiste stronghold.

Hard Day

The youngsters cheered and the adults applauded as he drove home his plea for a united and just Canada.

He drew good crowds in a hard day's campaigning in northern Ontario and Quebec, and the wind-up rally here attracted a crowd of about 3,000.

Mr. Trudeau had troubles with the mike when he started to speak.

When he tried to talk without one, he was drowned out by the boos of the group of about 20 youngsters near the stage, and by the cheers of his supporters in opposition to the booers.

A youngster shouted — "Vive Quebec Libre."

The prime minister shot back — "Vive Le Canada Libre."

He told the separatists that there would be "no free

E. KENNEDY-HUMPHREY VOTE TICKET URGED

WASHINGTON (AP)—Representative Clarence D. Long (Dem., Md.), has urged Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey to invite Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts to be his running mate on the national Democratic ticket.

Edward Kennedy is the brother of Robert, slain by an assassin this week, and former president, John, killed in 1963.

Long proposed the political alliance in a telegram to the vice-president, saying:

"It is virtually certain that you will be the Democrats' choice for the presidency."

Long, an early supporter of Humphrey, said Kennedy's "partnership with you in the coming presidential campaign would strengthen the unity of the Democrats and give us the strongest possible ticket with which to win victory in November."

Hydro to Build Rail Line Connecting Roberts Bank

By BRUCE YEMEN

A provincial cabinet order Thursday handed to B.C. Hydro the $8,000,000 job of building the access railway to the Roberts Bank superport.

The project will start almost immediately and will involve about 27 miles of new trackage in the Fraser Valley.

It will link the proposed bulk-loading port south of Vancouver with virtually every major railway in the U.S. and Canada, giving it potential to serve as a Pacific gateway for a vast hinterland.

A network of rail, road, pipeline and high tension facilities will be needed to serve the superport. Tenders for the first stage of the $10,000,000 port facilities have already been called by the National Harbors Board.

The port, must be ready by the spring of 1970 to fulfil terms of a $650,000,000 deal to ship Fernie coal to Japan.

John Southworth, executive secretary of the B.C. Harbors Board, said Hydro construction of the rail link had been accepted by Canadian National, Canadian Pacific and Great Northern Railways.

Hydro will also built a truck route parallel to the rail line to form a service corridor but pipelines and overhead high tension lines may follow another route, he indicated.

The rail link is needed by late 1969. It will form a loop on a 50-acre island on which Kaiser Steel will build coal handling facilities for its 15-year coal deal with Japanese interests.

One 10,000-ton trainload of coal per day will unload at the site without stopping.

Harbors board chairman Robert Bonner said the rail route will cause a minimum of interference with agricultural land in the area.

Soil testing and other preparatory work will begin June 15, Commercial Transport Minister Frank Richter said.

FAMILY MAN THEME HITS HOME

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Bureau

MATANE, Que. — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield gave his crash-course French a work out on a campaign tour through Quebec's lower St. Lawrence and Gaspe region Thursday.

Conservative supporters gave him a friendly reception at every stop but the generally sparse turnout proved, as it did during Prime Minister Trudeau's visit some 10 days earlier, that federal politics is not a major interest in the area.

The main, and last, event on the day's schedule was an appearance at a bean supper in this lumbering and fishing town.

BETTER SOCIETY

A crowd of 300 applauded Mr. Stanfield's call for the "great work of understanding" necessary to build a better society in a "country of great diversity."

The strongest applause was reserved for the PC leader's references to the local Conservative candidate, Julien Chouinard.

Mr. Chouinard, who is building his campaign on an attack on Prime Minister Trudeau's constitutional policies, and on proposed criminal code changes dealing with abortion and homosexuality, introduced his leader as "a good family man."

Mr. Stanfield's day in eastern Quebec began with a visit to Murray Bay, in Charlevoix riding where Conservative Martial Asselin is fighting to hold the seat for his party.

He drew a crowd of 200 to the airport, and another 500 lined the streets of the small resort community as he drove in a convertible to sign the golden book.

SEE, BE SEEN

At the airport, in the first of the day's series of brief speeches, Mr. Stanfield said his first impulse on learning of the death of Senator Robert Kennedy had been to call off his day's campaigning.

Murder Hearing Testimony Opens

BARRAGE OF ROCKETS SLAMS INTO SAIGON

SAIGON (CP)—Saigon took its worst Viet Cong bombardment of the last five weeks early today. The guerrillas slammed 16 rockets into the heart of the capital that killed at least 30 civilians, a South Vietnamese military spokesman said.

Hiding in rice paddies on the outskirts of the city, the Viet Cong hit a civilian hospital, a Roman Catholic Church, the International Control Commission headquarters and 11 civilian homes. The spokesman said 23 persons were injured.

The pre-dawn attack, fifth in five days, brought the total of civilians killed in rocket attacks on the capital in the first week of June to 51.

STUDENTS, AUTO MEN

Gas Breaks Up French Rioting

PARIS (CP) — Battling with tear gas against a shower of stones, riot police broke up a demonstration by thousands of striking auto workers and sympathetic University of Paris students today at the Renault auto plant at Flins.

A sharp, 20-minute battle ended with the students and strikers split into two groups and pushed right out of the village, 15 miles northwest of the capital.

One group sought refuge from the hail of gas grenades in a woods near Flins. The other retreated into fields across the highway.

Elsewhere the French strike wave was subsiding rapidly and Frenchmen turned their attention to politics and a televised interview with President de Gaulle tonight.

The Paris stock exchange opened after being closed for 16 days. French shares rallied after early hesitancy. Foreign stocks drew most attention, however, and some recorded gains up to 10 per cent early in the trading.

FLOW OF ORDERS

The flow of buying orders for the foreign stocks was attributed to a desire for a hedge against inflation.

The Renault plant at Flins was occupied by police early Thursday, and the sit-in strikers who had held it for weeks were expelled.

The fighting began after a demonstration in the main square of the village. More than 5,000 demonstrators marched on the plant in an attempt to retake it from about 2,000 riot police.

The demonstrators began hurling paving stones and the police replied with tear gas grenades. More than 10 persons from both sides were injured in the first clash.

FBI Finds Dimes

PATCHOGUE, N.Y. (AP) — More than $300,000 worth of dimes—part of a $500,000 shipment hijacked from a Railway Express Agency truck May 29 —was recovered Thursday night by FBI agents and Suffolk County police, the FBI said.

TOKYO (Reuters) — Left-wing students protesting the crash of a U.S. Air Force plane clashed with Japanese police in Tokyo, Kyoto, Kobe and outside a U.S. air base in southern Japan.

Security Heavy For Accused Man

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles county grand jury met today to hear 23 witnesses and consider a first-degree murder indictment against a young Jordanian in the assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, 24, was not present as the 22 grand jurors met. He is in jail under constant surveillance in a maximum security cell.

The jury also was asked to return indictments for assault with intent to commit murder in the wounding of five others in the burst of gunfire that killed Kennedy.

A conviction in the case would bring the death sentence but there have been no executions in the last 12 months in California since capital punishment was challenged as unconstitutional.

The California Supreme Court is expected to bring in a ruling shortly on two appeals which prompted a stay of execution for 75 in San Quentin's death row.

Meanwhile, Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty came under heavy criticism for releasing data alleged to be from the accused man's notebook. Legal authorities said publication of the material may prevent a fair trial.

Heading the presentation to jurors was District-Attorney Evelle J. Younger, who requested the indictment.

Younger said Sirhan would be arraigned within 48 hours in Superior Court, make a plea at that time or shortly after, with trial expected to begin within 60 days of arraignment.

Should the defence seek a change of venue, Younger said he would not oppose it.

The public defender's office is providing Sirhan legal advice.

The prisoner originally was held under $250,000 bond, but that was revoked by Superior Court Judge Joan Dempsey Klein after Kennedy's death.

Janet Out Of Hospital

REVELSTOKE (CP) — Janet Bitterman, 6, of Victoria, who survived when her parents and two sisters died Wednesday in a landslide on the Trans-Canada Highway, was released from hospital Thursday.

Meanwhile, highways department crews hoped to have a single lane cleared today through the debris, 19 miles west of here. The slide was about 3,000 feet long, 600 feet wide and between 15 and 20 feet deep.

Rev. Frank Funk, of Kelowna, a relative caring for the girl, said she has a few stitches in a cut hand and other minor cuts. He said it has not been determined who will look after the girl.

Killed when the slide hit their car 240 miles northeast of Vancouver were Ernst Bitterman, 42; his wife Annet, 24, and daughters Sandra, 2, and Terri, 4. The other daughter was thrown from the car.

THIRD-PARTY ROLE ONCE MORE

NDP Won't Be Winner, Douglas Freely Admits

By PETER NEWMAN

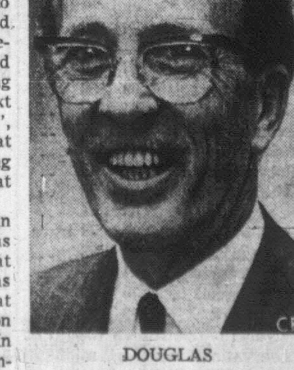
Newman

OTTAWA — The big difference between this and the three previous national campaigns Tommy Douglas has waged for the NDP is that he is publicly convinced his party can't win the election.

Having made that admission to himself, and having politely requested his introducers not to bring him on stage as "the next prime minister of Canada", Douglas is discovering that most audiences are paying much closer attention to what he's actually saying.

By maintaining the myth in previous contests that he was on the verge of a great breakthrough, Douglas was creating a credibility gap that colored his listeners' reaction to the rest of his appeal. In this election, the NDP campaign is being pitched at quite another, more meaningful level.

"In the past," says Cliff Scotton, the party's astute national organizer, "There has been a strong feeling that people were wasting their votes, if they weren't with the winner. The point we're trying to make with our slogan ('You'll win with more New Democrats in Ottawa') is that whatever the composition of the next Parliament, a stronger NDP contingent will have a leavening influence on any legislation that's brought in."



DOUGLAS
. . . small group

The NDP has always been the most open of Canada's political parties, quick to reveal the source and extent of its electoral funds (this time the party will spend about $1.25 millions collected largely through union check-offs.) But by publicly insisting that it could form the next government, its appeal lacked true conviction.

"We're not so much interested in which political party wins this election," says Menahem Dunsky, the young Montreal advertising agency owner who devised the new approach." What we're interested in is that the public win the election for a change, by voting for the candidates who'll fight hardest for the

YOUTH POWER ISSUE GOES TO COMMISSION

TORONTO (CP) — Political activists wearing yellow, pink and blue mini-skirted sundresses Thursday asked the royal commission on the status of women what it plans to do about student power.

Three girls and a man presented the brief for the Young Socialists — about 70 high school and university students who supported the New Democratic Party.

They said women are shaped to specific sex roles by an education that is controlled by a profit-oriented society.

"We demand student power — an end to big business control of the educational system."

Commissioner Lola Lange said it was the first time student power had come up since public hearings began in Victoria in April.

. . . VIGIL FOR KENNEDY

In Albany, Republican Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller's press secretary said the governor has given no thought as yet to the appointment of a successor to Robert Kennedy, whose term as senator was to have expired Dec. 31, 1970.

Flags across the U.S. flew at half-staff in memorial to Kennedy. And the presidential campaign in which he had played so active a part was temporarily interrupted out of respect for him.

The presidential jetliner that brought Kennedy's body east from California also bore three women consigned to widowhood by the stealthy marksmanship of assassins.

WIFE WAS COMPOSED

There were Robert Kennedy's wife, Ethel, mother of his 10 children, expecting an 11th. She had been with her husband when he was shot, was beside him when he died. She left the plane erect, seemingly composed, managing even a fleeting smile at one point.

There was Mrs. John F. Kennedy, reliving the nightmare of a winter's flight nearly five years ago from Dallas to Washington beside the coffin of her slain husband.

Finally, there was Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr., who made the flight to La Guardia Airport aboard the presidential 707 jet with the others. Less than two months ago Robert Kennedy had flown south to console her and to attend the funeral of her husband, shot down in Memphis, Tenn., by an assassin still at large.

The coffin was in the forward part of the plane and members of the family took turns keeping vigil beside it — all except Senator Edward Kennedy.

He refused to leave his post beside the body. About an hour from New York his head drooped and he slept.

But he took the coffin off the plane at La Guardia, assisted by Robert Kennedy's two eldest sons, Joseph, 15, and Robert Jr., 14.

CROWD AWAITS HEARSE

The body was born in a motorcade to St. Patrick's, where a crowd estimated by police at 8,500 waited outside in the street. Some had been there since mid-afternoon, and the hearse did not arrive until 9:49 p.m.

Inside the cathedral, waiting also, was Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, valiantly come to bid farewell to the third of the four sons she bore. Her first-born, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., was killed in action in the Second World War.

Poignantly absent was her husband, incapacitated by illness at the age of 79. He remained at the Kennedy compound at Hyannis Port, Mass.

With the rest of the Kennedy family inside for prayer services, the huge bronze doors of the cathedral were swung shut. Several hundred onlookers remained on Fifth Ave., however, magnetized by their brief, marginal encounter with the latest in a series of violent American tragedies.

The presidential jet with Kennedy's body left Los Angeles at 4:28 p.m. At 8:58 p.m. it landed at La Guardia, in deep purple dusk, beneath a nearly full moon.

From across the majestic breadth of the land he aspired to lead, Robert Kennedy had come home, home to New York, his adopted state, where he found political haven in the aftermath of the starkly tragic death of his brother Nov. 22, 1963.

. . . FAMILY

But he had decided to continue, he said, because he believed a leader's duty was to get out and "see and be seen by the people."

During the afternoon Mr. Stanfield made brief visits to Riviere-Du-Loup, Gaspe, Rimouski and Matane.

There was no major speech and no reference to the constitutional conflict between Quebec and Ottawa which has been a major campaign issue.

Speaking mainly in French, Mr. Stanfield concentrated on praising local candidates, attacking regional economic disparities and promising that a Conservative government would bring order into the economic affairs of the country.

From Matane Mr. Stanfield flew directly to Ottawa. He came to Quebec from the Maritimes where he had been campaigning earlier in the week.

. . . TRUDEAU

speech in your free Quebec."

And there were cheers when he accused them of acting like "tramps."

It was a heavy attack on the small band of hecklers — none of whom seemed out of their teens — but Mr. Trudeau has felt deeply the death of Kennedy.

In Sudbury Wednesday night, the prime minister had warned Canadians against listening to or tolerating preachers of hate, violence and disorder.

He was an aroused Trudeau, and, including problems with the sound system, he held the stage about 35 minutes instead of the planned 20.

The prime minister told the audience in Rouyn arena that the Liberals would not try to correct everything that had gone wrong in the past.

"Perhaps everybody has some mistakes in the past," he said.

"Perhaps the English were not always fair to the French, and perhaps the French were not always fair to the Jews, and perhaps the Jews were not always fair to somebody else.

"But that is the past," Mr. Trudeau told the people.

He quoted the late president John Kennedy as stating that "We will be just in our time."

Mr. Trudeau talked of the need for a strong, united Canada — and it was the first time he had delivered a one-nation statement directly in the heart of rural Quebec.

Slim Chance

The majority of his audience applauded in Rouyn — the hometown of Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, whom the Liberals have next to no chance of beating.

But they have hopes of winning in other ridings in the area where there has been strong Creditiste support.

If youngsters could vote, Trudeau's men would all make it. The prime minister showed that in rural Quebec he is able to turn on the younger people just as he is in other parts of Canada — although the adults are less demonstrative and obviously more questioning.

. . . HEARING

California law permits no bond in a murder case.

Younger said he planned an all-day session in the grand jury room to present testimony of 17 witnesses and the results of the autopsy on Kennedy's body.

In addition to the murder indictment, Younger said he would ask for separate indictments in the wounding of the others who were in Kennedy's vicinity at 12:17 a.m. PDT Wednesday at the Ambassador Hotel.

At that minute—with Kennedy joyous with the victory he had just scored in the California Democratic presidential primary—a tiny pellet of lead from a .22-calibre pistol smashed into the brain of the 42-year-old senator.

He died a little more than 25 hours later.

First details of Sirhan's imprisonment were disclosed Thursday by Sheriff Peter Pitchess.

Sirhan's cell is on the second floor of the county jail in an isolated wing. An unarmed deputy is constantly in the cell with him.

Another guard peers at all times into the cell through an unbreakable glass porthole in the steel door.

GUARD HALLWAY TOO

Flanking the corridor outside the cell, four other deputies remain alert.

Sirhan is in the medical section of the jail because he is under treatment for a broken index finger and a sprained ankle—injuries he suffered in his capture at the hotel. Sirhan has facial bruises as well from the arrest, Pitchess said.

Sirhan is under the care of Dr. Marcus Crahan, jail medical director and also a psychiatrist. Asked whether Sirhan underwent psychiatric examination, Pitchess said yes.

The accused man, he said, has behaved well and has not asked for any visits from his family. Sirhan refused to talk about the shooting.

"He says he is Christian, not a Moslem," said Pitchess.

Sirhan learned of Kennedy's death when he asked for and received Wednesday and Thursday copies of the morning Los Angeles Times and the evening Herald Examiner.

Sirhan also received at his request two philosophical books—The Secret Doctrine by H. P. Blavatsky, and Talks at the Feet of the Master.

But he has read little of either book, the sheriff said.

Within a mile or so of the jail, official activity was at fever pitch. Four news conferences were held at different times by the sheriff, district attorney, country coroner and Mayor Yorty.

RAISE OBJECTIONS

Younger told reporters the assassination was a great tragedy and would be a "greater tragedy . . . if successful prosecution of the person responsible for the terrible crime were jeopardized by statements prior to the trial commenting on evidentiary matters."

California Attorney-General Thomas C. Lynch, saying he was concerned "over giving out information that might prejudice a fair trial," said that U.S. Supreme Court and California Supreme Court decisions severely limit what public officials can say.

Yorty, a lawyer, declared the trial would not be affected because the public had seen so much more on television.

Police said Thursday afternoon they had issued an all-points bulletin for a white woman between 23 and 27 years old who was reported seen with Sirhan prior to the shooting. She was not named.

Inspector Peter Hagan added later, however, that the bulletin was only an informational one following a report from a young woman Kennedy campaign worker and was not for the purpose of arrest.

$100 Fine Imposed

Clair Milton, 4028 Granville, was fined $100 today for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Court was told he was the driver of a vehicle which struck a car parked on Esquimalt Road May 3 and failed to stop.

THREE BADLY MAULED BY BEAR AT JASPER

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Three men who encountered a young female grizzly bear on a bushy knoll in Jasper National Park Wednesday were in serious but improved condition in hospital today.

Leonard Jeck, a guide and outfitter from Jasper, and David L. Slutker, of Edmonton, were in hospital here. Steve rose, 43, owner of the Biltmore Art Galleries, at Pasadena, Calif., was in hospital at Hinton, 165 miles west of Edmonton.

Park Warden F. J. McGuire said he visited the men in Jasper Thursday and they appeared to "be coming on very well".

They had cuts and bruises and "looked like they had been through the mill".

U.K. LABOR LEFT WING

New Campaign Against Wilson

LONDON (Reuters) — Rebellious left-wing members of the British Labor party today published an eight-point charter designed to convert the party to full-blooded socialism.

The Socialist Charter, signed by 66 union leaders, members of Parliament and other prominent Laborites, is apparently intended as a rallying point for all left-wingers dissatisfied with government policy.

Its first demand is "to get out of the grip of international moneylenders," a clear reference to left-wing fears that Britain is under the control of its chief creditor, the International Monetary Fund.

Other aims include more public ownership of industry, redistribution of wealth through taxation and profit controls, and a new national economic plan.

On foreign policy, the charter states "our aims must be to end existing military alliances and concentrate on worldwide disarmament, the war against hunger and the achievement of peace through the United Nations."

The charter marks the start of a new campaign against Prime Minister Wilson's so-called "politics of consensus," which in the view of leftwingers has put the government at the mercy of foreign bankers, British businessmen and the U.S. government.

. . . NDP

things the people need and want — a lower cost of living, lower cost housing, a fair tax system, an equitable farm policy, lower drug prices, and so on."

Back Ideas

Dunsky, a Montrealer who got his advertising training on New York's Madison Avenue, is master-minding the NDP's publicity program, which is the most effective of the three national parties. With limited funds he is concocting a coordinated TV, radio, newspaper ad approach which hammers the theme that the individual can win this election by supporting the NDP, no matter who winds up in power after June 25.

The NDP is also getting an unexpected boost from Pierre Berton, the well-known author-broadcaster.

Originally an avid Trudeau booster, Berton has become disillusioned by the Liberal prime minister's approach to the poverty problem.

"It's neanderthal," Berton claims.

"What Trudeau doesn't seem to understand is that most people who are now on public welfare can't work anyway and those who can, are generally too old and disillusioned to be retrained.

Water Power

"He seems to think a means test is still an OK thing. He's willing, in effect, to subsidize the development of water power at Hamilton Falls, but, not apparently, to subsidize an investment in human beings.

"He appears totally lackadaisical about new and fairer methods of raising money—such as a capital gains tax, for example, and dismisses a guaranteed national income as something we can't afford."

Berton is donating his share of the cost of ten thousand copies of his book, the Smug Minority, which are to be distributed by the NDP, and plans to debate the volume's message with Douglas on television. He will be publicly supporting candidates in individual ridings who subscribe to his thesis.

Reflecting its new realistic approach, the NDP organizational effort is concentrated on the eighty ridings in which NDP candidates have a fighting chance.

TV Interest

The televising of the Conservative and Liberal leadership conventions has stimulated so much public interest in politics that it has brought out into the open a new breed of candidate, many of them willing to run for the NDP, even if they have to face disapproval (or worse) from their employers.

The party has twice as many academics among its candidates as the other two parties put together, and an increasing proportion of them are contemporary young progressives, not the doctrinaire hangovers from the Woodsworth and Coldwell eras.

Unfortunately for the NDP, many of its brightest candidates are running in seats that can not be won, while the retinue of old-time socialists who sat in the last Commons are, for the most part assured a safe return from the hustings.

While the party's potential is impressive, its parliamentary wing will probably be an only slightly modified version the anachronistic band that sat in the Commons the last time.

Still, the old assumption made about the CCF—that it could be the conscience of the country, without ever governing it—seems at last to be coming true.

CONSTANTINE INJURED

ROME (UPI) — King Constantine of Greece was "slightly injured" in an automobile accident while driving to his villa from Rome's Fiumicino Airport today, police reported.

Police said the king's car hit a cement kilometer marker on a curve several miles from the airport and left the road. They said he struck his head on the windshield, suffering bruises of the face.

Queen Anna-Marie, who was riding with him, was not injured.

Standing as One

ONE OF THE BASIC GOALS of the Liberal Party over the years has been to equalize the opportunities and prosperity of Canadians no matter in what part of Canada they live. That is a challenging endeavor in a country that covers half a continent of coast, mountains, prairies and lakelands; that embraces city, farm and wilderness populations; that is wondrously rich in mineral wealth in some areas, provides fertile growing soil in others; offers timber or fish or factory sites according to region; and whose transportation problems and climates vary as much from one part to another as does any aspect of the national mosaic.

Obviously there cannot be exact parity in all sections of such a sprawling, diversified land. But it is a mark of true nationality to seek to even out disparities and give Canadians a common basis for the development and enjoyment of our country. Few Canadians object to the principle of reasonable parity throughout the country, few complain about the financial arrangements that must support the practical effort. But here and there a voice of protest is raised from time to time — and it may be heard clearly in British Columbia's Social Credit government.

Protest takes the form of complaining that the province gives more money to the federal government than it receives from Ottawa. And the obvious fallacy, of course, is to consider British Columbia as a separate entity from Canada which must deal on a dollar-for-dollar basis with the foreign power in Ottawa.

Such a concept is ridiculous. Canadians inhabit British Columbia; they pay revenue to their national government to support the national business they wish to maintain. They receive in return defence and all the other services which a national government can render in social, financial, trade and other fields, and in dealings with other countries. For the purpose of answering critics it is possible to add up the credit and debit columns and show that the province does evenly in its dealings with the nation. But what is proved in the end? — only that Canadians have contributed to the functioning of Canada. Parochial accounting — the penny-in-penny-out book-keeping that attempts to create a phony financial wall between Pacific Coast Canadians and other Canadians — is a work of futility.

Equally unacceptable to Canadians would be an attempt to reject the sharing principle by which areas of Canada less well endowed by nature are provided with assistance from the more prosperous sections. Set out as a "major objective" of the next Liberal government is the undertaking to "reduce regional disparities" further, and improve the standard of living in areas where this is needed. And this will be done, not through mere provision of revenue, but through the much more effective method of helping such regions to develop their resources to best advantage and so achieve a permanent improvement.

Canada should build its unity internally as well as in the national form it presents to other countries. Election candidates who disagree with this concept of domestic sharing have missed the whole point of Canadianism.

Fumbling the Ball

THE RESIGNATION OF MR. Alan Clarke, executive director, from the Company of Young Canadians, emphasizes the difficulties besetting the CYC and may convey a message to young people outside that organization. The CYC is in trouble partly because its budget has been severely trimmed, partly because many of its leaders disagree on the approach they should take to problems within its jurisdiction and partly because a large section of the Canadian public — including two premiers — are disenchanted with its brief and controversial record.

Sympathetic older Canadians a year or two ago had shown a willingness to have the new generation tackle problems which seemed more approachable to the young than to the old. The attitude made sense if only for the reason that the young could be expected to understand the young, their aspirations and their attitudes, better than those whose years created a break in communication between the generations and, at best, left them with not much more than a hazy appreciation of the new outlook.

The activities of the CYC, however, led to sharp criticism and the request for removal of its workers from Alberta and Saskatchewan, on the grounds, as Premier Manning phrased it, that they "had done more harm than good." The implication in Mr. Manning's words —and their validity may be questioned on the basis of particular projects—is that the ball had been thrown to the CYC and the CYC did not know how to carry it.

The message, for those outside the CYC ranks but involved in protests and demonstrations by the young, is that mere protest is not enough and that remedies for social ills should provide something better than the conditions that are being protested.

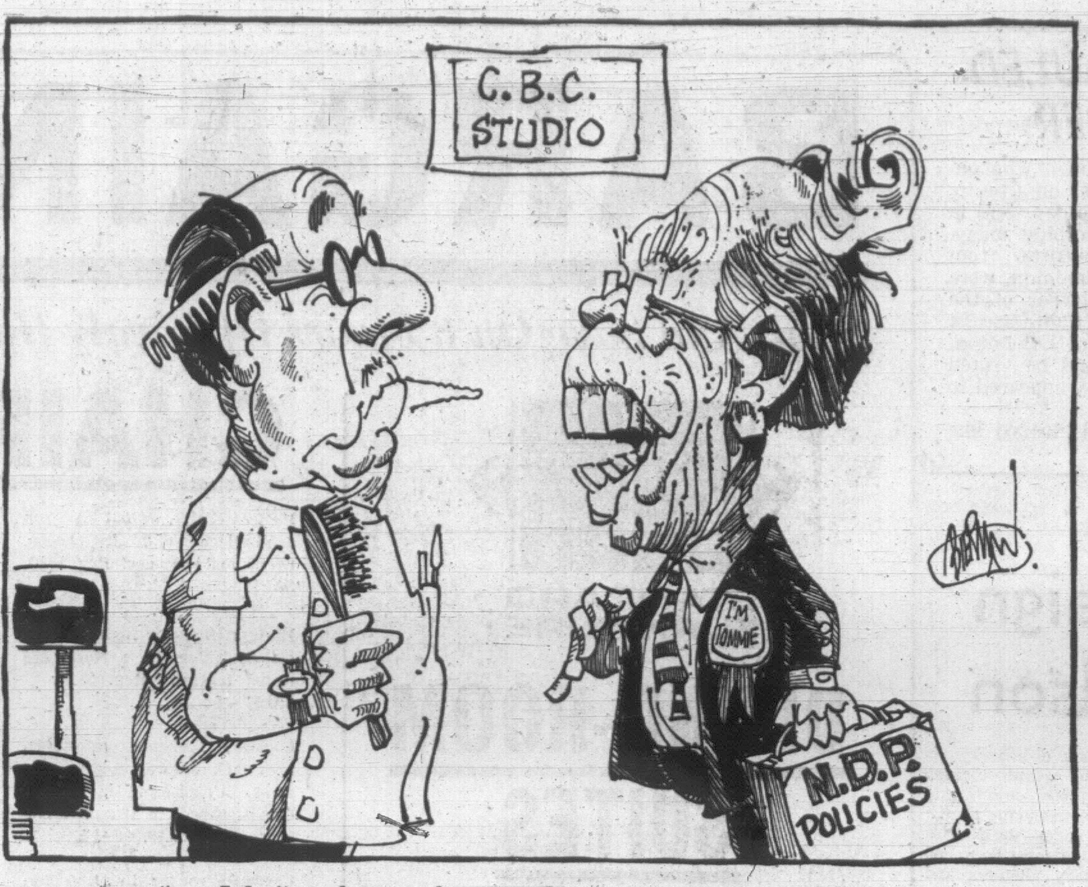
Unsafe on the Road

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA driving license of a Metchosin man has been cancelled for life; he has been ordered not to drive anywhere in Canada for three years and has been sentenced to three months in jail for dangerous driving and driving while his license was suspended. This is one of half a dozen cases of life-time suspension imposed in the province during the last year or so in an effort to rule off the road persons deemed to be a public menace when in control of a car.

The penalty is severe. It is the hope of the authorities that it will act as a deterrent for those who ignore safe and courteous driving practices to the danger of others.

How far that hope can be justified is questionable. Scarcely a day passes without someone being convicted in local court for driving under suspension. Moreover, British Columbia authorities accept as applicable here the findings of a California research team that about half those whose driving license suspensions run to more than a year ignore the suspension.

The sanction, nevertheless, is perhaps the heaviest that can be passed on a person considered unfit to drive on the highway. Short of lengthy imprisonment, is there any more effective way of keeping a dangerous driver from operating a car? And if reasons are needed for a severe penalty, consider this gruesome statistic: last year, in this province, 559 persons lost their lives in motor vehicle accidents. That calls for firm deterrence.



". . . I don't need any makeup . . . I make up everything myself . . ."

Desecration

New York Times

High on Kittatinny Ridge, in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, Sunfish Pond glistens crystal clear and blue in spring's warming sunshine. It is a 44-acre glacial lake set exquisitely amid pitch pine and hemlocks and a wide variety of oaks.

Hikers who scale the ridge and follow the Appalachian Trail can look down both on the pond and on the Delaware River which is more than a thousand feet below, flowing between Pennsylvania and New Jersey. It is now a little late for the trailing arbutus and a little early for the smooth mountain azalea, but there's an abundance of mountain laurel and rhododendron and, at the lower levels, white and pink dogwood.

In utter disregard of this beauty, the state of New Jersey several years ago sold Sunfish Pond and its watershed to a power company. Plans call for the erection of dams, the installation of pumps and, as a result, total desecration of this legacy from the glacial age.

Two bills to halt this needless folly have recently been introduced in New Jersey's Legislature, one in the Senate calling for a review of the sale and another in the Assembly demanding the pond's immediate repurchase. Conservation groups support repurchase and plan to pilgrimage to the pond this weekend.

To conservationists sponsoring the pilgrimage, the pond represents "rare and unspoiled beauty." To an increasingly urbanized population it must represent one of those disappearing reservoirs from which to draw strength, a place to go to find comfort in unspoiled nature. Sunfish Pond is a tiny but irreplaceable natural asset which, for that reason alone, deserves preserving.

Dry Grass Roots

Windsor Star

The grass roots, as happens in every election campaign, are getting a good going-over these days.

Nobody knows exactly who the grass roots are. Few ordinary citizens would admit that they're ordinary enough to be called grass roots. And no politician would take a chance on insulting a voter by referring to him as grass roots. All we know for sure is that the grass roots are people who suddenly get attention during campaigns.

It may well be that the campaigners are finding the grass roots a little unresponsive this time. The reason is clear: the grass roots are drying up because of a shortage of their natural source of moisture.

Settling the local beer strike is probably well beyond the province of any candidate in a federal election campaign. Still, politicians tend to take credit for things that they haven't accomplished entirely single-handed, so it's probably only fair that they get blamed for things they can't do anything about. And any candidate who could settle the beer strike would find the grass roots whispering back to him in gratitude.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

To Expiate a Hatred of Excellence

WATCHING from afar the last hours of Robert Kennedy — fearing, watching the death of hope, the fall of valor, savoring the bitter, enduring aftertaste of the ashes of burned-out anticipation — one remembers once more the antique epitaph:

"Go stranger, and in Lacedaemon tell
"That here, obedient to the laws, we fell."

Alsop

Simonides wrote the epitaph for the immortal three hundred Spartans, who fell to the last man at Thermopylae to prevent the Persian host from passing that rocky, sea-washed gate to Greece. The epitaph was chiselled on the common tomb of the three hundred, who thus spoke after death to travellers through the narrow pass above the sea.

Thrice in a lifetime, the coldly noble words have surged up suddenly, overwhelmingly, almost cruelly, from old-fashioned school days — when first in combat in Korea, watching the young dead being carried down a mountainside; again, when President Kennedy was taken from this country and the world; and once again, when for a little time one could pray that Simonides' lines would in the end prove inappropriate on this occasion.

But that is over now. And now there is at least one thing anyone who reads and thinks must know: This is a nation in gravest danger of the Furies' dire pursuit.

Dark Pursuit

From clammy fear, the Greeks called the Furies "The Eumenides," the "kindly ones." Thereby they feebly hoped to placate these terrible avengers who pursued the sinner until he had made fitting expiation, or had died in flight. What, then, are our sins, and why does this dark pursuit dog the footsteps of the nation?

Our sins are many, but two are now particularly relevant: tolerance of mindless violence, and hatred of excellence. The troubles in the cities, the assassinations by the Ku Kluxers, the book-burnings at Columbia, the gun clubs in the white suburbs — these are symptoms of a violence that is wholly self-defeating and therefore wholly mindless.

We have taken explanations for excuses for too long. So dwellers in the depths of madness, or unhappiness, or prejudice, or wretchedness have come to say: "I feel this way, and I am justified in doing that."

Nonetheless, the hatred of excellence is almost a more terrible ill. If it did not exist, if it did not work powerfully upon some of those among us, how else should we have lost, first John F. Kennedy, then that rarest of truly good men, Martin Luther King, and then Robert F. Kennedy? Think of all the seedy, sordid, even sinister second or third or fourth-raters who might have been hunted down instead.

For all their similarities in style and speech, no brothers were more different in some ways than John the President and Robert the Senator. Yet they were alike, above all, in an inner excellence. That was the striking thing, whether one always agreed with the one or was sometimes deeply worried by the other.

Inwardly Good

Despite those similarities of style, in truth, the surface was where the major differences lay. President John was like a splendid, rich-ripe apple, golden and full of gifts for all to see. Senator Robert was like one of the American desert's prickly pears, sometimes externally spiry and rebarbative enough, yet inwardly sweet and good and full of comfort for wanderers in the lonely places of our national life.

From old-fashioned schooldays, there also comes the memory of a story that seems applicable. In ancient Athens, the citizens in their assembly sometimes exercised the right to ostracize one of their number; and Aristides "The Just," hero of Marathon and Salamis, was one of those who were driven out of the city in this manner. Ostracism was ordered when a sufficient number of citizens scratched the victim's name on a piece of broken pot — an ostrakon.

When Aristides' time came, an unlettered Athenian approached him in the assembly, and offhandedly requested Aristides to scratch his own name on a proffered potsherd. Aristides quietly asked the reason, to which his fellow citizen replied that he knew nothing much about this Aristides, but he was "irritated by hearing him always called 'The Just'."

Perhaps this terrible anecdote, so human-comic at first glance and so blackly grim in its moral, may help to explain these mindless assaults on the most excellent among us. But we should now be far more interested in expiation than in explanation.

By What Sacrifice?

How, by what sacrifice, by which national rite, can we cause the Furies to break off their pursuit? By expelling from our midst injustice and discrimination, prejudice and hatred. That is the answer. That is what Robert Kennedy would have wished more than anything in the world.

Picking Up the NATO Bar Chits

AT a time when Pierre Elliott Trudeau and Robert Stanfield are both expressing concern for the taxpayer and promising a review of our NATO arrangements, there may be some interest in a late disclosure of the Ontario Liquor Control Board. In the last fiscal year the board granted discounts of $75,133 to members of NATO forces serving in Ontario. The advantage to the recipients amounted to two-thirds of the list price of imported liquor at government stores. They are allowed additionally to purchase one case a month, free of tax, from Canadian distillers.

Western

This pleasant arrangement results from an agreement with the government of Canada in the early 1950s. At that time, possibly in furtherance of the economic co-operation which was one of NATO's original objectives, a system of reciprocity in refunds was worked out by the various countries.

At first glance it may appear churlish to question this set-up. It is obviously an example of quiet diplomacy; everybody concerned has said as little about it as possible. It shows that NATO does work, when defence departments get down to essentials. It represents, for some, a considerable breach in barriers to trade. It will probably be approved by the NDP because it involves no humiliating means test.

Co-Operation

We should doubtless note too that the agreement is permeated by a splendid spirit of federal-provincial co-operation. There was a time when liquor was the subject of repeated squabbles, frequently ending in the Privy Council, between Ottawa and the provinces. Nowadays they work together, with the provinces helping the defence department and Ottawa maintaining in effect legislation which permits the liquor boards to interfere with interprovincial trade.

But, of course, there is another side to this picture, the taxpayer's side. Somebody is paying the shot. Somebody is making up in his contributions to the Just or Compassionate Society what the liquor boards are giving away. It may or may not be consolation to know that the French or American taxpayer is doing the same.

Out of a decent respect for the Ontario liquor board, whose officials have gone to the trouble of making these facts known under questioning, one must pose the central question. Are these subsidies really necessary for collective security?

It is arguable that something ought to be done to sustain the morale of a NATO officer serving abroad; that it would be unfair, almost inhuman, to expect a Scot to pay for the product of his native hills the price exacted by our provincial liquor commissions. But why the case a month from domestic distillers? What is the relation of this to our over-all collective defence strategy?

Complicated

Everyone knows that defence problems nowadays are extraordinarily complicated. It has been demonstrated over and over again that even the simplest matters are incomprehensible by the time they have been translated into defence department prose. Only a review would show whether the thinking behind intra-NATO booze arrangements is within the layman's understanding.

At least the taxpayer-consumer has further evidence that he is doing his bit. On sales of $112,699 the Ontario board was able to refund $75,133 and still return a profit to the government for its manifold good works.

Looking Back

From the Times, June 7, 1908.

Duncan — Work will commence at once upon the construction of steel bridges across the Nanaimo and Chemainus rivers and will be pushed to completion as speedily as possible. R. A. Bainbridge, divisional engineer, left for Chemainus today for the purpose of laying out the work at that point.

The bridge across the Cowichan at Duncan will not be replaced with a steel structure this year as the material for the structure won't arrive until Oct. 1.

Letters to the Editor

How Solicitous

The Canadian Press reported from Ottawa on June 4 that the government will recommend to Parliament that vending machine operators receive partial compensation for conversion of their equipment to accept new pure nickel coins.

Does this tender solicitude for vending machine operators extend to cigarette vending machines here which, for 50 cents, yield a package of smokes sold over the counter, retailing costs included, for from 45 to 47 cents?—"Nick O'Tine."

Unnecessary

The Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce has announced that an amateur rodeo will be one of the events of what they term their annual "Fun Day." Whether amateur or professional a rodeo means unnecessary abuse of animals and is distasteful to many people in this area as similar past events have clearly shown.

An all-Canadian election rally is to be held in conjunction with the various events and it is surprising that the prospective lawmakers should associate themselves with an exhibition that contravenes Section 387 of the Criminal Code of Canada which deals with cruelty to animals.

The rodeo is entirely unnecessary and so perhaps is a chamber of commerce for Central Saanich!—Florence G. Barr, 965 Trans-Canada.

The Public Pays

Mr. Tommy Douglas urges always more taxes on corporations, although he knows, and has admitted to me, corporation tax, like any other corporation expense, is paid for by the consumer. Corporations have no money other than that taken from the public.

Mr. Douglas urges implementation of a socialist dream, the Carter report, although he knows, as does any well informed person in or out of the Commons that to implement it would have disastrous effects on the economy and the people of Canada.

Fortunately Mr. Douglas and his followers will never have an opportunity to wreck Canada as the Socialists have wrecked Britain. — M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

America the Violent!

Not a 'Melting Pot' But Pressure Cooker

By RONALD G. COHEN

NEW YORK—"We are a violent people with a violent history, and the instinct for violence has seeped into the bloodstream of our national life," said Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., the Pultizer Prize winning historian and an aide to the late President John F. Kennedy.

Schlesinger, a close friend of Senator Robert Kennedy, spoke at commencement exercises for 48 doctoral graduates at the City University of New York a few hours before the senator died of his gunshot wounds.

He called the American people "the most frightening on this planet."

"We are a frightening people because we have already in this decade murdered the two of our citizens (President Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.) who stood pre-eminently before the world as the embodiments of American idealism—and because last night we tried to murder a third.

"We are a frightening people because the atrocities we commit trouble so little our official self-righteousness, our invincible conviction of our moral infallibility," Schlesinger said.

Primal Curse

"It is almost as if a primal curse has been fixed on our nation. We are a violent people with a violent history, and the instinct for violence has seeped into the bloodstream of our national life."

Dr. Arnold Freedman, chief of psychological services at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Pittsburgh, called violence "a reflection of our emphasis on competition as a way of life as opposed to co-operation—like two dogs who fight over a scrap of bread rather than share what they have.

"With the competitive urge you are bound to get agression and hostility," he added. "Competition is useful since it encourages us to produce, but this is at a cost of tearing people down."

A sociology professor from the University of Vermont, Dr. Jeremy Felt, said the senator's assassination was "entirely consistent with the violent history of America," adding that violence has been practically "institutionalized" in the nation through America's cowboy-and-Indian folklore.

Agreed

A U of V colleague, Dr. M. W. Perrine, a professor of psychology, agreed.

He traced the violent settling of grievances back to the days of the early west. So did Dr. Michael O. Sawyer, professor of criminal law at Syracuse University.

Dr. John Spiegel, director of Brandeis University's Lemberg Centre, blamed the assassination on the nation's "gun fetish."

He said there is an emotional addiction to use guns, "as strong as any other addiction, such as drugs." He said there was also an "emotional habituation to use violence in general, particularly through gunfire, in the resolution of conflicts."

His colleague at the centre, Dr. Ralph W. Conant, said that since the assassination of Lincoln in 1865, one fifth of America's presidents have been murdered and one-third have had attempts made on their lives.

These men all spoke in the flush of disbelief that swept the nation after the assassination attempt upon Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. They spoke in sorrow, but they spoke with reason and restraint.

They expressed the increasingly widespread belief that violence is not an occasional isolated tragedy, but is ingrained — perhaps irreversibly — in the fabric of American life.

Black Power advocate H. Rap Brown said it several months ago:

"Violence is as American as cherry pie."

Survey Reply

Psychologists, sociologists, educators, historians, clergymen replying to a survey seemed to agree.

And some statistics seemed to bear them out.

Last year in America, some 5,600 persons died of gunshot wounds. In Britain there were fewer than 30, in Belgium fewer than 12, in France fewer than 20, according to Sen. Joseph Tydings.

"It's insane," he said. "You talk about the good old pioneer days . . . but we don't live in the old pioneer days when everybody's a vigilante and you shoot them up.

"I think we've got to come to our senses."

Others agreed that the preoccupation with guns and violence might be almost an American phenomenon.

Dr. David Abrahamsen, a governor of the Lemberg Center at Brandeis, said Americans not only condone violence, "We love it."

"We love to fight. The frontier days made the gun manly," he said. "In France they can riot for three weeks and only two people get killed. Can you imagine how many would have been killed here?"

Abrahamson said America's stress on materialism breeds violence.

"We're not a melting pot, we're a damned pressure cooker. Our society is not built on the restraints of family or class, it's built on success. If you don't have it, you're frustrated.

"Frustration. The wet nurse of violence."

Several authorities said that television and other mass media must share the blame for the violence syndrome in the nation.

Stanford's Bandura, an expert on the impact of television violence on children, called it "a Frankenstein monster."

"I don't understand how we can stop it," he said. "I remember testimony (at Senate hearings) in which a mother was explaining to her daughter, brought up on television, that her grandfather had died. She testified that the little girl's reaction was 'Who shot him?"

Dr. Herbert A. Otto, a Chicago psychologist, said the continued stress on violence by mass media is making "America accept violent acts as commonplace."

A recent study of 195 television cartoons, he said, showed 1,430 acts of violence, including killings, physical assaults, verbal assaults and harmful pranks.

"The most impressionable members of the nation, the youth of America, can often be found viewing cartoons where violence is being perpetrated at about the rate of one violent incident every 50 seconds," Otto said.

A psychiatrist from Chicago, Dr. Thaddeus Kostruba, agreed: "Every TV western has a murder.

Dr. Kenneth Kenniston, a Yale Medical Centre psychologist, said the television set has given to violence an "immediacy" that "secretly interests and pleases" many persons.

Dr. Carlton W. Orchinik, mental health consultant for the Philadelphia County Court, said he believes that television does not encourage violence but brings about an indifference to it.

"We can see scene after scene of gangsterism, and we can ignore it because it does not seem to touch us."

Institution As King Is Naked

By ARTHUR MILLER

(An excerpt from a speech given by the noted American playwright at a rally for Senator McCarthy in New York last month.)

From Moscow to Warsaw to Prague to Paris to Rio to Berkeley and New York, there is a deep and boiling rebellion against institutions and institutionalized feeling.

Be it a government, a university, a moral code or a way of life, the institution as king is naked now. The mere fact that it exists is no longer proof of its value.

In the past four years the war in Vietnam has become an institution, an institution with high private, sacred ceremonies of death and sacrifice, and all the sanctification of a holy crusade. Now, you can criticize an institution, you can suggest improvements and even point out its failings, but here is one thing you dare not do excepting at the risk of your public life, and that is to ask why it should exist at all . . .

The next President is going to face a revolutionary country and a world in revolution, and he will need a lot more than gallantry. He will need the habit of mind to perceive in the institutions he leads what is dead and inhuman and must be dismantled.

The next President will not be able to lead by consensus, by the expert manipulation of opinion, or by calls for unity, however passionate. For our disunity has been institutionalized into this country and into this world by virtue of the rule of the contented over the desperate.

A unity based on injustice cannot last and it ought not to last.

The next President will have to weigh every action not for what it will do for our prestige or our institutions but for what it will do to people.

Every one of the candidates in this campaign knew perfectly well what the Vietnam War was doing not only to the Vietnamese but the American people.

Why did they not speak directly to this issue? Because the institution of war in Vietnam was sacrosanct, it was forbidden territory.

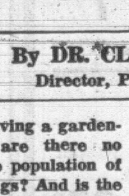
Forbidden to all but one who dared to stand and face that frightful juggernaut while the others were on their knees thinking their private thoughts.

No Toads in Victoria Area To Keep Down Slug Population

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Dear Dr. Carl: Victoria having a garden-conscious reputation why are there no toads to help keep down the population of slugs and creepy-crawly things? And is the helpful garden snake on the decline? If it is, will the raccoon be allowed to fill in by taking over some of the snake's job? He likes slugs. — S. P. S.

It is a bit of a mystery why there are no toads in the Victoria area. The common northwestern toad (technically namd Bufo boreas) is one of our most widespread amphibians being found from Alaska south to northern California and east to Utah and Colorado. In British Columbia it ranges over most of the province except in the northern section and is present on the Queen Charlotte Islands as well as Vancouver Island.



Carl

However, within its normal range its distribution seems to be patchy; in certain areas toads may be exceedingly numerous whereas in others they are entirely absent. This seems strange in view of the comparative versatility of these creatures. While they must have water to breed in they can live perfectly well in relatively dry areas providing they can hole up in a cool damp place during the heat of the day.

There seems to be no reason why toads are not common around Victoria; there is plenty of what appears to be suitable habitat on the outskirts of the city and throughout Saanich peninsula, yet to my knowledge they are not to be found here. In fact, the nearest place where toads are found in numbers is the Cowichan valley and in the coastal area north of Jordan River. A critical study of the toad's special requirements may show why this is so.

However, we do have garter snakes and they are found throughtout the residential parts of the city wherever there is sufficient cover for them. It is not possible to say that their numbers are on the decline because no one has conducted a regular census of the population. However, it is my guess that there are fewer now in the Victoria area than there were a few years ago for the reason that their natural habitat has been greatly reduced by growth of the city. Other hazards including power-mowers, cats, small boys, and vehicular traffic all tend to reduce the number of snakes in urban areas.

It is doubtful that the raccoon can take over part of the snake's job of destroying garden pets. No doubt the omnivorous coon eats slugs, as does the snake, but around the city it is more interested in garbage, fruit, gold-fish, nestlings or eggs, barnyard chickens or anything else that might be edible. I would think that slugs are low on the list of priority. In fact the raccoon is apt to be far more of a pest than a benefactor in settled areas. It could never usurp the role of the snake in the estimation of most householders.

VIETNAM IN SIX FATEFUL ACTS

U.S. Steps Irreversibly Into the Vietnam War

By CHALMERS ROBERTS
(Fourth of Six Articles)

The 1954 division of Vietnam was geographic but the regrouping of forces after Geneva was political.

Not only did about 900,000 people come South but from 90,000 to about 150,000 Communist troops, including their families, went North, many of them on Polish and Soviet ships.

Most importantly, as Bernard Fall has written, a small group of Ho Chi Minh's elite guerrillas "quietly buried its well-greased weapons, hid its portable radio transmitters and simply returned for the time being to the humdrum tasks of sowing and harvesting rice."

The relative calm in the South was short-lived. By the end of 1958, Viet Cong activity had begun to stir in the South and security in the countryside became a serious problem. By 1959, the North was recuperating from the war and it was evident that unification would not come through elections. Ngo Dinh Diem grew oppressive in the face of opposition and attempted coups. It was time for the Communists to act.

Sent South

Southerners who had gone north and been formed into units were now sent back. Those who had remained in the South dug up buried weapons and appeared in the form of the Viet Cong.

The struggle in the South against Diem was formalized at the end of 1960 and the beginning of 1961. On Sept. 10, 1960, the Lao Dong party adopted a resolution declaring that one of its tasks was "to liberate South Vietnam from the ruling yoke of the U.S. imperialists and their henchmen . . ."

And on Jan. 29, 1961, Hanoi announced the establishment of the National Liberation Front (NLF), formed the previous December as the political arm of the insurgent Viet Cong in the South.

All this had occurred in the final phase of the Eisenhower administration but it was the new president, John F. Kennedy, who had to deal with it.

Much that is known now about Communist plans and movements, however, was unknown then and the Kennedy-Eisenhower discussion about the world's problems on the day before the Kennedy inauguration did not touch on Vietnam. There was, however, considerable discussion of neighboring Laos, which the outgoing president considered so much the key to Southeast Asia that he said he would favor unilateral American intervention "as a last desperate hope" to deny it to the Communists.

Critical

Laos was indeed Kennedy's first critical problem in the area and he came close to intervention. In the end, at the Vienna meeting in 1961 with Nikita Khrushchev and in the subsequent Geneva conference on Laos in 1962, Kennedy was able to put Laos aside as the adjunct to Vietnam that it clearly had been.

Shunting Laos aside did nothing about Vietnam itself. Kennedy had been struck by a Khrushchev speech about "wars of national liberation" and from it was to come great emphasis on counter-insurgency, including the rise of the Green Berets.

That there were just grievances in the South by many against the Diem regime is beyond dispute. Critics of American policy contend, as one book puts it, that the insurrection against Diem was 'Southern rooted" and that "it arose at Southern initiative in response to Southern demands."

The American government view is that, despite the grievances, the insurrection was effectively Northern inspired and directed though using for the first years Southerners to carry it out.

The civil war view was rejected by the Kennedy administration. By November, 1961, the new sectetary of state, Dean Rusk, was speaking of "the determined and ruthless campaign of propaganda, infiltration and subversion by the Communist regime in North Vietnam to destroy the Republic of Vietnam" in the South.

Qualms

Kennedy had qualms about further involvement. Still, the weakness he had shown in the Bay of Pigs debacle in Cuba, many now feel, led him to fear another seeming retreat from communism and thus forced him to up the American ante in Vietnam.

In late 1961, two emissaries he had sent to Vietnam, Gen. Maxwell Taylor and Walt W. Rostow, came back with a recommendation for sending an American military task force of perhaps 10,000 men for self-defence and perimeter security and, if the South Vietnamese were hard pressed, to act as an emergency reserve.

That report, as much as anything, led the new President to take the irreversible steps into the second Indochina, or Vietnam, war. Kennedy stopped short of the Rostow argument for a contingency plan of retaliation against the North, graduated to match the intensity of Hanoi's support of the Viet Cong, as Arthur Schlesinger Jr. has described it.

Advisers

In the Kennedy era, the Americans were in Vietnam as advisers, about 16,000 of them by the time of the President's assassination. The first American soldier was killed on Dec. 22, 1961, and by the time of Kennedy's death about 150 Americans had died in Vietnam from hostile action and other reasons.

Vice-President Johnson visited Vietnam in May, 1961, and proclaimed Diem the Winston Churchill of the area, although he had some private criticisms. On his return, he told Kennedy that "we must decide whether to help these countries to the best of our ability or throw in the towel in the area and pull back our defences to San Francisco and a 'Fortress America' concept."

So more military advisers were sent to Vietnam, Diem was fully backed and the United States became more inextricably involved.

The Viet Cong terror campaign mounted but Defence Secretary Robert McNamara declared on his 1962 visit that "every quantitative measurement we have shows that we're winning this war" and Rusk said the next March that the struggle was "turning an important corner."

By fall, however, the innocence and self-delusion had been somewhat shattered after Diem's attack on the Buddhists. The President had evidenced his doubts in May, 1963, during a visit to the United States by Canadian Prime Minister Lester Pearson.

As Pearson told it in April, 1968, after leaving office, the President asked his advice about Vietnam. Pearson said the U.S. should "get out." The President replied, "That's a stupid answer. Everybody knows that. The question is: How do we get out?"

Last Act

His last act was to help push Diem from office in party by public criticism of his relationship with his notorious brother and sister-in-law, Ngo Dinh Nhu and Mme. Nhu.

In October, the generals struck and Diem and Nhu were murdered, setting off a period of political instability in which a dozen governments were to come and go.

Kennedy had the tiger by the tail and did not know how to let him go. There has been much speculation on what he might have done had he not been assassinated on Nov. 22, 1963, but much of it has been self-serving and all of it fruitless.

The young President's legacy was 16,000 American forces in Vietnam, some in actual combat though not formally so, a continuing American commitment and no plan of escape. Like Eisenhower, he had underestimated the enemy.

LESS DEEP, MORE TANGLED

Inner Feuds 'Cloud' Outcome

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Bureau

QUEBEC CITY — Feuds between factions of the same party, sometimes more bitter than the rivalry between one party and another, confuse the outlook for June 25 in several Quebec ridings.

None of the splits is quite as clear cut as what happened in 1965 in the old riding of St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville, when Yvon Dupuis, former Liberal minister without portfolio, ran as an independent, divided the Liberal vote right down the middle and let Conservative Paul Beaulieu take the seat.

TO ONE MAN

This time Mr. Dupuis will not run. And this time the Liberals hope that with all their votes going to one man they will take back St. Jean, in spite of the fat plurality Mr. Beaulieu gathered in 1965.

This year the splits may be less deep, but they are generally more tangled.

Some of the local discontent is the result of "parachutings."

The most publicized of these was the appointment by Jean Marchand of Jean-Robert Ouellet to the Liberal candidacy in Montreal-Sainte-Marie.

Up until then Albert Caplette, a defeated candidate in 1965, had been counting on getting the nomination for the simple reason that he had tight control of the local party membership and the power to decide who could vote at a convention.

'PARACHUTING'

But despite the wide attention the Sainte-Marie case received, parachutings have been more common among the opposition parties, especially among the big-name candidates recruited by the Conservatives.

In Gamelin, Robert Stanfield's Quebec leader, Marcel Faribault, faced a nominating convention, but his two rivals withdrew in recognition of the will of party headquarters.

In Bourassa, where the mayor of Montreal North, Yves Ryan, won the Conservative nomination, a group of local Conservatives is protesting that party members were never informed where or when the nomination meeting was to be.

In Notre-Dam-de-Grace, the long-established Conservative party association defied a central committee freeze on nominations and chose a local man. It took a week to get the party headquarters to recognize him.

PROTESTS MOVE

The Verdun riding association protested the freeze as well. But it came around enough to nominate the man supported by the central committee, Claude de Serres.

In other areas the splits are purely local.

Both major parties are divided in Sherbrooke. Conservative Alexandre Kindy, a psychiatrist, has lived in the riding only three years and is regarded by many as an outsider.

Liberal Paul Gervais is opposed by a section of his own party association. Local opinion in Sherbrooke is that everybody has good reason to lose, and the man who loses least will get the seat.

In another Eastern Townships riding, Frontenac, division among Conservatives offers the Liberals a clear run if, as expected, its old Creditiste strength dwindles.

There were four candidates for the Conservative nomination. Two have refused to support the winner, Andre Paul, and one of these two is considering running as an independent.

SIMILAR TROUBLES

The Liberals have similar troubles in Laval, one of the two ridings on Ile Jesus, north of the Island of Montreal. Jean-Noel Lavoie, a controversial provincial nember for the riding and a former mayor of the city of Laval, had a hand in the nomination of Liberal Marcel Roy.

Some disappointed supporters of other candidates are now talking of working for the NDP.

There is also bitterness among Liberals in Pontiac, where the effects of redistribution should have given an easy win to the sitting Liberal, Thomas Lefebvre. Rivals for the nomination complained that the convention was packed.

The two major parties are the most common victims of dissension but Real Caouette's Ralliement des Creditistes has some problems as well.

In Quebec Montmorency there is expected to be an independent Creditiste. He is Gerard Gingras, who tried to get his party's nomination but was defeated by Jean-Marie McNicoll.

Mr. Gingras complains that delegates were not required to have party membership cards to vote.

CREDITISTE SPLIT

In Lac St. Jean, Liberals are counting on an old Creditiste split to give them the seat. In 1965 Marcel Lessard made a strong running as a Robert Thomson Social Crediter, although a Caouette man, Alcide Simard, won the riding. This year Mr. Lessard is the official candidate for the Liberal party, which hopes that his own following and the Liberal vote together will send him to Ottawa.

The betting is that it will. But there has been some evidence in the past that old Creditiste voters can be rough on a candidate who counts on them for a vote after changing his political color.

Death Releases Delegates

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Indiana's 63 votes at the Democratic national convention now are uncommitted legally to any presidential candidate but a hint came late Thursday that many of them may go to Vice-President Hubert Humphrey.

State Democratic chairman Gordon St. Angelo said at the close of a state central committee meeting that no discussion took place about delegates. He pionted out that under Indiana's presidential preference primary law, the assassination of Sen. Robert Kennedy leaves the delegates he won in the May 7 primary uncommitted.

The law says the first-ballot votes are bound to the winning candidate only if "such person is in fact a candidate at such convention."

AGRICULTURE POLICY 'DISAPPOINTING'

Trudeau Fails to Swing Big Alberta Farm Vote

Special to the Times

CALGARY — A swift visit by Prime Minister Trudeau to northern Alberta June 4 was red letter day for Liberal candidates and supporters.

And a capacity crowd of 2,500 in Edmonton's civic square to hear him speak loved every moment of their involvement with "Trudeaumania."

Elsefhere in agriculture-conscious Alberta, however, it's a different story. His eight-point agriculture policy hasn't won praise from the men of the land and a top official of a large grain company calls the policy "nebulous and disappointing."

Alberta Wheat Pool vice-president Nelson Malm says the policy is not specific on many points and fails to deal with the basic problem of grain production in western Canada — adequate economic return for its product.

Conservative candidates — particularly those in rural ridings — have been quick to pounce on the policy and add it to a long list of peeves they have about the Liberal government's handling of western agriculture since 1963.

Liberals in Calgary are still trying to pin their leader down to an itinerary for his proposed June 18 visit.

Instead of Trudeau, they've had a team of cabinet ministers in the last Parliament come west and campaign for local candidates, mainly in the Calgary area.

Joe Greene, Jack Davis and Jean Chretien have all shown up during the past week attending rallies knocking on doors with several candidates and holding news conferences.

Mr. Greene was treated to a slap-up western-style rally-cum-barbecue at Sen. Harry Hays' farm in Calgary during the weekend.

Conservatives had George Hees campaign for them in Calgary Wednesday.

In the new, sprawling Rocky Mountain riding, the battle between two Conservative candidates is growing more heated, providing a source of relief for Liberal choice Allan Sulatycky.

Official PC candidate Hugh Gourley has lashed out at independent Conservative Doug Caston — the MP for the old Jasper-Edson riding who was dumped May 5 in favor of Gourlay.

Mr. Caston claims he's the "real Conservative" in the riding and this has been strongly rebutted by Mr. Gourlay who has distributed a letter saying "a vote for an independent is a vote thrown away."

Both men are wooing the Social Credit vote, and both are claiming to have the tacit support of the Socred organization.

In the guessing game of who'll win what on June 25, Prime Minister Trudeau thinks Athabasca (where the candidate is ex-provincial Liberal leader Mike Maccagno) and Medicine Hat (where H. A. Olson, former Socred, is campaigning) "look good." And there were "one or two others," he has told newsmen.

These likely include Calgary South where Stampeders football club president Pat Mahoney is fighting member of the last Parliament Ray Ballard. Mahoney and his big campaign organization have been receiving a lot of attention from Liberal cabinet ministers visiting the city. The other riding which may go to the Liberals is Edmonton-Strathcona.

Conservatives aren't doing much guessing. They confidently predict Alberta will stay Conservative.

In the last Parliament, all ridings except Medicine Hat and Red Deer were in Tory hands. Although they are outwardly confident, candidates and campaigners in ridings with a strong Liberal candidate are sweating this time in an attempt to fight his opposition and "that Trudeau thing" he has going for him.

The New Democratic Party predicts only that it will make "significant gains." A few candiates predicted they would win their riding, but probably not even they really believe it. The NDP is fighting the election in Alberta on a shoestring budget and is relying on the "party faithfuls and trade unionists to give them a boost over last election's polling figures.

... HYDRO

The route of unit trains from Fernie will be along the CPR mainline to Mission where they will cross the Fraser River and link up with existing Hydro industrial tracks at Clayburn.

Hydro trackage between Clayburn and Bradner will have to be relocated — a distance of about nine miles — because the grade is too steep for the big trains.

The new tracks will join the Great Northern mainline near Mud Bay, run along improved existing sea dikes around Boundary Bay and cut due west across the neck of Point Roberts to the superport.

No decision has been made on whether to build an overpass or underpass where the tracks will cut across Highway 499. The Tsawwassen ferry terminal highway will probably run through an underpass where the rail line crosses it, Mr. Richter said.

Mr. Southworth said the new rail link will mean Roberts Bank can compete favorably with Los Angles, Long Beach, Oakland and Seattle in the battle to build port facilities for the future.

He indicated there is more business lined up for the superport than simply the Fernie coal traffic but he left it up to the "interested parties" to make any announcements.

WORD BATTLE CLOSES DOWN GM PLANT

FREMONT, Calif. (UPI) — The General Motors assembly plant here shut down at noon Thursday following an exchange of words between workers and a forman over the death of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Plant officials said normal night shift operations were scheduled.

A company spokesman said production was halted because many of the 2,400 workers indicated they did not intend to return after lunch. A United Auto Workers Union spokesman said the workers walked out to protest alleged remarks by a foreman in the cushion shop.

'Candidate, Leader Poles Apart'

GROOS HITS PC STATEMENTS

Victoria Conservative candidate Eric Charman and his party leader are poles apart in their thinking, Liberal candidate David Groos charged Thursday night.

"They just don't seem to me to fit well—either with each other or with the Conservative view," he told a meeting of 50 at Doncaster School.

Mr. Groos said Rober Stanfield is calling for programs costing millions while Mr. Charman wants a halt to "colossal" expenditures.

He quoted press reports in which Mr. Stanfield advocated a guaranteed minimum income for all

"I had thought that Conservatives believed in less government and more free enterprise," said Mr. Groos. "Apparently Mr. Stanfield believes in bigger government."

Mr. Groos said Prime Minister Trudeau had set the tone for the Liberals when he said "we are making few promises because we don't want to raise taxes."

People of Conservative and Liberal inclination alike should rightly ask how is Mr. Stanfield going to implement all his promises, cut taxes and reduce expenditures."

Mr. Groos, who has represented Victoria since 1963, strongly emphasized the Liberal party stand on unity.

"We believe in one Canada; a federal state from Atlantic to Pacific having provinces and a strong central government.

"We do not believe in special status for any province, in the federal field," he said.

"If you give one province privieges over others you elevate it to a state within a state. Soon you have two separate states and the end of Canada is in sight. Speaking on the language problem, Mr. Groos said Liberal proposals will take time to become effective.

"It will take time, patience and money but we have already started in earnest at the highest levels and are working downwards.

"We are tearing down the impenetrable barriers of communication. If we can do this . . . and as a nation I am certain we will . . . will we not by peaceful means be settling one more division in the world . . . and advancing by one more step the long uphill march of mankind towards the goal of international understanding?

"And must not man reach this goal or perish in a mushroom cloud?" he said.

Prior to his speech Mr. Groos told his audience he had considered cancelling his appearance because of the Kennedy assasination.

He said the assasination was a triumph of violence over reason and he prayed it wouldn't happen here.

Take Pensions Out of Politics: Tory

Government pension increases shouldn't go on the political auction block, Eric Charman, Victoria Conservative candidate, said Thursday night.

"Take pensions out of politics," he told Oak Bay Kiwanis. "Don't leave pensioners to the highest bidders at election time."

He called for "immediate adjustments and review of all government pensions, including civil service superannuations."

Mr. Charman said pension adjustments should be automatic — in line with the rising costs of living.

This could be accomplished by incorporating escalator clauses into pension structures.

This has been done in other countries, he said.

"Many private corporations have such provisions in their pension schemes and I believe that the government should try to foster and encourage others to do so,"

He said it is unfair to leave pensioners striving for pension adjustments from one election to another — to be dependent on the whims of a political party.

"My further observation is that an underlying principle should always apply that one must not expect or look to a pension to be one's sole source of income upon retirement.

"Personal savings should always be encouraged and we should strive to look to the day when pensions and annuities are merely a part of the retirement income."

Mr. Charman said the percentage of residents living on pensions in Victoria is about double the national average.

"They are therefore a very important part of the local economy.

"Many of them are feeling the pinch and quite rightly feel they are suffering from extremely inequitable circumstances, particularly in view of the colossal rise in the cost of living."

He pointed out that the consumer price index in May, 1965, was 134.5 and in March, 1967, was 154.1, and still rising.

Mr. Charman said he found some pensioners living in shameful and deplorable conditions.

In answer to a question on shipyard contracts, the candidate said ships to be used on the west coast should be "built on the west coast."

"But why if they can be built cheaper in another area of Canada," asked a member of the audience.

"We are entitled to regional consideration, Mr. Charman replied. "We pay higher income taxes to the federal government because our wages and personal incomes are higher. Therefore we are entitled to some consideration."

He pointed out the United States, Japan, Sweden and Britain directly or indirectly subsidize the shipbuilding industry.

"In this country we have done nothing towards building a Canadian merchant marine," he added.

Mr. Charman accused Liberal "image-makers" of creating an impression that Conservative leader Robert Stanfield is a "two-nation" candidate.

"He has clearly defined his policy," he stated. "And that is there won't be any special status for any province."

Quebec and Red China are not the real issues in the elections, he added.

"I suggest that the real issue is the dwindling purchasing power of the dollar," he said. "We are beginning to feel the effects of unchecked government expenditures which have increased by four billion dollars in the past five years."

AROUND OUR SHORES

Full Racing Schedule Ahead

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Shorelines will buzz with activity this weekend. Many undoubtedly will take advantage of the warmer weather for overnight cruising. And there's racing action for both power and sailing skippers.

Capital City Yacht Club members have their choice of two Predicted Log Races. Saturday will feature the Hoffar Gulf Race over a 36-mile course, while Sunday's event will be the Rolly Halls Race over a 24-mile course. Standard Rules for Gulf of Georgia Log Races will be followed.

Hewett

Two different course have been set.

The Hoffar Race starts from Coal Island and proceeds to Canoe Rock, Gowland Point, East Point, Tumbo Channel, Gossip Shoal, through Active Pass, Ben Mohr Rock, Peile Point, Horda Shoal to a finish abeam the light on the south tip of Second Sister Island.

Rolly Halls is set from Ganges, Horda Shoal, Peile Point, Conconi Reef, Blunden Island, Joan Rock, to finish at the north point of Coal Island.

Both races finish at 1600 hours.

One highlight in weekend racing activity is the Sunday sailoff to determine a Vancouver Island rep. for Mallory eliminations. The Mallory is the top challenge event in North America for three man crews. This year, representatives from each of eight regional areas will enter the finals August 26-29 in San Francisco, which will be sailed in International Tempests.

Victoria and the Island are part of area "H" (which now includes the Hawaii Yacht Racing Association, as well as PIYA territory).

The winner of the Sunday match races, between a team from Royal Victoria Yacht Club and The Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association will proceed to area H local eliminations in Seattle later this month.

Royal Victoria Yacht Club skipper Sid Halls will have as crew Robert Grundison and Jeremy Hewett. RCNSA skipper Jack Stacey has chosen Mel Steffans and Doug Bond. They will sail in Shark sloops

In 1967, the Royal Vic team of Jack Woodward, Gordon Inglis, Gerry Anderson and Peter Townshend took the area H regional eliminations and sailed in the Mallory finals at Montreal.

SHORT TACKS: Also on the sailing schedule are the B.C. O.K. Dinghy Open Championships to be held Saturday and Sunday at the RCNSA . . . Royal Vic has the Discovery Island Handicap Race on Saturday, and Crease Trophy Competition for Cruising Classes A, B, C, and D, going to Bedwell Harbor and back . . . Going uncontested as Vancouver Island reps to Area H eliminations are RCNSA's Doug Beer in the O'Day (single-handed sailing) and RVYC's Shirley Jefferson in the Adams for women. Shirley, with club-mates Nancy Lovett and Pat MacDonald, travels to Portland, Oregon, on June 29. They will sail there in Lightnings . . . John Weir's Vertue Class sloop Kea was launched Wednesday. . . .

Recent Victoria Canoe and Kayak Club expeditions have taken members weekending to Quesnel Lake, Nitinat Lake, Nanaimo Lakes, and Fairy Lake. They are contemplating a trip to the Bamfield area in the near future . . . Vancouver Island District of Canadian Power Squadrons had tow competitions along with their sailpast ceremonies last weekend.

In man overboard drill, top marks of 100 per cent went to past district commander Paul Harding in the Pekagic, and past district commander Vic Griffin in Hi Seas. . . .

Fourteen boats were involved in a Victoria squadron predicted log race which started at Shute Reef, through Colburne Passage to Patey Rock, Separation Point via Satellite Channel, through Sansum Narrows and Stuart Channel to Sharpe Point. Winner was Ivan Peetz in Goggam with an error of .913 per cent, followed by Tom Dalzell in Jamie with an error of 3.25 per cent . . . Some of the owner-built ocean racers seem to be the going-est of machines. Peter White's Uppepo, competing in the Wednesday night series for the first time, led the cruising class fleet of 10, and also won the race on corrected time . . . Potlatch should also be a consistent top competitor. Potlatch owner Wully Meakes is contemplating the July 1 Maui Race. To date, there are 18 confirmed entries. Potlatch would make four from Victoria.

Aldermen To Inspect Hippie House

Aldermen will tour a "hippie house" at 740 Kings Road next week to see if it should be demolished.

A letter read to Victoria's health committee Thursday from the fire chief said the residence was unfit for habitation and a fire hazard.

Aldermen present agreed they should inspect the house before ordering demolition.

The committee also recommended the Chinese Hospital at 55 Herald Street be granted a five-year renewal of its lease. A report from the city welfare administrator said the hospital was doing a fine job in caring for elderly Chinese.

Health committee in other business supported a request by the B.C. branch of the Canadian Public Health Association for the provincial government to supply measles vaccine.

Ald. Wilson said the local board of health had been trying for years to get the province to supply free vaccine.

In a letter to the finance committee F. W. Nott of 85 Obed said the advancement of the due date for the payment of taxes might save the city money but resulted in a loss of interest to the taxpayer.

In reply, a report from city treasurer James Bramley said any loss in interest to the taxpayer was more than offset by the ¼-mill over-all saving in the annual mill rate to each taxpayer.

Consumer Affairs Meeting on Agenda

HALIFAX—Consumer Affairs Minister John Turner Thursday announced plans for a federal-provincial conference on consumer affairs.

He told a news conference that his department and all the provincial departments designated by their premiers as having jurisdiction over consumer affairs would take part in the conference.

He said he has asked his deputy minister to convene a meeting of senior federal-provinrial officials to set up the agenda for the conference.

VANCOUVER—An immediate start on a $10,500,000 four-lane toll bridge linking Vancouver directly with the airport on Sea Island, south of the city, was announced Thursday by Northern Development Minister Laing. Mr. Laing is a Liberal candidate in Vancouver South, where the bridge will be located.

THETEFORD MINES, Que. — Creditiste Leader Real Caouette suggested Thursday that the federal government make interest-free loans available within Canada as it has outside the country. In a campaign speech he eited such a loan — $4,500,000 — Canada made to Ceylon. "Why doesn't the federal government help the province, municipalities and school commissions with such a policy?"

REGINA — The leader of the Canadian Communist Party, William Kashtan, said in an interview Thursday the assassination of Senator Robert Kennedy was the act of an individual expressing the violence that is perpetuated by the "establishment" in the United States.

He said the shooting could result either in widespread criticism and eventual change of American policies, or it could lead to a "reactionary pro-fascist development aimed at settling the accounts."

MONTREAL — Duff Roblin, Progressive Conservative candidate in Winnipeg South Centre, said he does not believe in a dual international policy for Canada, but a means must be found whereby provincial governments can discuss matters within their jurisidaition with foreign governments.

Speaking at a press conference preceeding a political rally in support of Murray Ballantyne, PC candidate in Montreal Westmount, Mr. Roblin said there is but one international policy for Canada.

"But there is a blank spot on the constitution," he said. "In Manitoba we had discussions with the U.S. on the matter of highways, making them link up, sent teachers to Malaysia and sent immigration officers abroad."

The former Manitoba premier charged the Liberal government with following a policy of confrontation instead of one of consultation.

"For five years they've taken a soft line on Quebec. Now they're taking a hard line."

The best solution to constitutional problems lay in the example set by the Confederation of Tomorrow conference called last November by Ontario Premier Robarts.

ROSETOWN, Sask. — Woodrow Lloyd, Saskatchewan leader of the New Democratic Party, said NDP proposals for tax changes would reduce the income tax paid by farmers 40 per cent.

Campaigning on behalf of Rod Thompson, NDP candidate for Battleford-Kindersley, Mr. Lloyd said present tax policies discriminate against those with small and medium incomes and those with incomes "from work rather than speculation."

"For example, a husband, wife and three children making $6,500 a year from wages may pay $600 income tax. But they could receive [illegible],000 in dividends from Canadian corporations and pay nothing."

DAWSON CREEK — Erhart Regier, New Democratic Party candidate in the Prince George-Peace River riding threatened to resign even before being elected. Mr. Regier said if he is elected and no move is made toward paving the Alaska Highway after two years of his taking office, he would publicly resign.

Despite the number of Indian reserves in Victoria and Esquimalt Saanich there are no polls which will be used exclusively by Indians. Recently, in Duncan, Indians objected that some polls were located in areas where only natives would cast ballots. They objected that this meant anyone could tell at a glance when results are posted how the Indians voted as a racial bloc.

Pearson To Visit Old Riding

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester Pearson said Thursday his federal election campaign plans consist of one visit to Algoma, his old riding in Northern Ontario, sometime between now and June 25.

Back home after a month's vacation in Ireland, the former prime minister was in a mood of sombre reflection because of the assassination of U.S. Senator Robert Kennedy in California.

Pearson said the crowds attracted by his successor, Prime Minister Trudeau, pose a difficult security problem.

But "getting out to meet the crowds is part of the democratic process."

The answer seemed to lie not in improving security services, but "in strengthening our attitudes towards our responsibilities as citizens."

Upon hearing reporters at the airport confirm that John Diefenbaker is off and running again in Prince Albert, Pearson almost conceded one seat to the Conservatives.

"I think Mr. Diefenbaker has a pretty good chance of outlasting me in Parliament," he said. Anyway, "there's nothing I can do about it."

Pearson said he will soon have to begin earnest preparations for his new job. He will lecture on international affairs this fall at Carleton University here.

The former Liberal prime minister and his wife, Maryon, flew to Ottawa by Air Canada from Montreal and London.

They learned of the death of Senator Kennedy before leaving London. During an interview in Montreal, Pearson spoke of his shock and dismay.

"It is a reflection of the increase in violence we seem to be facing."

Pearson said Canada is "less susceptible to this kind of thing" but this is not to say that it could not happen in this country.

No Detail Too Small To Overlook

OTTAWA (CP) — The political parties are preparing meticulously for Sunday's televised debate among their leaders.

Party representatives spent 4½ hours with the program's producer and director Wednesday, discussing every detail of procedure.

They hudled around a model of the studio set up in the Confederation Room of the West Block on Parliament Hill, anticipating the camera angles and movements of the participants.

The two-hour debate begins at 9 p.m. EDT Sunday on the national CTV network and all television and radio networks of the CBC.

Prime Minister Trudeau, Conservative Leader Stanfield and NDP Leader Douglas will participate for the full two hours. Creditiste Leader Caouette will join the debate about 40 minutes before its conclusion.

Liberal and Conservative policy advisers have drafted briefing papers for Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Stanfield who are back in Ottawa today to prepare for the debate.

Mr. Stanfield is expected to convene one or more meetings to discuss strategy.

The prime minister's office has a number of analyses of issues ready for Mr. Trudeau, but he is expected to limit any meetings to technical points about the program.

Late Thursday night, Liberal headquarters was leaving Saturday open in case Mr. Trudeau decided to fly to New York for the funeral of Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

The NDP has set up a Saturday meeting for Mr. Douglas with party president James Renwick, party secretary Cliff Scotton, personal assistant Douglas Rowland and a few other advisers.

'DRY RUN' SATURDAY

The leaders will go through a "dry run" Saturday afternoon in the Confederation Room to test lighting, makeup, positioning and other points.

Journalists Tom Gould of CTV, and Ron Collister and Jean-Marc Poliquin of CBC will ask questions after opening three-minute statements by each of the leaders.

Each leader will be questioned in turn, and his answer will be held up for examination by the others.

The co-moderators are Charles Templeton of CTV and Pierre Nadeau of CBC.

DOUGLAS TALKS UP MERCHANT MARINE

NDP Pledges Shipbuilding Subsidies

By GERARD McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — NDP Leader Tommy Douglas hopped off an airplane from Newfoundland and went on an 80-mile automobile tour of the Montreal area Thursday and pledged help to rejuvenate the Canadian merchant marine.

Mr. Douglas, who later left for Ottawa in preparation for Sunday's television debate by political leaders, made his biggest impression of the day at the plant of Canadian Vickers Ltd.

From the back of a truck outside Vickers' east-end plant as about 2,000 workers came off shift, he pledged a heavy program of shipbuilding subsidies.

Mr. Douglas said the NDP would reinstate heavy federal subsidies for companies like Canadian Vickers and would also offer low-interest loans.

"We must start to build a Canadian merchant marine. We must start building ships here."

Mr. Douglas had a moment of fencing earlier with President J. Eric Harrington of Vickers in his office, but they soon found themselves in agreement.

Mr. Harrington, discussing the "scandalous" lack of a merchant marine in Canada, said Canadian contracts were going to British and Japanese shipbuilders who were heavily subsidized and could build for half the cost of a Canadian yard.

In a west-central tenement district, Mr. Douglas heard complaints about bureaucracy and lack of urban renewal.

Mr. Douglas met Mayor Jean Drapeau at city hall then visited the east-end St. Jean de Dieu mental hospital to chat with a number of the 2,400 employees as they came off the day shift.

He later told the Montreal Labor Council that union members should become involved in politics to protect their gains.

With him was Robert Cliche, the Quebec NDP leader.

Pre-weekend profit-taking trimmed an advance today on the New York stock market.

A general advance was posted on the Toronto exchange and trading was active following two days of light volume.

It was announced today that trading on Wall Street will be curtailed one day in each of the next four weeks to give brokerage firms extra time to catch up on paper work. The closing dates will be June 12, 19 and 26 and July 5.

Rothmans In Beer Business

TORONTO (CP) — Two of Canada's largest industrial companies were integrated Thursday when Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd. bought an 11-per-cent interest in Canada Breweries Ltd. of Toronto.

Rothmans made the surprise announcement after the Toronto Stock Exchange closed for the day. President John H. Devlin said the company bought 2,400,000 shares of Canadian Breweries from Argus Corp. Ltd. of Toronto for $28,000,000.

Argus is a holding company headed by industrialist E. P. Taylor and the purchase transfers its 11-per-cent interest in Canadian Breweries to Rothmans.

The purchase price is about $2.50 a share more than Thursday's $9.50 closing price for Canadian Breweries on the Toronto exchange.

Mr. Devlin has been appointed chairman of Canadian Breweries while John G. Campbell remains as president of the brewery company. Wilmat Tennyson, vice-president of marketing for Rothmans, has become vice-president of Canadian Breweries.

Six members of the brewery company's board have resigned and have been replaced by Rothmans nominees.

Fish Company Hit

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Packers, Canada's largest fish-packing company, ran into rough financial waters last year.

In the nine months prior to December 31 the company was buffeted by a "combination of adverse factors," and suffered an operating loss of $81,837 compared to net earnings of $1,126,669 in the corresponding period in 1966, the annual report presented Thursday stated.

However, the operating loss was overtaken by a special credit of $91,653 arising from adjustments of prior years' tax assessment of subsidiary companies — resulting in a total net income of $9,816.

The report said in addition to operating deficits the company had to provide $289,830 for possible loss on investments and advances to its 50 per cent-owned Western Canada Whaling Co. Ltd. and J. H. Todd and Sons Ltd., both of which suffered losses in 1967.

New Ore Supply Needed

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Kent

Consistent lack of working capital will keep Cowichan Copper Co. Ltd. in a precarious position until new ore supply is assured.

This is the message from president and managing director Oswood G. MacDonald in a long, scatter-gun report to shareholders covering the past year's activities.

It boils down to an urgent need to start mining a higher grade copper ore by open pit methods from an area of the Jordan River property known as the Cave zone.

"Then and only then will we have adequate soruces of mill feed established," he said.

A continuous supply of at least 1,000 tons per day is required in order for revenues to be assured, both for working and operating purposes, as well as retirement of old debts that have been hanging like millstones for two years.

But always one to look at the sunny side of disasters, Mr. MacDonald steadfastly maintains the Sooke area to be one of the more promising mineral localities in B.C., especially around the old Sunro mine he has been working — from time to time — since 1962.

There is plenty of mill capacity — "no longer any doubts in the minds of our present staff that it is capable of milling as much as 1,467 tons in one 24-hour period."

And he estimates more than 1 million tons of ore in the Cave zone above the 5,670-foot level.

Meanwhile, three ore shipments have been made since last July to Rio Tinto in Spain, for a total 8,216 wet metric tons.

Since last mid-October to the end of February an operating profit of $58,700 was recorded.

"Given a reasonable price for copper which we expect will level out at around the 45-cent mark and with the surface large-scale mining firmly established, we should then make substantial profits whereby our liabilities under the creditors' proposal could be fully retired within two years and possibly even less," Mr. MacDonald said.

Assuming the open pit operation would start this year, Cowichan could start mining other known surface zones in 1969, across the river and downstream along a narrow gauge right-of-way dating from 1918, which the president said could be restored as a haulage road.

And after that the whole program would be duplicated underground, he said, looking far into the future.

Directors of Northern Comstock Mining Ltd., which is financing exploration of northern B.C. property of Silverknife Mines Ltd., have decided to set up a pilot mill to extract galena.

Following some dispute last winter over the potential of its Silver Tip claims, Silverknife optioned property to Northern Comstock in exchange for at least $50,000 worth of development work by July 31, 1968, and $100,000 of additional work by each succeeding July 31 until termination of the agreement or commencement of production.

Net profits would be split 80-20 until Northern's advances are paid off, then each company would share returns equally. Terms were approved by an extraordianary shareholder meeting March 28.

Northern sent a geophysical crew to the property immediately and encouraged by the report, Northern directors decided to go ahead with bulk sampling, metallurgical testing and installation of the mill to determine a suitable method for large-scale ore extraction.

J. Peter Heron is Northern Comstock president, and directors are Arthur Becker, Charles E. Craig and Harry Fowler. Mr. Craig is president of Silverknife, and along with Mr. Fowler is a substantial shareholder.

Northern has assured $200,000 over and above the $50,000 initial expenditure for exploration work this season, planning to carry it through winter months. Mr. Craig and Mr. Fowler contract to supply half the additional amount.

U.S. Reveals $282 Million Gold Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four European gold partners bought $282,500,000 in gold from the United States during the crisis buying of the metal on the London market early this year, the U.S. treasury department reported Wednesday.

There were reports at the (time that some of the U.S. gold partners might be buying to replace part of the gold they provided for the London market.

A breakdown of figures made public for the first quarter showed that Italy bought $184,000,000 in gold, The Netherlands $48,500,000 and Belgium and Switzerland $25,000,000 each.

The largest sale by far was to Britain, $899,600,000, but this represented the U.S. contribution to the London gold pool and was reported to include no gold for Britain itself.

B.C. Bank Will Open July 18

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett, who conceived the idea of a Bank of British Columbia four years ago, will open the bank's first branch in downtown Vancouver July 18.

The announcement was made today by President A. E. Hall who termed the opening "an historical event for the business community and people of British Columbia."

Mr. Hall said other branches, one in Vancouver and one in Victoria will open this fall.

"We will close our fiscal year end by having three branches in operation and this will be the beginning of a growing western bank," he said. "We have may other locations under study but for the present time we cannot announce them."

During the bank's planning stages, Premier Bennett said its head office would be in a 60-storey building in Vancouver.

This plan was shelbed when the federal government refused to allow provinces to participate in federally-chartered banks.

The Bank of B.C. received its federal charter in May, 1967 and became Canada's 10th federally-chartered institution.

Employers

1) These contribution rates are effective June 30th 1968. If your pay periods do not coincide with that day, and if you wish to avoid using both the old and new rates in the same pay period, you may use:

(a) OLD RATES for any pay periods ending on or before July 6th 1968, or

(b) NEW RATES for any pay periods starting on or after June 23rd 1968.

2) Stamps that will become obsolete after June 30th may be exchanged at your post office for stamps of the new denominations.

3) If you are registered as an employer with the Unemployment Insurance Commission, a bulletin with detailed information about exchanging stamps has been mailed to you.

4) The wage ceiling is raised from $5,460 to $7,800. All salaried employees earning up to and including $7,800 a year are insurable from June 30th onward.

5) Employees paid by the hour, day, piece or mile will remain insurable regardless of the amount of their earnings.

Employees

1) Although the new contribution rates become effective June 30th 1968, the new benefit rates as shown in the table above will not automatically become effective at the same time.

2) The benefit rate is calculated on the basis of your most recent 30 contribution weeks. Therefore, some time will go by after July 1st before your contributions at the new rate will have the maximum effect on your rate of benefit.

3) For claims established before July 1st, the benefit rate established when the claim was made will continue to apply until the claim is ended.

4) As an employee, you will contribute at the new rate starting June 30th 1968, and your new contribution rate is shown in the contribution table above.

5) For earnings of less than $20.00 a week, most employees are credited with a contribution for half a week. However, farm employees and fishermen do not pay any contributions for earnings of less than $9.00 a week. But if they have earnings from $9.00 to $19.99, they pay 10¢ and are credited with a contribution for half a week.

6) If you work in lumbering and logging, and if your contribution weeks are determined by applying divisors to the number of cords or board feet produced, your contributions will be at the rate for earnings of $100 a week. This was formerly $69.

Revised copies of the Employer's Handbook and Table of Deductions will be mailed before June 30th 1968 to all employers registered with the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

In addition, booklets and tables for employers in logging and fishing will also be distributed at a later date.

These booklets and tables will contain detailed information on the amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act passed by Parliament in March of this year. If you have further questions or wish more information, the nearest office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission will be glad to help you.

MORE SEATS PROMISED FOR SUNDAY GAME

CONCERN EXPRESSED OVER CABLE TV DECISION

Drapeau Scores Again—Gets Grey Cup for Expo Site

TORONTO (CP) — Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau scored again Thursday, convincing the Canadian Football League that the 1969 Grey Cup game should be played on the site of Expo 67.

The league decided the game will be played in the Expo Autostade, new home of Montreal Alouettes of the CFL, after receiving a letter from the mayor saying that seating will be increased to 37,500 from 25,000 by next summer.

In a switch from the usual Saturday date, the game will be played Sunday, Nov. 30.

The Montreal bid topped submissions by Toronto and Vancouver, but Toronto has already asked for the 1970 Canadian championship game between Eastern and Western Conference winners. This season, it will be played in Toronto Saturday Nov. 30.

Montreal was awarded the 1965 game, but it was later moved to Toronto when plans for a stadium in suburban Ville D'Anou fell through.

Lew Hayman, general manager of Toronto Argonauts, succeeded in his campaign to allow all 32 players on a club's active roster to dress and play in all regular-season, playoff and championship games.

Officials voted for the plan.

Hayman had been trying for years to get the league to increase the quota from 30. In previous seasons, the teams could dress only 17 Canadians and 13 imports.

This year, the 14th import will be named as a substitute. He can replace another player only if the other player does not reenter the game, similar to the substitution rule in baseball.

"It was ridiculous to sit out two players every game," Hayman said. "Not only do the fans want to see them, but the clubs didn't pay good money to have them sit in the stands."

CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur said the Western Conference representation did not want to continue the previous Grey Cup pattern of two games in the East and one in the West every three years.

"They didn't feel we had to adhere to the pattern, but they want a type of rotation system," he said.

Earlier, the league accepted a commissioned report on cable television which Gaudaur said "is of serious importance to all sports groups and television networks."

He said a 1954 Exchequer Court decision involving a Montreal firm said the skies are public domain.

"A company can take a signal out of the sky and show a game right across the street from the park," Gaudaur said.

"Cities such as Montreal, Hamilton, Ottawa, Toronto and Vancouver could be hurt badly at the gate.

Gaudaur will meet with Gary Schreider of Ottawa, president of the CFL Players' Association, to discuss an off-season game between an East-West all-star team and the previous year's winner of the Grey Cup.

The association hopes the exhibition game will increase its pension fund which now totals $91,938.

Meanwhile, Edmonton is talking about a domed stadium for the Eskimos.

Norm Kimball, Edmonton general manager, said Thursday night he got the idea from a building at Idaho State University in Pocatello. It involves a quonset hut-type construction and seats 12,000. Cost: $2,500,000 or about $500,000 more than the clock at the Houston Astrodome.

Rivals Suffer as Gibson Tries to Catch Card Kids

BOB GIBSON

By The Associated Press

Bob Gibson is having plenty of trouble trying to keep up with three youngsters on the St. Louis pitching staffs, but the Cardinals are enjoying the competition—even if the rest of the National League isn't.

Gibson, long considered one of baseball's best pitchers, blanked the Houston Astros 4-0 on three hits Thursday night for St. Louis' ninth straight victory that put them 3½ games ahead of the field.

However, the gem only evened the 32-year-old Gibson's record at 5-5, still worse than Steve Carlton, 23 years old, at 7-1; Nelson Briles, 24, at 6-4, and Larry Jaster, 24, at 4-2.

In the other National League night game, Don Sutton kept Los Angeles Dodgers only 3½ games behind with a six-hitter that stopped the drooping Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2.

In the afternoon, New York Mets halted the Chicago Cubs 5-3 and San Francisco beat Philadelphia Phillies 7-2 on Jim Hart's two three-run homers to put the Giants and Phillies each 3½ back.

Cincinnati Reds and Atlanta Braves also 3½, were not scheduled.

Gibson completed St. Louis' four-game sweep in the Astrodome with little trouble. He allowed only one man past first base.

Orlando Cepeda, Tim McCarver and Lou Brock, off form this season after doing much of the hitting in the Cardinals' rout over the rest of the league last year, perked up for Gibson.

Cepeda hit his seventh homer and singled in another run, McCarver followed Cepeda's blast with one of his own, No. 4.

COMPLETE SWEEP

The Dodgers also swept Pittsburgh four straight as the Pirates managed only three runs in 37 innings and sank again into the cellar. Sutton, 3-5, gave up a run-scoring hit to Manny Jimenez in the first inning and Gene Alley's second homer in the sixth, but the Dodgers' attack more than overcame them.

Hart's homers and six runs batted in for San Francisco made him the league's top home run hitter with 11 and among the leaders in RBI with 29. They also helped Juan Marichal win his 10th game, tops in the majors. Marichal, who has lost twice, scattered seven hits.

HOWARD HOMERS

Home runs dominated four American League games Thursday with only Cleveland Indians' 2-1, 11-inning victory over Chicago White Sox free of the long ball.

Frank Howard and Ron Hansen homered for Washington Senators' 4-3 victory over Oakland Athletics and Minnesota Twins trimmed New York Yankees 2-0 on Tony Oliva's homer.

Norm Cash and Jim Northrup homered, helping Detroit Tigers past Boston Red Sox 5-3, and California Angels stood off a three-homer barrage to defeat Baltimore Orioles 8-6.

Howard socked his 22nd home run of the year and second in as many nights in the first inning against Oakland. An inning later, Hansen added his No. 5 as the Senators jumped to a 4-0 lead.

The two shots gave Washington eight homers in six games.

CANADIENS TO REQUEST NEW EXPANSION GROUP

VANCOUVER (CP)—The National Hockey League will be asked to set up another expansion committee next week, Senator Hartland DeM. Molson, chairman of the board of Montreal Canadiens, said Thursday.

"I don't know whether I should tell you this but David (J. David Molson, Canadiens' president) is already asking (NHL president Clarence) Campbell to set up an expansion committee," he said in a telephone interview from Montreal.

Sen. Molson said the request will be made formally at the NHL meeting in Montreal next week but this was no guarantee the future expansion would include Vancouver.

He said Canadiens "would like to see Vancouver in after this season."

Sen. Molson said his club had backed Vancouver's entry into the NHL from the beginning.

Ronnie Shade Bounced As Long Putt Connects

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Reg Glading, 42-year-old Englishman, sank a 40-footer from just off the green at the home hole and defeated reigning world champion Ronnie Shade of Scotland 1 up today to go into the semi-finals of the British amateur golf championship.

Other quarter-final results were:

Joe Carr of Ireland, British Walker Cup champion, who is trying to win the title for the fourth time, knocked out Scott Cochran of Scotland 2 and 1; Geoff Marks of England defeated British Walker Cupper Gordon Cosh of Scotland 2 and 1 and Michael Bonallack of England—the winner in 1965, defeated Charlie Green of Scotland 4 and 3.

In this afternoon's semi-finals Carr will play Glading and Marks faces Bonallack.

Glading's victory over Shade was the biggest upset in the championship over the 7,130-yard, par 73 links.

Shade was one of the eight seeds and second favorite behind Bonallack for the title.

The last American hope dropped out of the picture Thursday.

Orphans Pressing Senior Co-Leaders

Orphans erupted for a 6-3 win over Independents Thursday in a Senior Amateur Baseball League game at Layritz Park.

The steady pitching of Stan Gibb brought Orphans to within half a game of the co-leading Transport Workers and Greaves Movers. Gibb struck out 10 batters and walked only one in the first six innings until a momentary lapse in effort allowed two runs in the seventh.

Doug Hannon brought in both Independent runs with a double after two were out in the seventh.

Orphans uncoupled a 1-1 tie with three runs in the fourth inning and then added two in the sixth. Mike Embury, who had three hits, brought in two of the fourth-inning tallies with a single.

Rookie Had Fling, Vets' Turn Tonight

(Times News Services)

A rookie goaltender pulled the rug from under Vancouver on Thursday, and Portland's Adanacs plan a counter action with a pair of seasoned veterans tonight.

With Don Wallis filling a goaltending breech in brilliant fashion Thursday, New Westminster Salmonbellies tightened the National Lacrosse Association's western division standing by defeating Vancouver Carlings 12-9 Thursday.

The Westminster team moves to Portland for a game tonight. If Wallis gets the call again, he may be greeted by Jack Bionda and Tommy McVie.

Portland manager Al Browning announced that McVie, a former all-star in the Inter-City League, has signed a contract with Adanacs and is expected to make his first start tonight.

Bionda also has reportedly signed with Adanacs and there are indications he may start Saturday if not tonight. Victoria Shamrocks play in Portland on Saturday.

The Adanacs, who have lost three straight to the Shamrocks, also are seeking the services of Norm Usselman.

However, New Westminster had placed Usselman's name on its protected list and the point is being disputed by Portland. The dispute will be ruled upon by commissioner Tom English.

OFF INJURED LIST

In Westminster, there was no dispute about the performance of Wallis. After absorbing a 17-6 pasting from Vancouver Wednesday, the Salmonbellies hurried the rookie goaltender from the injured reserve list.

Wallis made 37 saves, including 28 in the first two periods, as Westminster prevented Carlings from opening a four-point lead atop the standings.

Paul Parnell, Wayne Goss, Dough McRory and playing-coach Cliff Sepka each pumped in two goals. Parnell also picked up two assists.

Sid Warick and Ross MacDonald each counted a pair for Vancouver.

Nanaimo Club Pounds Ports

PORT ALBERNI — Nanaimo O'Keefes got a five-goal performance from Craig MacRey here Thursday night and handed Port Alberni Barclays a 23-5 thumping in a Vancouver Island Senior Lacrosse League game.

Ken Blasulig added three goals to the Nanaimo total while Darrell Folz and Ron Sandnes each fired two tallies.

Brian van Horne and Bob Jones each counted twice for Barclays, who trailed by quarter scores of 5-0, 10-1 and 18-2.

Tank Convoy Adds To Rally Hazards

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Scott Harvey, of Detroit, has virtually wrapped up first place in the cross-Canada rally which ends after today's run into Halifax, experts concede.

Harvey and his navigator, Ralph Beckman, started today's run in first place with eight points, half the total of their closest competitor.

This is the third time Harvey and Beckman have worked as a team, but the first time in the cross-Canada. They have never been over-all winners.

Should they win, they would split the $1,000 first prize plus $350 as winners of their class. Their blue Barracuda, sponsored by Chrysler Canada Ltd., is in Class 5, the second highest category.

COMPLETE BEST RUN

Thursday's run, in which Harvey and Beckman did not lose a point, was the best rallying so far on this year's event, drivers said.

They praised the terrain in Quebec and the Maritimes after criticizing the dull rallying on the Prairies.

Jim Gunn, rally organizer, said the move into the Maritimes—the rally had never been in the area in its eight-year history—was gratifying.

"The drivers I have talked to were pleased with the test that roads in New Brunswick provided and we've got more coming up in Nova Scotia. Today will be a real test," Gunn said.

ONTARIO PAIR SECOND

Meanwhile, Paul MacLennan of Toront and Jim Peters of Burlington, Ont., remained in second place with 16 points. They are driving a Rambler American.

Third place was held by Tom Jones of Port Arthur and John Medwell of Toronto, also in a Rambler American. They have 18 points while Ewold van Bergen of South Africa and Paul Manson of Toronto in a Datsun are fourth with 25 points.

Fifth place is held by the husband and wife team of Hadyn and Sylvia Gozzard of London, Ont., in a Renault. They also were first in class, first in the couples section and first in the private entry category.

Thursday's run included two speed sections, one in a forest reserve outside Sherbrooke and the other at Canadian Forces Base Gagetown, near Fredericton.

TANK HITS DITCH

On the forest reserve, rallyists encountered the first mud of this year's run, while at Gagetown tanks were a problem.

Paul MacLennan whipped his Rambler American around a curve and was confronted with a convoy of 17 tanks which he managed to avoid. The second car through the section, Hunter Floyd's Rambler American, was going 110 miles an hour when he saw the tanks.

He swerved one way and a tank swerved into a ditch to avoid a collision.

MacLennan phoned the starter and it was arranged with the army to move the tanks off the course.

Bucko to Coach Boxla Canadiens

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Wilfred Bucko McDonald has been named coach of Montreal Canadiens of the National Lacrosse Association.

McDonald spent 11 seasons in the National Hockey League as a defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings.

Now 62, McDonald lives near Orillia, Ont.

Olympics Boost Lead On Win Over Lakers

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Detroit Olympics scored four goals late in the third period Thursday night to defeat Peterborough Lakers 18-14 in a National Lacrosse Association game.

The win, before more than 2,500 fans, gave Detroit a six-point lead over second-place Peterborough.

For Detroit, Ross Jones scored three with two goals from Gaylord Powless, John Conlin, Bob Shaw and Grant Heffernan.

League scoring leader John Davis paced Peterborough with five goals and three assists. Jim Vilneff scored twice.

Singles came from Cy Coombes, Jim Paterson, Tim O'Grady, Ken Ruttan, Terry Downer, Brian Aherne and Joe Hore.

Davis now has 50 points on 22 goals and 28 assists, 11 points more than Powless.

Peterborough gathered 42 of the 77 minutes in penalties handed out.

American Drivers Have Power Edge

Super-stock car drivers from the U.S. return to Western Speedway Saturday to test the talent of local drivers.

Jack Jeffery of Seattle could find competition a bit tougher than when he won the 100-lap race against ordinary stockers here last year. For the first time, four local pilots will be at the helm of supers, going against 18 to 20 cars from Washington.

Dave Cooper, Bob Bissenden, Ross Surgenor and Roy Haslam will have better hopes than in previous years when they line up their new 375-cubic inch machines against American challengers.

U.S. racers still have an edge in horsepower though, as the limit for supers "down south" is 440 cubic inches. Everything from 1955 Chevies to 1964 Dodges and Pontiacs will be on the track Saturday as time trials start at 7 with racing at 8 p.m.

Soccer Veterans Clash Saturday

Lineups:

Victoria—Don Silcox, Al Thomson, Len Scott, Vic Skinner, Ian Harris, Charlie Mills, Bill Scobbie, Paul Calve, Willie McMillan, Gordie Cameron, Ted Smith, Charlie White, Jack Frampton, Alex Stewart, Alex Bracks, Ron Wallace, Dan McMillan, Alfie Heggen, John Meighan, Wally Milligan, Bob Lindsay (manager).

Vancouver—Sam Owens, Bob Harley, Peter Greenway, Ron Paton, Bob Ross, Bill Campbell, Sam Plov, Andy Kevener, John Murray, Bill Stewart, Bill Palmer, Joe Wilson, Joe Spoma, Bert Moir, Jack McMorrow, Chum Gilmour, Jim Strand, Denis Lynd, Tom Campbell, Jim Brown, John Hamilton, George Bark (manager).

SPORTS WORLD JOINS IN TRIBUTE TO KENNEDY

BUT NOT ALL IS IN HARMONY

Mets Say They Won't Show for Saturday Game

By THE ASSOCIATED

The sports world will join the rest of the United States in paying tribute to slain Senator Robert F. Kennedy this weekend. Some events will be postponed and other delayed.

Affected sports include baseball, thoroughbred and harness racing, boxing, auto racing and power boat racing. But all was not harmonious.

New York Mets balked at playing baseball at all Saturday and said they would not show up for their scheduled game against the Giants in San Francisco.

Three major league baseball games scheduled for Saturday were postponed and none of the others will start until after the funeral. Two Sunday games also were put off. Today's schedule remains intact.

Baseball commissioner William D. Eckert ordered the postponement of Saturday games in Washington and New York and directed that the start of all other contests be delayed until after the burial.

Three games scheduled for the afternoon were changed to night contests. But Chicago Cubs, whose Wrigley Field has no lights, were forced to postpone their game with Atlanta Braves.

The Mets' players took two ballots Thursday and voted unanimously both times not to play Saturday. The Giants had scheduled Saturday as Bat Day, a club promotion, and a crowd of more than 30,000 was expected.

The Mets' front office backed up the players 100 per cent, saying it would take any consequences.

The Giants can insist the game be played and can claim a forefeit if the Mets fail to appear.

Elsewhere, the American Zone Davis Cup tennis final at Charlotte, N.C., between the United States and Ecuador will go on as scheduled. So will the Speedway Open golf tournament at Indianapolis, Ind.

Belmont Park in New York cancelled today's racing program, and wanted to cancel Saturday's card, as well. But the state racing commission would not allow it.

However, eight New York State tracks postponed today's programs. They were Belmont, Finger Lakes Race track, Roosevelt Raceway, Buffalo Raceway, Saratoga Raceway, Vernon Downs, Monticello Raceway and Batavia Downs.

The Emile Griffith-Andy Heilman 12-round middleweight fight at Oakland was postponed from tonight to Tuesday night. The President's Cup Regatta, a Washington D.C., fixture for hydroplanes, has been postponed indefinitely.

All five North American Soccer League matches and two international contests this weekend will be played as scheduled.

FISHING REPORT

North Trout Biting

By STEWART LANG

The fishing action has shifted to the northern end of Vancouver Island for devotees of the fresh-water angling art, while salt-chuck fishermen are finding success at both north and south extremities.

In the Campbell River area, blues have begun to show around the Lighthouse and Butler Point regions. Spring salmon, along with a fair showing of blues, may be found in Frenchman Pool and Duncan Bay.

The lakes in the Campbell River area remain consistently good.

Bates Beach near Courtenay has springs coming in during the evening while blues are best found around the Bell Bouy near Comox and Yellow Rock off the point of Denman Island.

Bamfield area, specifically near Kirby Point, is good for springs and cohoes. Trout returns are slow in the bigger lakes such as Great Central and Sproat. One good spot for fly-fishermen is Elsie Lake.

Cowichan Bay and Tent Island vicinities are excellent for springs and bluebacks and salt-water buffs are very happy with returns off the government wharf.

Upper reaches of the Cowichan River remain good for trout but catches have slowed in lakes of lower elevation. High elevation lakes, such as those in the Nanaimo chain are "okay" and good results have been reported out of Wild Deer Lake.

Shawnigan Lake is the only one in the lower Island area that is producing well for trout fishermen with fish up to 16 inches taken on trolling gear.

Saanich Inlet is the local saltwater hotspot with seemingly, bigger fish near the Goldstream end but greater quantities showing further up the Inlet. Misery Bay and Goldstream Island remain excellent choices.

Jim Rymer caught his limit with 12:11, 13:02, 10:11 and 3½ pounders. George Lohr boated a 21½-pound salmon while Jack Elliot brought back two — 21:07 and 15½ pounds.

Roy Smith won the spring salmon trophy in the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association's derby last Sunday with a 23½-pounder.

Alex Onischuk came second with a 22:04 catch and Vern Palliser, fishing with Smith, came third with a 18:01 spring. Bob Thornton won the coho trophy and Susan Redgrave captured the trophy awarded to junior members.

VSIAA's May Trophy winner was Cec Ashton with a 24:08 pounder. Ann Rendel's 20:04 pound spring brought her the women's trophy while Russel Der was junior winner with a 19:14 pounder.

Ken Smith landed a 20-pounder to take the trophy in the first week of the ladder derby while Ashton was the first week's leader with a 24:08-pounder. Now in its third week, the derby has 30 rungs filled with any salmon of five pounds or over qualifying.

Chinook Club members will be out in force Sunday as the Dr. Hugh Clarke Sportsmen's Derby kicks off at dawn and runs until 2 p.m. Registration fee is $1.00 and available at any of the Saanich Inlet boathouses. Weigh-in stations are at Brentwood Boats, Hall's Boathouse and Angler's Anchorage. Prize presentation is to take place at Angler's soon after the derby ends.

Off the Oak Bay waterfront, springs up to 12 pounds are in the Trial Island vicinity and good results are reported off Discovery Island.

MOE NORMAN

WAKEHAM AT 69

Norman Sets Sizzling Pace

WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (CP)—One time Moe Norman charged a golf course like General Custer's ill-fated 7th Cavalry—lately he's been doing it like the Indians.

The transition started about two years ago when Norman, the charging professional from Gilford, Ont., won practically every major Canadian tournament. He's been grinning like Sitting Bull ever since.

Norman served notice of his continued prowess as the Canadian golf circuit opened here Thursday, shooting a spectacular seven-under-par 64 to take the first round lead in the Ontario Open championship.

"I heard the leader was in with 65, so I had to bear down," said Norman, referring to amateur Peter Hutchison of Hamilton.

Norman sank an eight-foot putt for an eagle three on the first hole and finished the first nine at two-under. He scored a five-under 30 on the back nine. He went over par on two holes, while carding two eagles and five birdies.

Hutchison, 29, caused a mild sensation when he finished with a four-under-par over the final three holes.

PRIZES TOTAL $12,000

The 54-hole medal-play tournament offers $12,000 in prize money to the 94 professionals entered. First prize is $2,000.

A total of 72 amateurs are competing for four berths on the Ontario Willingdon Cup team.

Alvie Thompson of Toronto wound up with a 66.

Eighteen golfers, including three amateurs, managed par or better over the 6,340-yard Pine Valley Golf and Country Club course.

Jerry Magee of Toronto got a 67, Bob Cox of Vancouver and Jack Kay of Toronto both came in with 68, while seven others were grouped at 69.

The group with 69 included amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Mike Leach, Bob Rose and Leon Decaire, all of Toronto, John Henrick of Montreal, Finn Sorenson of Edmonton, and defending champion Bill Wakeham of Victoria.

The championship continued today with the final round scheduled for Saturday. The field will be trimmed to the low 60 scorers and ties after 36 holes.

Regal Jingle Might Make It Happy Day

One of the featured events on the Vancouver racing season takes place Saturday with the third running of the Johnny Longden "6,000".

It will be a stakes race at one mile and 70 yards and will include most of the leading runners at the Exhibition Park meeting.

John Longden, the famed former jockey who still holds the all-time record for career victories, will be in attendance and it could be a gala day for the Longden clan.

One of the top contenders could be the three-year old Regal Jingle, trained by Johnny's son, Vance Longden.

Only last week Regal Jingle took on some of the best and won at six and one-half furlongs.

Probable favorite will be Westbury Road, the defending champion.

Others expected to start include Hemlock Hustler, Some Count, Flying Magic, Red Royal, Major Magic, Royal Esteem, Our Rebate and Haig's Task.

MOLSONS WIN

Carls Can Be Envious Of Lowe's Production

Any other day, perhaps, nine hits would have been ample for a Senior Men's Softball League victory.

But it wasn't enough for Carlings on Thursday. Mainly because of Bob Lowe and Carling's failing in the clutch.

Picking up the tempo from the ring of Lowe's bat, Molsons defeated Carlings 10-2 at Central Park. Lowe cracked out four singles in five trips to the plate, scored two runs and drove in three.

STRANDED 13

Carls envied the production. They collected nine hits and five walks, but couldn't produce until Wade Burns singled in a pair of runs in the final inning. Carlings left 13 runners stranded in the seven-inning game.

Molsons bundled nine of their 12 hits into innings that produced five (in the first) and four (in the fourth) runs.

Naysmith, Todd Give Final a Familiar Look

Shirley Naysmith and Marg Todd provided a familiar look to today's championship playoff for the Victoria City women's golf title.

Meeting in an 18-hole final at Gorge Vale this morning was the same cast that played off a year ago, when Mrs. Naysmith emerged with a 3 and 1 victory over Mrs. Todd at Royal Colwood.

Mrs. Todd, bidding for her 12th championship, advanced to the final by defeating Gorge Vale's Maude Crawford, 5 and 3, Friday.

The margin was the same as Mrs. Naysmith defeated Joan Lawson of Uplands in Friday's other semifinal.

Mrs. Naysmith, four-time winner of the title, fired one of the finest rounds of the week to defeat the medallist. She toured the front nine in two-under-par 37 figures for a six-up lead on Mrs. Lawson, won the 10th and then shrugged off a gallant comeback bid by her Uplands rival. Mrs. Lawson won the 11th, 13th and 14th holes before Mrs. Naysmith shut the door on the 15th.

In the past 10 years, only Ruth McNevin of Nanaimo has managed to put a dent in domination of the tournament.

Late Birdie Run Helps Crampton

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Australian Bruce Crampton rallied with four birdies on the back nine for a four-under-par 68 Thursday and grabbed the first-round lead in the $100,000 Speedway open golf tournament.

Seven players tied for runner-up, at 70, including John Lively who shot a hole-in-one on the 17th.

Billy Casper, the PGA's leading money winner and twice winner of the Speedway, also shot 70 despite a two-stroke penalty on the third hole when his caddy raked the sand trap before Casper shot.

Tied with them were Master's champion Bob Goalby, Speedway defending titlist Frank Beard, Don Fairfield, and a pair of newcomers—Bobby Cole of South Africa and Jim Grant of Connecticut.

There also was a seven-way tie at 71—veteran Sam Snead, R. H. Sikes, Ken Still, Ken Fulton, Mike Hill and Dutch Harrison and Dick Lotz.

Crampton, 32, won his last tournament on the PGA tour in the 1965 Speedway. The tourney is being held at Greentree Country Club that year because the Speedway course was being repaired.

FRONT NINE PAR

Crampton was even par the first nine. Then he birdied the 11th, 13th, 14th and 15th holes.

He just missed a 20-foot downhill putt on the 17th and, despite a shot in the rough and one over the green, still finished with a par four on the 18th.

Bob Lunn, winner of two consecutive tournaments, withdrew because his daughter is in hospital with pneumonia at Atlanta where he won his second straight tournament Sunday.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, the only Canadian entered, had a 39-35—74.

TRUDY PEDEN, BERT NEX HIT UPLANDS ACES

It was a day for aces Thursday at Uplands Golf Club.

Trudy Peden started it off by hitting her tee shot into the cup of the fourth hole for her first ace, which club officials believe is the first hole-in-one ever recorded by a woman on the 203-yard hole.

Bert Nex also bagged his first ace, performing his feat on the 135-yard 16th to give Uplands the rare record of two one-shotters on the same day.

Trudy was playing with Betty Stephenson, Marion Edmison and Marjorie Storrar while Bert was in a foursome with W. Horan, Geroge Ford and Art Mawer.

A Mercury outboard is designed to catch fish.

Not weeds.

The lower unit of a Mercury outboard is streamlined like a fish to go after fish. No protruding nose to catch and hold weeds. And it's built on a slant to slice through instead of getting hung up. Up above, the tilted power-head keeps a Merc running smoothly, whether you're trolling slowly or speeding home with your limit. Mercury's shearproof drive eliminates vulnerable shear or drive pins, gives on impact, then resumes running. It also has full gearshift, remote fuel tank and an all-metal cowl. Mercury's exclusive System of Silence and Jet-Prop exhaust make it the quietest fishing motor ever built. Mercury fishing motors come in 4 sizes: 3.9, 6, 9.8 hp . . . and a new 20 hp with optional electric starting. Eye-catching, fish-catching . . . one of 'em is just right for your kind of fishing. WINNIPEG SEAT

Three Roblin Opponents Fighting Odds

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three candidates admit they are fighting the odds in the constituency of Winnipeg South Centre.

They are the opponents of Duff Roblin, former Manitoba premier and runner-up in the Progressive Conservative leadership race last fall. All acknowledge he went into the June 25 election campaign with an edge because:

—Gordon Churchill, the Conservative who retired and made room for Mr. Roblin, held the seat continuously since 1951 and was never seriously threatened at the polls;

—Mr. Roblin, who was never defeated until the leadership race, is considered a safe cabinet bet if the Conservatives form a government; and —Redistribution gave the constituency affluent Tuxedo from Winnipeg South and Assiniboia from Portage, both seats held by Conservatives in the last Parliament. It also includes Mr. Roblin's provincial constituency of Wolseley.

ROBLIN . . holds edge

THOMPSON . . . outspoken

OSLER . . . newcomer

MARGIN REDUCED

But the former premier saw some of his early margin evaporate with the entry of John McDowell, former Conservative member of the legislature who says Canada cannot afford the free-spending habits of Mr. Roblin. The 73-year-old grain merchant is running as an Independent-Conservative and is considered likely to pick up some old-line Tory votes.

The other two candidates are political newcomers: Liberal E. B. Osler, 48, insurance executive and author, and New Democrat Frances Thompson, 39, a public accountant with a penchant for flying and parachute jumping.

Miss Thompson is one of three NDP women candidates in Manitoba. A pint-sized (five-foot-two, 100 pounds) outspoken extrovert, she sees high taxes, living costs and interest rates as the key issues in the urban constituency whose voters run the spectrum from near-poverty to affluence.

Mr. Olser says the election of Pierre Trudeau as Liberal leader was his prime motivating force in seeking the nomination.

KNOCKS ON DOORS

Following the same format as the other candidates, he is spending most of his time knocking on doors and shaking hands at shopping centres. His primary message is "get the West back in the mainstream" of Canadian affairs. The Prairies elected only one Liberal in 1965.

It is more of a personal thing that got Mr. McDowell into the campaign.

"I think Dalton Camp and Mr. Roblin were part of that great conspiracy that took place in Toronto last fall" when John Diefenbaker was replaced as Conservative leader.

In addition, "I have Mr. Roblin's speeches which he made in Quebec. . . . He was for two Canadas in Quebec and only one Canada now."

Mr. McDowell resigned after 14 years in the Manitoba legislature when Mr. Roblin came to power in 1957. He was defeated in the 1949 federal election.

He says he doesn't need a large campaign organization because "The people are really sore at Mr. Roblin for the high taxes in Manitoba."

SPENT ON ROADS

In his 10 years as premier, Mr. Roblin spent heavily on roads, education and other provincial services and introduced Manitoba's first sales tax a year ago.

Mr. Roblin, who at 50 has nearly 20 years of politics behind him, is emphasizing regional and national issues which include basic tax reform. He says he'll "make it my business to avoid putting Canadians out of business" if elected.

Displaying the same attitude with which he approached all his elections, he says of the campaign: "We're taking nothing for granted and no one for granted."

"This is almost a brand new constituency populated by people who make the country grow—young married with an urban slant. . . . I want to make contact with as many as possible."

He complains the Liberals have developed a "blind spot" toward western problems and "my ambition is to help put the West back on the map."

Defects Group Plans Meeting

About 25 delegates from all over B.C. will gather in Victoria Saturday and Sunday for the annual Speech and Hearing Defects Association general meeting.

In the workshop sessions, lasting from 11:30 a.m. Saturday to 4:30 p.m. Saturday and 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon Sunday, delegates will hear talks by various authorities.

Keynote speaker will be Dr. R. W. Blakeley, speech pathologist at the University of Oregon. He will talk on Normal Speech for the Cleft Palate Child.

Also delivering papers for the meeting will be Dr. Paul Gareau, Dr. Malcolm D. Graham, Dr. Arthur Proctor and Dr. D. E. Styles.

TRUDEAU'S FARM POLICY

Mixed Reaction in Manitoba

Special to the Times

WINNIPEG — Prime Minister Trudeau's long-awaited agriculture policy statement highlighted the federal election campaign in Manitoba during the past week.

Mr. Trudeau's policy statement last Sunday prevented Manitoba from having a completely dull week on the political scene.

The farm policy statement was made by Mr. Trudeau during a short one-hour stopover in Winnipeg to refuel his aircraft on a trip from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

In the surprise announcement, Mr. Trudeau said the government proposed to establish a national grains council, double advance payments on farm-stored grain, make overall authority for marketing of agriculture products a federal responsibility and institute a program to provide grain farmers with a minimum income assurance [illegible] declines in prices or markets.

Mr. Trudeau's announcement received mixed reactions.

Representatives of Manitoba grain elevator companies welcomed the prime minister's statement.

Ken Singleton, president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union expressed concern about the provinces, which have jurisdiction over most farm marketing, would go along with Mr. Trudeau's federal marketing plan.

CRITICIZE ATTITUDE

Other touring election officials in Manitoba during the past week included two Quebec candidates from opposite parties who criticized the prime minister's attitude toward Quebec. The candidates visited the province to support the local candidate in the bilingual riding of St. Boniface.

Roger Regimbal, running for re-election in Argenteuil-Deux montagnes and the national vice-president of the Progressive Conservative party, said Canada would be divided within five years if Mr. Trudeau is elected.

Robert Cliche, New Democratic Party leader in Quebec, said the Quebec separatists wanted Mr. Trudeau to win because it would help their cause.

George Hees, unsuccessful PC leadership candidate and former trade minister under John Diefenbaker, also attacked the prime minister in Winnipeg. He said Canada is on the brink of an economic catastrophe which Mr. Trudeau is incapable of staving off.

And for variety, William Kashtan, leader of the Canadian Communist Party, criticized the two major parties for "evading the question" of American ownership in Canada.

Meanwhile, the individual candidates in the province concentrated on a round of direct personal meetings with voters.

Mainstreeting and door-to-door campaigning is the main tactics of the majority of candidates in the province, at the moment.

Next week, the election campaign with only two weeks to go to the big day moves into high gear in Manitoba with the prime minister returning for another tour along with four cabinet ministers.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield will also visit the province.

Mr. Trudeau will be the focus of attention at rallies in the rural centres of Brandon, Portage la Prairie, Dauphin and Neepawa Tuesday.

Ministers who will be in the province include Paul Hellyer, Mitchell Sharp and Jean Luc Pepin.

With the Liberals holding only one seat out of the 13 in Manitoba, they will be trying exceptionally hard in the next two weeks to gain new ground.

But Mr. Stanfield will try to offset the Liberal hoop-la by making personal appearances in Winnipeg, Dauphin and Minnedosa, next Saturday.

Man Fined $100 For Having Still

A man who pleaded guilty Thursday to possession of a still was fined $100.

RCMP said they found the still in the garage of Stanley Ratcliffe, 710 Donovan.

They said dust indicated it had not been used for some time, but that it was a "working still."

Magistrate Ostler imposed the minimum $100 fine.

EAST-WEST SPLIT AT MAYORS' PARLEY

EDMONTON (CP)—An east-west split among Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities convention delegates broke into the open Thursday, the convention's final day.

It started with a resolution requesting the federal government to study the feasibility of developing and opening the port at Churchill to ship Canadian wheat.

It was introduced by the town of The Pas, Man., but the CFMM resolution committee had recommended its rejection arguing it was purely a regional matter. It was later passed.

TAME ONE!

The Datsun 1600 Sports Convertible is incredibly well-bred. It will purr politely about town forever without a hint of aggressiveness. Or go snarling down a back straight on its way to beating anything in its class. (It won titles all last season at tracks like Westwood, Mosport and Daytona.) It takes its cue from you.

The 1600 has real stamina. The brilliantly engineered, 96 HP overhead valve engine doesn't just perform superbly for the first few thousand miles. When we talk about 100,000 mile reliability, we mean it. Fitted with dual carbs, the plant will move the car 0-60 in 12.1 seconds, and all day at its top speed of 105 m.p.h. Braking is rated as very good by the experts. The front disc/rear drum combination operates from two master cylinders for safety.

And how's this for standard equipment? Collapsible steering column; five bearing crankshaft; four-speed, full synchromesh box; 300 watt alternator with regulator; tachometer; trip recorder; fog lights; racing wheel; radio; clock; two-speed wipers; great heater/defroster; ammeter and oil pressure gauge.

So why settle for less than a thoroughbred. Drive this Datsun 1600 . . . then decide. There's nothing like it at the price.

The Datsun 2000 Sports Convertible is much more than a smart, quick sports car. It is a high performance racing machine. We don't recommend it to inexperienced drivers or, generally, as a woman's car. Even though it is one of the most safe and forgiving tigers on the road, it needs a cool, firm hand and trained reflexes. The 2000 looks similar to the 1600 Sports Convertible. It has the same fine standard equipment, plus roll bar and head rests. But under the hood is 150 HP with overhead cam and Solex carbs. Can you imagine the power to weight ratio?

Another feature is an impeccable 5-speed box. You can cut it into overdrive fifth gear at between 70 and 115 m.p.h. Top speed out of the showroom is 125 m.p.h. As we said, it's a racing machine. One thing you'll notice is the positive feel at high speed. It settles on the track as if it were part of it. The back end never gets light.

A few performance figures. The Datsun 2000 does the SS¼ in 16.0 seconds and 0-50 in 6.4 seconds. It has consistently beaten the best European cars, many of which cost thousands more to buy. So if you want to get up and really go, tame a Datsun 2000 Sports Convertible. You'll become fast friends in the first five minutes.

'We Must Learn From Others' Indian Chiefs Warn Mayors

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

EDMONTON — Canada will become a stronger nation only when native Indians achieve equal rights with "the settlers," 550 community leaders from across Canada were told Thursday.

In the most dramatic moment of the four-day conference of mayors, two Indian chiefs—Chief Dave Courchene, Fort Alexander band, Pine Falls, Manitoba, and Chief Max Gros-Louis of the Hurons of Lorette, Village Des Hurons, Quebec—told the civic leaders to look to home problems before the nation fell apart.

Chief Courchene read the prepared speech in English. Chief Gros-Louis, his black hair in the traditional braid of the Hurons, spoke in French.

"This nation will become much stronger and more unified when we, the native people, achieve equality with you, the settlers," the chiefs said.

"National unity for Canada is vital at this time. We must look at home first to strengthen this nation.

"We are now seeing the greatest nation in the world, the United States, crumbling from inside because it did not look at home first.

'Blood in Streets'

"Their cities are burning, there is blood in the streets and their top politicians are being killed by protesters and radicals. People in that nation are on nationwide television networks calling for violence and bloodshed so that equality of all men will be achieved."

The convention hall fell silent as the two men, voices full of emotion, put into words the thoughts of the delegates who had been markedly depressed since the first news of the shooting of Senator Robert Kennedy.

"We must learn from these other nations," the chiefs said.

"Canada must first look at home. We must have equality of all people in Canada if there is to be a strong, unified Canada.

"We must avoid the errors of the United States and other nations which are having difficulties. We must strive to be stronger, freer and more democratic.

Trends in Canada

"There are trends already in Canada indicating we may fall into the pits of inequality and consequent violence.

"There was the FLQ, there are now new organizations being formed as protest movements because there is not full equality and freedom for all people.

"In the United States there is black power because there is no equality—and it is slowly destroying that nation.

"In Canada there is red power.

"Now we are telling you, the representatives of our towns and cities from across Canada: there is no need for red power. There is no need for hippies and protesters. There is no need for our political leaders to be concerned for their own safety in their own land.

"There is no need for violence, bloodshed and killing.

"We must learn, Canada must learn, from other nations and use that knowledge at home to build a nation of equality for all men, of freedom for all men, of prosperity, security and happiness.

"We must not catch the diseases of other nations in our attempts to achieve this goal."

'We Are Patriots'

The delegates sat awed as the two chiefs summed it up in two powerful paragraphs.

"Yes, we are patriots. This is our country. We have been here for thousands of years.

"We must co-operate, work together without these internal problems we speak of, to build the kind of Canada we see in our dreams."

Chief Courchene and Chief Gros-Louis, his braided hair worn like a badge of honor, stepped from the platform to the thunderous applause of a standing ovation.

And somehow the resolutions on proposed amendments to the National Housing Act had lost their significance.

U.K. Admiral Joins NATO

LONDON (AP)—Britain today named Admiral Sir Nigel Henderson as chairman of the military committee which is the senior body of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Henderson, 59, served mainly in the Mediterranean theatre during the Second World War. He takes up his appointment Oct. 1 succeeding Gen. Baron de Cumont of Belgium.

Cyclist Fined

Court was told the accused was observed driving a motorcycle on Hartland Wednesday. His licence was suspended May 2 after a careless driving charge.

'Let the Computers Figure Out Future'

By Staff Reporter

EDMONTON — Municipalities will need more information than is now available to determine fiscal priorities in the face of escalating expenditures.

The answer lies in a program of nationally organized computer systems analysis for projecting future expenses at the municipal level, Peter Cornell of the Economic Council of Canada told delegates to the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

He warned that financing problems can "escalate beyond manageable proportions" extremely rapidly unless there is careful consideration of likely increases in expenditures and a corresponding determination of spending priorities.

"Too often we have let things creep up on us, doing little about them, until they have reached crisis proportions," he said.

"The current demand for housing and the recent pressure on educational facilities could have been predicted in the early 1950s. Why did we allow ourselves to be taken by surprise, ignoring the changing needs of our society until forced into expensive crash programs?"

He suggested that data gathered in cities across Canada could be co-ordinated for computer analysis, and used to project figures of increased expenditures as far ahead as 1972.

ROGERS PASS

Story Worth Repeating

By ELIZABETH FORBES

ROGERS PASS — In my last column written from this place where snow is rapidly disappearing and yellow slide lilies and violets are beginning to show, I told you that people now travel the Rogers Pass highway all year around and that danger from avalanches and slides now is relatively rare.

The story of how slide activity was tamed has been told before. However, I'd like to give it to you once more, as I heard it here. Because it seems to me that the courage and determination of those who did the taming bears repeating over and over again.

It starts back in the days when first whispers were heard of a highway through the pass.

Forbes

There were those who remembered the Canadian Pacific Railway went through this pass in the 1880's over practically the same route proposed for the new road. Builders at that time relied on snowsheds and rotary plows to handle slides.

They were proved wrong. The railway eventually burrowed underground with its fabulous Connaught Tunnel in 1913-16, to avoid the terrifying snows. And the avalanches continued to tumble down the mountain sides.

The proposed highway would be vulnerable to the same conditions the railway had faced. And it was realized that before it could be built, some plan would have to be evolved to control the slides.

Preliminary step was a survey of avalanche sites and snow activity from research stations set up in the pass. This showed there were more than 70 danger spots.

It was also established that snow settled deeper in certain places because of wind currents and that sudden thaws and battering winds started many of the slides.

Most dangerous were the ones created by great ledges of snow and ice that built up until sheer weight made them break off and tear down into the valleys taking rocks and trees with them.

Another kind was the massive snowball that gathered more snow as it rushed down the mountainside. Still a third was made up of brittle snow that couldn't (or wouldn't) stick to the slopes and slithered down without causing too much harm.

The survey proved a highway could be pushed through the pass. So, a plan of attack on the avalanches was formally set up.

From an observation centre established on Mt. Abbott came the idea of starting high on the mountain sides to stop the snows from tumbling down.

Up on the peaks, natural plateaus were widened and deepened to catch slides close to the break-off point. Lower down heaps of rubble were built up to slow down and break up the snow as it reached these levels.

Snowsheds were planned at road level to carry the snow over the highway. Smartest trick of all was the placing of buffers immediately above the sheds to catapult (or channel) avalanches over the tops of the shelters and out into the valleys beyond.

The plan included prevention as well as cure. This was in a program of deliberate slide making through use of guns that shell and dislodge build-ups of snow before they reach the danger point.

Those on the survey and the development of the attack plan named it "defense in depth". It worked in every detail.

In 1958 surveyors went into the pass to plot the highway route. Builders arrived a year later and in 1962, the road was opened.

Today, people who travel through Rogers Pass and who stop at the colorful monument at the summit to take pictures, very seldom think of the days when a railroad battled great avalanches in the same vicinity.

They do not know that practically under their feet as they stand at the monument, the great Connaught tunnel, winds it way.

Nor do they realize that it was modern day researchers and engineers who harnessed the snow and made it possible for them to travel the highway through the pass even in the middle of winter.

SALARY BID 'EXCESSIVE' —SAANICH

Saanich council will not agree to a salary increase greater than 6.55 per cent for the director of the Capital Region Planning Board, it was announced Thursday.

In a statement authorized by council, Acting Mayor Leslie Passmore said Saanich considers a requested salary increase by regional planner Tony Roberts "excessive."

The subject was considered by a closed meeting of Saanich council Monday night after the regular open council meeting.

Ald. Passmore declined to say what the increase is because it is being considered by the board.

Hearing Near For Hospital

An action by a Victoria private hospital against the city of Victoria is expected to reach the B.C. Supreme Court here this month.

But no date has been set.

Glengarry Private Hospital is seeking redress from the city for alleged underpayment of costs for welfare patients lodged in the hospital.

William Osland, Glengarry administrator, said the hospital is seeking about $12,000 in backdated fees and also hopes to establish a principle.

The B.C. government authorizes the city to pay $245 monthly on behalf of each patient. Glengarry's charge is $275 a month.

PROFESSORS' PREDICTION

Rebellion Spread Seen for Campuses

CALGARY (CP) — Two professors from Simon Fraser University predicted Wednesday the rebellion against the "autocratic university structure" now taking place at the B.C. institution will spread to other Canadian universities.

Faculty and students last week forced Simon Fraser's president into an indefinite leave of absence and are demanding a greater voice in university affairs.

"Students and teachers at universities everywhere are no longer willing to submit meekly to control from the university administrators and rightly demand a place in decisions affecting the university," Gerald Sperling, an associate professor of political science at SFU, said in an interview.

Tom Brose, another SFU political science professor, said the rebellion occurred at SFU first because the Burnaby school is new and has a young faculty. "We don't have an old guard that is firmly entrenched."

Prof. Brose predicted similar demands will be made at all universities across Canada "inevitably, and very soon."

He said students and faculty want a voice, not total power.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Renewal Schemes Risky

By JIM HUME
Time City Hall Reporter

EDMONTON — Financing an urban renewal schem is like bank-rolling a brodway play.

Mayor Victor K. Copps, Hamilton, Ont., told delegates to the 31st annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities that urban renewal programs always skirted on the edge of disaster.

"The profit and the danger make it something like bank-rolling a broadway play," he said. "If you have a hit, there's a lot of profit. If, in the parlance of show business, it lays an egg, you're dead."

Mayor Copps was a member of a four-man panel discussing the side effects of urban renewal projects on municipal councils.

"Urban renewal is dangerous. Big changes, which are really the reason for urban renewal, are always difficult. People do not like change.

"When an urban renewal project changes the character and perhaps the occupants of an area which has been undisturbed for maybe several generations, there is no way this can be done without great difficulty and some danger.

"Urban renewal is dangerous because it is so final.

REDEVELOPMENT

"There is much evidence of the political dangers in some American cities, particularly where valuable commercial properties were acquired, and sites cleared for redevelopment which never occurred, either because the developer took off, expecting a better deal elsewhere, or the municipal corporation acquired a site for redevelopment and then could not find a partner to finance the project.

"There is nothing quite as final as several acres of vacant land in the centre of a city and there have been a number of casualties among mayors and other administrators, victims of these dangers which are inherent in urban renewal."

In answer to a question from Mayor Hugh Stephen, the Hamilton mayor said his city had eliminated many of the problems associated with urban renewal via a special citizens' committee.

"We call it the urban renewal commission," he said. "It is comprised of businessmen, labor leaders, people from education and people from the affected area.

CITY COUNCIL

"We have found that by permitting the citizens to participate in the scheme from its inception that we get much better co-operation from city council and throughout the community."

Following the morning session Mayor Stephen noted that the city of Hamilton operated under the ward system.

"Because of that, and because when you have council members representing various wards, it might be necessary to have some form of overall citizens' committee to eliminate jealousy and suspicion. But I don't think the committee of the type recommended by Mayor Copps is necessary in Victoria. After all, council is still responsible for the ultimate decisions."

Divorce Rate Rises Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial and territorial divorce courts, and Parliament, granted a record 11,156 divorces during 1967, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

It said there were more divorces in New Brunswick, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, than in 1966, and Ontario, B.C., and Alberta accounted for almost four-fifths of the divorces.

The 1967 divorce rate was 54.7 per 100,000 population. This is sharply higher than 51.2 in 1966 and 45.7 in 1965. The rate has been rising steadily since 1961 when it was 36 per 100,000, the lowest since 1944.

British Columbia had 2,734 divorces with a 140.4 rate. In 1966, there were 2,124 divorces with a 113.4 rate in the provice.

H. G. Wells' Kipps has always been a favorite of mine. So I approached the modern musical version of the novel with some anxiety.

The whole thing is dated because Wells was then writing propaganda for poor boys, like himself, who were expected to leave school at 14 and help support the family.

He was angry at being apprenticed to a draper when his teeming brain thirsted for knowledge, and his anger erupted in the little Cockney character, Arthur Kipps, also apprenticed to a draper.

Today, it seems, many have education forced on them whether they want it or not.

Tommy Steele retains the plaintive quality of Kipps, but transforms him into an ebullient song-and-dance comedian who romps his way from rags to riches and back again.

Whatever this Kipps lacks in education, he makes up in bold, brash pantomime and it is hard to believe that one so talented could feel "inferior." With his Cockney verve and 100-watt smiles, he sings and dances from the lowlands to the uplands.

Forgetting the original Kipps, Tommy Steele is a magnificent showman and he is supported by an able cast, sylvan English backgrounds and enough music to fill The Times Concert Hour twice over.

Some of the songs, it is true, are undistinguished and are only lifted from mediocrity by the ingenious arrangements and conductorship of Irwin Kostal.

The bright choreography of Gillian Lynne is also a considerable asset.

As to the story, Half a Sixpence traces the adventures of Arthur Kipps and his sweetheart (Julia Foster) from their childhood in a small country town through the trials and stresses of a love which is symbolized by the half of a silver coin each possesses.

But when Kipps' grandfather dies and leaves him a fortune, he forgets his vow and falls for a beautiful snob (Penelope Horner).

Kipps finds himself immensely wealthy but is befuddled by all the elegant upper-class people who offer him cultural uplift and advice on how to invest his money (to their advantage).

Shallow compared with the novel, but lovely entertainment.

Angry Daly Quits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Veteran broadcaster John Charles Daly has resigned as director of the Voice of America, charging his boss, Leonard H. Marks, with "maladministration" of the parent U.S. information agency.

Daly accused Marks of practicing "executive undercutting" by reassigning members of Daly's staff without consultation while the VOC chief was abroad on a trip. Marks did not refer to the dispute in a letter accepting the resignation, which is effective today.

Daly, a 30-year veteran of the broadcast business, is best known for his tenure as moderator of the television show "What's My Line."

HOW MUCH DO YOU GIVE AND HOW MUCH DO YOU EXPECT?
Values are relative, you can't give a little and get a lot. If your sense of value concerns itself only with the present and ignores the future, then prepare for regrets! The basic cause and reason for differences of values is according to your capacity for giving.
So give the most and expect the best!

The Roar is 'Greasepaint' Taking Off . . . And It Never Lets Down

Produced by Robert Price and Associates
at McPherson Playhouse

Sir	Owen Foran
Cocky	Harry Hill
The Kid	Gini Lefever

Ever swing a bucket of water full circle so fast you didn't spill a drop?

If so, at swinging you're an expert.

Analogously speaking, that's what happened at McPherson Playouse Thursday night.

Anthony Newley's Roar of the Creasepaint is a bucket of water that, in less expert hands, would empty itself quickly.

To dazzle the watchers with speed, sheer vitality and professional acting skill is the only possible way of putting over this material.

LIKE WOW!

The company put together by Robert Price socked it to us like — well, wow!

There is tremendous attack, sustained vitality and unfaltering tempo that keeps the production airborne all the way.

Virtuoso touches are present in the mounting — an imaginative set by Wolfgang Baba, costumes by Dorothy van Wijk, lighting by Mike Vrooman (all University of Victoria Theatre Division personnel) make, this the best looking musical seen on the McPherson stage since its curtain first went up.

CONSTANT LOSER

Harry Hill as every-little-man, the constant loser in the game of life— gulled, cheated, ridiculed, until he throws away the rule book in rebellion — has a Chaplinesque quality.

Within the stylization of the role he finds the raw nerve of humanity and sets up a sympathetic vibration among his auditors.

Vancouver actor Owen Foran is superbly authoritative as the manipulator, the phoney intellectual throwing dust in the eyes of the crowd.

He is an actor who has both range and volume, style and flexibility.

SKILFULLY TIMED

The team play between the two principals is balanced and skilfully timed with Gini Lefever providing an animated busybody blowfly insolence that is like a descant to the reiterated notes of Sir and Cocky.

One of the major factors in the effectiveness of Roar of the Greasepaint is the group of urchins. They are on stage almost all through the show, inject much of the comedy and most of the lfe, and when they are good — as these were — keep one from becoming bored by the repetitiveness of the theme.

Dancers from the Wynne Shaw Studio have been provided with imaginative, piquant, interesting choreography by Canadian dance expert Walter Burgess.

And they not only do it full justice in style, character and verve, but they belt out the choruses and mine effectively with professional flair.

Over-all direction is by Bob Ross of Vancouver's Metro Theatre Centre and musical direction by Bastion Theatre's Marge Adelberg.

The orchestra is satisfactory except on occasions that require some subduing.

Musical numbers are mostly percussive with a rhythmic rather than a melodic appeal, most memorable being the familiar Wondeful Day Like Today, Put it in the Book and Who Can I Turn To.

Of the one or two exceptions to the rapid beat numbers, most impressive is Feeling Good, and this beacuse it was magnificently sung in an all too brief appearance by Dick Wood.

In sum, and to use a different analogy, Roar of the Greasepaint is like a one-string violin — it sounds good because of expert handling although its actual nature is thin and monotonous.

Performances will continue nightly through June 15.

SEEK NEW METHODS, MAYORS ASK

Research on Sewage Disposal Backed

By Staff Reporter

EDMONTON — The federal government will be asked this year to establish a research centre to study methods of sewage disposal.

Delegates attending the 31st annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities unanimously approved the Saanich call for action to find new ways of disposing of sewage and solid wastes,

When presented to the 550 delegates from across Canada the resolution, fathered by Saanich engineer Neville Life, drew no debate.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said he was delighted to receive the full delegate support.

"Two minor changes were made in the wording by the resolutions committee, but they strengthened the resolution," he said following the vote.

The changes called for the inclusion of "solid wastes" in addition to sewage, and for the establishment of a federal government "agency" rather than a separate government department.

If accepted by the federal government a start would be made shortly to establish a research centre charged with bringing sewage and solid waste disposal methods up to date.

In presenting the resolution to the convention Mayor Curtis noted that while great strides had been in other fields, little or anything had changed in sewage disposal methods for the past 100 years.

Delegates also approved a four-city resolution calling for a Canada-wide conference on all aspects of air and water pollution.

The resolution was sponsored by Windsor, Calgary, London and Toronto.

Still on the pollution problem the convention approved a Saskatoon resolution calling for federal and provincial grants or low interest loans to enable municipal governments to carry out needed sewer construction.

But if the delegates were prepared to ACK ANY AND prepared to back any and all resolutions calling for pollution control at the community level, they were not prepared to take a stand at the individual level.

NO TOBACCO VOTE

Toronto asked the convention to endorse a resolutian calling for all tobacco products to be labelled as injurious to health.

The delegates declined.

The Union of British Columbia Municipalities asked support for a call to the federal government to "eliminate, modify or deglamorize all forms of tobacco advertising."

Again the delegates declined to intervene in an area they termed the "individual responsibility."

Many of the resolutions approved by the convention sprang from or were directly concerned with the special report of yearlong technical committee study.

Details of the committee report, presented to the convention Wednesday morning, were revealed in Monday's Times.

Resolutions calling for a complete review of federal-provincial-municiapl fiscal policies, for reciprocal taxation between all levels of government, and for major revisions in property tax formulas were all unanimously approved by the delegates.

The convention also called on the federal government to release more funds for National Housing Act mortgages for residential construction.

Ald. Dave Dailly, Burnaby, couldn't persuade the delegates to go one step further.

In addition to the call for funds, Ald. Dailly asked that a rider be attached to the resolution calling for Central Mortgage and Housing to adopt a "get tough" line with the provinces.

POOR LIAISON

"Housing may be a national crisis," he said. "But it can't be solved unless the municipal governments have a good liaison with the provincial governments. In B.C. we seem to have pretty poor liaison with the provincial government. We get all choked up with red tape.

"I think this convention should go on record and ask the CMHC to prod the provincial governments to live up to their responsibilities."

His move was ruled out of order by the chair.

Damage Minor In Apartment, Shack Fires

Firemen answered three alarms Wednesday.

At 3●44 p.m., fire trucks were called to a brush fire at the north end of Topaz Park. The blaze was quickly extinguished.

At 5:35 p.m., a filed office at the new medical building construction site at Yates and Cook caught fire. Damage was limited to $50.

At 9:14 p.m., firemen were called to the Oxfored Apartemtns, 777 Fort, to extinguish a mattress fire. Damage to bedding and furniture was estimated at $50.

POLICE in Canada illegally obtain evidence to secure the conviction of criminals to protect society, Mr. Justice Ruttan of the B.C. Supreme Court said Thursday in an address to the Canadian Society of Forensic Science. "We do use wiretapping and trespass on private property to pick up evidence without a search warrant," he said.

SPECIAL GUARANTEES EYED IN FEDERAL AREA

CALGARY (CP)—If a federal district is to be created for Canada's capital, guards must be established against too much federal control over Ottawa-Hull residents, a Carleton university professor said Thursday.

Dr. Donald Rowat, in his address to the Canadian Political Science Association annual meeting, said creation of a federal district would require special constitutional guarantees for a local self-government and political rights of the residents.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, JUNE 7, 1968—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

If you happen to have a copy of George Nicholson's definitive and highly readable "Vancouver Island's West Coast" on your shelves, here is a worthy companion piece. It is titled The Queen Charlotte Islands, 1774-1966. In its 340 mapped, illustrated and indexed pages, Kathleen E. Dalzell, of Prince Rupert, sheds much light on northern neighbors about whom most of us know all too little.

Author Dalzell, the daughter of Queen Charlotte Islands pioneers, grew up in the land of tall Haida clansmen, taller spruce, and big everything. She writes with enthusiasm backed by sharp observation, and research conducted with the aid of a Koerner Foundation grant.

Her publisher, Charles M. Adam of Terrace, is also a Q.C. Is. earlybird, with the founding of Port Clements (formerly Graham City) to his credit. He has produced a good-looking book with the help of Evergreen Press.

I could wish the print were slightly larger, and you might as well know at once that the price is a hairy $12.

As a useful and highly readable record, however, it's worth acquiring, and I hope that it will join Mr. Nicholson's hearty chronicle in British Columbia school libraries.

From the white man's first intrusion on this coast, Queen Charlotte Islands place-names have been changed by every trader-explorer who stumbled on the group in its North Pacific isolation. But the landmasses themselves are now firmly pinned down as Graham, from whose northerly elevations the not-so-distant Alaska peaks stand plain, and Moresby to the south, with Hakai passage between.

These are the two great islands of an extensive archepelago. They offer white-sand beaches, mountains, some of the world's most awesome timber stands, and superlatively good fishing.

This is also the land of the Haida, whose Raven and Eagle clans once made legend as the Vikings of the coast.

Mrs. Dalzell tells us much about them, their totems and their enormous houses, and their chiefs who befriended the white intruder oftener than they turned upon him.

I am especially grateful for her chapter on the Haida canoe, product of a race of superb boatmen.

She tells how the shaped and hollowed cedar-log was steamed to pliability by pouring water into its interior, then adding heated stones and covering all with cedar mats.

"At the right moment," she tells us, "when the body of the canoe was steamed through and had become flexible, the man in charge gave the signal: 'Now!'

"Then eight men grabbed the gunwales and pulled gradually and carefully on either side. Before your very eyes, the sides would come out to the proper beam desired, and the big hump in the centre would disappear, leaving the canoe in beautiful, symmetric design."

Many an oldtimer figures in Mrs. Dalzell's book, It is, in fact, a history of those who came, stayed or departed since the 18th century traders for sea otter pelts made their rich hauls.

Here's 'Father' Hogan, the Irish Anglican missionary red of hair and beard, who came to Masset in 1908, and was loved by the Haida as no white man before him.

"Beware of his handshake!" the whispered word spread; but in later years, his friends were to fulfil his final wish.

"Let me lie forever with my Haida braves," he asked. And so he does, at Old Massett, in a casket fashioned by Haida hands.

There's much of legend, much a history in Mrs. Dalzell's pages, and any amount of tale-spinning. Her knowledge of the Islanders is plainly encyclopedic.

Not the least of the author's handiwork is a map on which the ancient Haida villages and campsites are listed. They are fewer now, and the whites more numerous. But it will be a long time still before the Queen Charlottes are overcrowded.

BISHOP BACKS MODERN DRESS

Bishop Remi De Roo, head of the Roman Catholic Church on Vancouver Island, said today he is all in favor of nuns experimenting with modern forms of dress.

Thirteen Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary on Vancouver Island have adopted modern dress. And their right to do so was confirmed today by a special pontifical commission in Washington, D.C.

Because of a dispute on dress and custom within the 600-member order, the commission ordered the nuns to divide into two communities — one modern, the other conservative.

"This means Sisters of the Order on Vancouver Island have the right to associate themselves with either the progressive or conservative communities," Bishop De Roo said.

EXPERIMENTAL

"But they have already adopted modern dress on an experimental basis."

Nuns teaching at three schools operated by the Order in Victoria (Sacred Heart), Tsatlip and Tofino have worn ordinary civilian clothes for more than a year.

Bishop De Roo said he considered the ruling of the pontifical commission a wise one.

"The concept of renewal in religious life in the order was so divergent among some of the sisters they could never reconcile their differences in one community.

'SMALL MINORITY'

"The conservative group is actually a small minority, but is not permitted to function as a separate community."

Bishop De Roo said he had authorized experiments in modern dress among the nuns of Vancouver Island as part of a renewal of religious life.

The pontifical commission was appointed last April following a dispute between Cardinal James Francis McIntyre and the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary.

The dispute was whether the Sisters could wear ordinary street dress; drop mandatory worship services and engage in work other than teaching.

The commission ignored Cardinal McIntyre's role in the dispute and characterizes it as a split within the community.

So they ordered the community to divide.

One has the right to experiment and come to "definitive" decisions about their way of life.

The other will return to the order's former tradition of dress and conduct.

Bishop De Roo said the dispute become a national issue among Roman Catholics in the U.S. because many regarded it as a test case.

Four Charged In Forced Haircutting

Four Salt Spring Island men have been charged with common assault in a hair-cutting "attack" on the island, RCMP said today.

The charges were laid after four youths told police some men had forcibly cut their hippy-style hair during the night of May 31 and morning of June 1.

Charged are Brian Percy Beech, John Lawrence Quesnel and Gilbert Moise Narcotte, all of Ganges, and Mervin Douglas Walde of Fulford Harbour. All are in their 20s.

Three of the boys were attacked in their cabin near St. Mary's Lake, and the other one had been forced from his car and had his hair cut earlier, police said.

Arraignment was to be later today.

SCHOOL BOARD FROWNS ON GRADUATION PARTIES

'Recognition' Tonight, Awards Next Week

By DON VIPOND

It's a special Friday night for 1,223 young men and women in Greater Victoria.

"Recognition" ceremonies will be held in each of the school districts five senior secondary schools for graduating classes.

Programs include music, a speaker, introduction of students, valedictorians and tributes from school board representatives.

But much of the hustle and bustle surrounding this landmark precedes the event as graduates turn out in new suits and dresses.

The school board terms the events recognition ceremonies because many students will not know wherher they graduate until department of education exam results become available towards the end of July.

Next week each of the schools will hold an Awards Day to honor students who have excelled. At Victoria High it will be Wednesday, at Esquimalt Senior and Mount Douglas Thursday and at Mount View and Oak Bay Senior, Friday.

Likely the Greater Victoria school board had vandalism at Courtenay in mind following a recent high school graduation celebration when it sent a letter to parents this week.

"The school board does not favor pre-graduation or post-graduation parties," the letter says. "The former, usually breakfast parties, provide an unsettling beginning for the arduous day ahead: the latter, especially when held in public places and on a large scale, may lead to undesirable developments. Both tend to relegate the ceremony at the school to a position of secondary importance."

Recognition ceremonies will conclude in the schools, the letter says, and what happens after that will be parental responsibility.

"Graduation can be a rich and impressive experience for the participants; but this can be achieved only if the students, the home and the school co-operate to make it so."

School board chairman Peter Bunn will be speaker at Victoria high school. Other speakers: Mayor Bryant at Esquimalt high school; William Reid, assistant superintendent of education, at Mount View; Uvic history professor Alfred Loft at Oak Bay and A. G. Coning, manager of the Mayfair shopping plaza, at Mount Douglas.

Students' Raid on Teachers' Cars Backfires

Pranksters from the graduating class at Esquimalt senior secondary school jeopardized their recognition ceremony scheduled for tonight with a raid on teachers' cars early Thursday.

At least 15 cars had tires deflated. In some cases the wheel nuts were loosened.

The cars were tampered with while parked at the teachers' homes in the early hours of Thursday morning. In one case, a neighbor's car had tires deflated in what was apparently a case of mistaken identity.

The wife of one teacher ruined a $30 tire when she drove her car before noticing the flat.

In some cases the air was let out of all four tires. In other instances only one was deflated. None of the autos was otherwise damaged.

18 DAYS TO GO

'Give Money Directly To University'

Liberal candidate David Anderson criticized the Pearson government Thursday for distributing money earmarked for higher education to the provinces instead of directly to the universities.

Speaking to 45 persons, many from Uvic, at a coffee party in the Mt. Tolmie area, the Esquimalt-Saanich candidate also said federal aid to universities should be increased.

"It is ridiculous for one of Canada's most important natural resources, its human resources, to be under-utilized."

He said the solution lies in close federal-provincial cooperation.

"The federal government is not responsible for education, nor should it be. However, if the federal government makes money available for capital construction or for research, it should go to the universities and not to the provinces, which may be tempted to use this money for some other purpose.

"The problem is too urgent and the stakes too high for bickering over jurisdiction. We must tackle this problem together," Mr. Anderson said.

At the start of the campaigning there was a fuss over political signs appearing on lawns.

The fuss ended when a homeowner won a test case back east and it was obvious local bylaws would be unenforceable if taken to the courts.

So far so good. But why has there never been a fuss about real estate signs and construction company signs which have sprouted for years on front lawns?

A city hall official says, "Come to think of it, I don't know. The bylaw states there shall be no commercial signs in residential areas."

Another inconsistency — B.C. Hydro often warns residents about the danger in tacking or stapling signs on power line poles. (Workmen climbing poles often tear their legs on the tacks.)

Then how come returning officers are allowed to post voters' lists on the poles?

A Hydro spokesman says the lists aren't supposed to go on poles either.

"But there are only a few of them. They are easily controlled. They are there for only a short time. We don't make any exceptions but we don't make an issue of this."

Mollard Retires At End of Year

Ald. C. W. Mollard will resign from Central Saanich council at the end of the year.

In a letter to coucil, the alderman who is head of the waterworks committee, said he is retiring in mid-term for health reasons.

He is serving his third term.

Driver Fined $100

Frederick Stevenot, 1219 Johnson, was fined $100 today for driving while his licence was suspended.

Court was told he was observed driving on Harriet Road Dec. 12. His licence was suspended in January of 1967.

$500 FINES SLAPPED ON PITLAMPERS

Two Nanaimo district men have been fined $500 each for pitlamp hunting of deer near Youbou.

George Brian Wallace, 20, of RR 1, Nanaimo, und Michael Allen Lazare, 19, of RR 2, Nanaimo, pleaded guilty.

Conservation officers and RCMP seized a shotgun, a flashlight, a knife and two deer carcasses in the car of the men.

Pitlamping is the illegal hunting of deer at night with a light.

Three City Hospitals Involved

More than 4,000 registered nurses at 61 British Columbia hospitals will cast ballots in a government-supervised strike vote one week from today.

Three Victoria hospitals are affected by the dispute — Royal Jubilee, St. Joseph's and Gorge Road.

The nurses voted earlier by an 81 per cent margin to reject a unanimous conciliation board report which recommended pay raises of between 21.8 per cent and 27.4 per cent in an 18-month contract.

Nurses currently earn $390 a month to start rising to $466 after four years. The conciliation report, accepted by the hospitals, would have lifted this to $475 rising to $593.75 after five years in the second increase effective July 1.

UP TO $841

Before negotiations, the nurses sought $600 a month to start increasing to $841 after five years.

A statement by the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. said that as professional workers, nurses are demanding "salaries that reflect their education, skill and responsibility."

It said that "existing salary inequities within the health field place the professional registered nurse in an intolerable position."

A sanitary inspector in Vancouver earned more than a public health nurse with a master's degree in the same city, the statement said.

A floor cleaner or window cleaner in a hospital at present earns more than a registered nurse beginning her career, it added.

Questioned on this point, an association spokesman said a floor cleaner in the Vancouver General earned $392 a month last year, or $2 more than the starting registered nurse.

"In the area of direct patient care, an orderly with no formal training whatsoever who gives only simple nursing care under the supervision of a registered nurse earns $50 a month more than the nurse on the starting rate," the association said.

Acceptance of the conciliation report would have meant the nurse moving only a few dollars ahead of the orderly, it added.

Ask The Times

Q. What is the number of gallons of water required for a family of three, including gardening requirements, per day? T.P.

A. The city water works department estimates an average water consumption of 200 gallons per person per day—but this includes industrial and other uses. They estimate a family of three would use about 3,115 gallons of water in a month, breaking down to approximately 103.8 gallons per day. The department stresses that this is only an estimate, however, and suggests the only way to tell how much water such a family would use is to check the water bill.

Q. I have heard political candidates speaking on various topics at great length. Is there any record length for a political speech? L.M.

A. The longest recorded political speech is one of 29 hours 5 minutes by Gerard O'Donnell in Kingston-upon-Hull, Yorkshire, on June 23 and 24, 1959.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

GEORGE BURNHAM
. . . 'fight the good fight'

He'll Salute Flag Chosen By Plebiscite

By ERIC MAURICE

George Burnham is the flag man in this election. The candidate in Victoria is obsessed with the idea of restoring the Red Ensign as our national flag.

What about the candidates? Why are they running? What do they stand for? What are their objectives?

The Times assigned a new staffer, Eric Maurice, to take a fresh look at the Greater Victoria hopefuls in the June 25 federal election.

The interviews appear daily, Victoria candidates first. This is the fourth.

He claims the Canadian maple leaf flag was stolen from Peru. (The Peruvian flag has narrow red bars on both ends of a white centrepiece. The bars are narrower than on our flag).

The white centre portion of the Peruvian flag was removed and doubled in size and "a so-called leaf, representing a maple leaf", was added, he claims in a public — but not legal — indictment of former Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Burnham admitted that the maple leaf flag had been duly authorized under Canadian law, but said it is not legal "under international law."

international law on three

He claims Canada violated grounds: "1. The Berne Convention of 1886. 2. It is a crime to infringe on the copyright of another. 3. Trespass on other people's property is illegal."

"The Red Ensign was bought and paid for (with Canadian lives during the first World War)—it is ours by Divine Right and will be forever. Fight the good fight now," the old veteran urged.

Mr. Burnham wants a new Canadian flag to be chosen by plebiscite, and until then, he wants the Red Ensign retained.

"I want the people of Canada to adopt a national flag that is real, but I love a maple leaf as good as anybody if the people choose it."

Other planks in the Burnham platform include a return to the wartime Defence of the Realm Act—"to restore the power that we had in wartime so we can use it in peacetime"—and military training for all students for the defence of Canada.

He wants to stop the loss of our money which he said is draining into the United States, but how does he intend to do it?

HE HAS SECRET

"That's a secret I don't want to divulge at the present time."

He said if Canada takes the lead in keeping its money at home, other countries would follow suit.

"The United States would follow our example."

He wants to reopen the shipyards, renew our merchant marine, have housing supplied in all municipalities as required and grant all Canadians "first class" citizenship, with language no barrier.

CUT RENTS

Rental rates for housing should be reduced, he said.

"High rent never should have been allowed in the first place."

If elected, he said he would present his credentials and offer his services to whoever forms the government.

"I don't believe in party . . . I want concrete results."

Mr. Burnham emigrated from Yorkshire in 1920. He served on the Jordan River Chamber of Commerce 20 years ago, and has since worked with the New Westminster Board of Trade.

He has been in Canada for 47 years and said "I have worked for charity all my life."

'WE'RE HOPING'

Student-Run Shop Opens Wednesday

By DERYK THOMPSON

Frances Morgan and Anne Milner are hoping for a busy tourist season in Victoria this summer.

The girls, aged 19 and 20, are both University of Victoria students and are opening a tourist shop on the site of a local rent-a-car agency on the corner of Douglas and Humdoldt.

Agency proprietor Jack Hawthorne has put up a small building for them to use and is giving them a free hand to run the new business as they see fit.

His idea, explain the girls, is to have Uvic students operate the project during the summer months and thereby create jobs for those who otherwise would be out of work.

SELL SOUVENIRS

The store, which is called the "University Student Gift Shop" will be officially opened at 2 p.m. Wednesday by Dean Robert Wallace, acting president of the university.

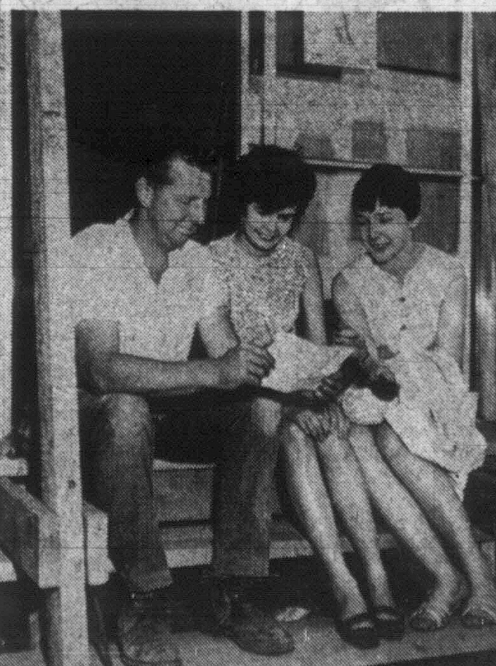
The girls plan to sell local souvenirs made in the city such as ceramics, pottery, jewelry and painting. They are now gathering stock, mostly on a consignment basis as they have no operating capital to begin the business.

Local artists will supply work to the girls to be sold on a two-thirds for the artist and one-third for the girls agreement.

All the work in managing and running the store will be left completely to the girls.

"We're hoping to do well," they chimed in the Times office Tuesday. "A lot of business will come our way from the ferry traffic on the Causeway and from the Empress Hotel."

Other similar stores in town will have goods displayed either for sale or advertising. The girls stressed that students or other Victorians with goods for sale need only get in touch and they'd be happy to sell them.



CHATTING OVER PLANS for nearly completed tourist store are carpenter Jim Vye, Frances Morgan and Anne Milner. The girls, both Uvic students, are opening their new curio shop June 12 on the site of a car-rental firm near the Empress Hotel. Firm manager Jim Hawthorne thought up job and supplied store to give work to students. Girls hope to make enough money to travel to Europe next summer.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Looking for Cheese? This Shop Has Lots

By PENNY SAVER

"Say Cheese" became more than just a photographer's catch phrase when I entered a shop the other day. They have cheese, cheese and more cheese—more than 130 different varieties. Their cheese comes from all the countries of the world in an infinity of shapes, sizes and colors. Cheese comes in huge wax-covered wheels, plastic bags, flat wooden boxes—even metal tins. I wandered along the refrigerated display case, wondering which new and different kind of cheese would be sure to bring a smile to the collective face of my family when I spotted a cheese I was sure I have never seen before. It stood in whitish blocks amid a sea of liquid. Looking to the label for some illumination, I learned that this was known as Bulgarian Feta and that it was $1.25 a pound.

At this point I gained a guide through the confusing maze of cheese. He informed me that Bulgarian Feta was a form of the familiar cottage cheese. It is, however, much, much more salty than we are accustomed to here and it is left in a solid lump instead of sliced into chunks and creamed. But would my family like it? I decided not to take the chance quite yet.

Down further in the case was another cousin to cottage cheese, Made in Italy, this is a cheese known as Ricotta Picerine. It is not as salty as the Bulgarian Feta but is also made into blocks that can be sliced. It is $1.19 a pound. This wasn't quite my family's style either so I asked my guide to show me more.

Made From Sheep's Milk in Poland

There were cheeses made from sheep's milk, such as bryndza from Poland ($1.29 a pound) which is soft and melts like sour cream on potatoes or steak. English cheeses of every description lined one shelf.

From Norway comes pure goat's milk cheese at $1.39 a pound and gamelost ($1.29 a pound) a strangely dry, brown cheese which is made by the mountain people of that country.

The French cheeses included brie ($1.10 a half pound) which is a cheese so soft it is liquid at room temperature. This cheese makes a wonderful dip for crackers. At the same price were soft French cheeses cured in cherry or walnut wine. There were so many intriguing varieties that I found it almost impossible to choose just one or two.

If you love cheese fondue but hate to make it try a ready-made fondue from Switzerland. a 14-ounce can is $1.49. Just heat and eat. I had no doubts about buying a can of this for my next party.

It isn't cheese, but I found myself buying a morcel of halvah. Halvah is a paste of sesame, vegetable oils, egg albumen and a few other ingredients. It is known as "Jewish candy" and after tasting a bit I knew why. It is delicious. It also comes with chocolate flavor added and marble halvah has chunks of chocolate mixed into the paste. It is 99 cents a pound. Halvah makes a delicious spread on toast or crackers and the manufacturer suggests trying it as a flavoring in cookies as well.

Halvah is just one of the many unusual delicacies that join the cheeses in this shop. If you would like to know where it is found, please call me at 382-3131.

COOKING CAN BE FUN By Mary Moore

Try Rhubarb Pudding With Pineapple

Moore

After walking more than a mile to find the freshest rosiest rhubarb I made a rhubarb pudding for five people.

It was so seasonable and so easy and so exactly right (for two of our guests were from Bermuda and had not tasted any rhubarb for a year) that I quickly decided to include it here.

RHUBARB BATTER PUDDING (serves 5)

Fruit Base:

Four cups chopped pink rhubarb, ¾ cup finely chopped raw pineapple (or use 5 cups rhubarb and omit pineapple), 1 cup granulated sugar (first amount).

Batter:

One cup stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar (second amount), 2 tablespoons margarine, ½ cup water, 1 tablespoon sugar (third amount).

Set oven at 350 deg. Fahr. before starting to wash and chop rhubarb and pineapple. [illegible] two fruits (or rhubarb if it only is used) and tip into large buttered baking dish which may be carried to the table. Sprinkle with one cup sugar and put in the oven to warm it through while you make the easy . . .

Batter: Sift together into medium mixing bowl the flour, baking powder, salt and two tablespoons sugar.

With pastry blender cut in margarine until size of small peas. Stir in water only enough to mix in.

Remove baking dish containing warmed fruit from oven, give it a few stirs to mix in sugar and spoon batter sort of unevenly over top.

Sprinkle top with one tablespoon granulated sugar. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about one hour, until bubbling around edges. Test batter at very centre to be sure it is baked.

NOTE: 1) If you use tender young pink rhubarb there is no chance of it not being cooked but later on when rhubarb is coarser, chop it finer and be sure it is tender before removing from oven. I served ours with cereal cream but two of our guests preferred it without. Pretty and juicy.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. I have been doing hip and waist reducing exercise for a month but have not lost an inch in these measurements. What can be wrong?

A. You did not tell me what your height or weight are. Therefore I cannot advise you definitely. I can only guess. I guess that you are doing one of two things. Perhaps you are overweight but are not cutting down on your food intake. You can speed the loss in measurements with exercise, but if you are much overweight you will have to add calorie counting in order to achieve any startling results.

Lowman

If this is not the case, then perhaps you are shooting for impossible goals. When measurements are influenced more by bony structure and musculature than by fatty deposits exercise will not reduce. Maybe you just do not have any accumulation of fat. Out of proportion measurements may be due to bony structure.

Also, you did not say how regularly you do the exercises. This makes a big difference!

Q. I have very thin arms and am so embarrassed because of them. What can I do to make them fuller?

A. If you are underweight, a gain in poundage will help. Also, this is the season for outdoor sports. Swimming and tennis and badminton and golf all develop contour in the arms. Indulge in at least one of them for fun and health and arm beautification. Also do this exercise faithfully.

Stand tall. Clench your fists hard as you bend your elbows and pull them down close to your sides, palms toward the ceiling. Back of wrists should be just above the hip bones. Now stretch your arms sidewards, shoulder-height, and palms toward the floor. Again clench the fists, bend the elbows and continue.

Q. I am 14½ years old and only five feet and one inch tall. Most of my family members are short. Is there any way I can increase my height?

A. The question of height is largely hereditary. However, the average height has increased from one generation to another for some time, probably because of better nutrition.

In your case there is still time to grow taller. You probably have not yet reached your full height. Also, you can increase your height by improving your posture if it isn't all it should be.

DEAR ABBY . . .

He Resents Wife's Soldier Pen Pal

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last November I saw a piece in your column about what the boys in Vietnam wanted for Christmas, and one lonely soldier said he wanted mail. Well I wrote to him, and we started up a correspondence. He is only 20 year old. I have a son about his age, as well as other children.

This lonely solider wrote many wonderful letters and he even sent pictures of himself. I wrote to him and sent some packages. My children feel like they know him. At first my husband was all for it. But here is the problem.

My husband is jealous of this kid. I am 35 years old and I think of this boy as a "son." I even start my letters to him "DEAR SON." And he writes "Dear Mom" to me. (His own mother is dead, and he has had a rough life.)

I told my husband there was nothing between us, but he says he wants me to quit writing. Abby, I can't let this boy down now. I even invited him to visit us when he gets out in June.

My husband won't listen to me. He says he doesn't want any more mail going between us and to tell the kid he isn't welcome here. I would like your advice on this matter. If something were to happen to this boy I would always think it was my fault.

MIDWEST MOM

DEAR MOM: I think your husband is wrong, immature and evil-minded, but that's another problem. Don't defy him, however, but do try to get someone to show him the kinks in his thinking, and implore him change his mind. Of course with your husband's present attitude, you cannot allow the boy to visit you.

DEAR ABBY: You were so right when you told that woman that she could report the driving ability of someone she knows to be a menace on the streets, but you couldn't guarantee that she would get results.

About 10 years ago I reported my grandfather who was about to apply for a renewal of his driver's licence. I suggested that he be carefully tested because he had no right to be driving a car. To prove that I wasn't some crank, I even signed my name.

Nothing was done about it. I didn't even receive a courteous reply to my letter. My grandfather resumed driving.

Now a few facts about grandfather: He was so blind he couldn't read a newspaper without a magnifying glass. (This, in addition to his reading glasses!) He boasted that he never signalled for anything. In fact, when other drivers signalled he would bet on their doing exactly the opposite, and would act accordingly, and he was usually right. His wife used to laugh over the "amusing" incidents relating to Grandfather's poor driving — such as the store owners who reserved special parking places for him, where his slam-bang driving wouldn't cause too much damage to the other cars. There were other incidents involving property damage, knocking over stop signs, fire hydrants, etc.

In retrospect, I am thankful that nothing more serious resulted from Grandfather's notorious driving. Now I pray that there are no well-meaning "Grandpas" charging through our town when my children come home from school.

NO NAME, PLEASE.

DEAR ABBY: Please print my letter. It might keep some other girl from making the same mistake I made.

I went with a boy all semester. The only place he ever took me was out to park. He told me he loved me, and I flipped for him, but when it came time to ask a girl to the prom he asked another girl. I felt so hurt I wanted to die.

When my girl friend asked him how come he didn't ask me, he said, "Oh, she's okay for a make-out, but a guy likes to be seen in public with a girl he respects."

LEARNED A LESSON

Graduation Day Brings Memories Of Agonizing Social Experience

By ELIZABETH BENNETT

I see that the school board has publicly announced that it does not sanction graduation parties.

School board chairman Peter Bunn has gone on record as saying that graduation parties sometimes lead to "undesirable developments."

He is absolutely right. Why, my own graduation (one of the last of its kind performed in Victoria high schools) was a flop because of the undesirable discovery that I couldn't dance in a formal gown.

I know there are hundreds of young, romantic girls in this city for whom this is the worst news of the year.

Graduation to the Canadian female takes the place of the legendary "High School Prom" that figures so largely in the book and magazines she has avidly read since she was 10.

BALLROOM BALLERINA

I know just how you feel girls. I, too, have dreamed of circling the floor in the arms of my beau, soaking up the admiring stares of classmates who never before noticed my existence.

But let me tell you how it really happened.

First off, the girls of the graduating class met in October to decide what they would wear. Excitement rose as we hotly argued the two points of controversy — color and length.

White or pastel? White, urged the sponsoring teacher, looks best in the class picture. White, I cried with unusual fervor, makes me look like Dracula's daughter. But teacher and those olive-skinned Latins won over us pale Slavs. White carred the day.

With the presentiment that my prospective beauty was already ruined I entered hotly into the discussion of length. Imagine! Some of those visionless girls actually wanted to wear short (at that time knee-length) dresses.

Again I suspect the teacher of undue interference. Despite the fact that the longs obviously had it over the shorts by a huge margin, this phase of the contest was declared a draw and length was left to our individual discretion.

Just for the record I must tell you that at the actual ceremony longs had it three rows to one, but the short-skirted girls were seated (by the teachers) in front.

PREPARATION BEGINS

With such an early start I had a lot of time for dreaming before the actual night. I indulged in a professional shampoo and set — even though I knew that my hair was much too long for the glamorous look of the year.

I dressed with care (using all the tips from my favorite girls' magazine) and even did things with makeup in the hopes it would mitigate the deadly effects of white. It didn't.

When my corsage arrived — late and in a taxi because the florist forgot — I shot straight into the seventh circle of heaven.

It was a real orchid, just the color of my jewelry.

By the time the business of the ceremony was over I was exhausted. We had to stand, wilting, in stuffy hallway as the parents and escorts took their seats, then we stumbled ungracefully through the close-set rows to sit through an hour and a half of hot lights and boring speeches.

I stumbled off the stage to discover that my escort was even more exhausted than I.

Neither of us wanted to dance. The band, chosen by the teachers, was at least 10 years out of date and impossible to listen to.

Besides, I just couldn't get the hang of that glamorous, floor-length gown.

The best part of the whole evening was walking home under the curious stares of motorists, taking down my hair and giving my scalp a good scratch.

I didn't even bother to keep the orchid.

BOY! WHAT A TOWN!

Three American tourists had the surprise of their life, Thursday, when they enjoyed lunch, complete with cocktails, on the house. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sauber of San Francisco and Miss Lois Olmsted, who lives south of Los Angeles, were ambling along the lower floor of the Empress Hotel in search of a coffee shop. Attracted by the delicious aroma of cooking omelettes, they entered the Princess Louise Room to be greeted by a genial host who insisted they have a cocktail before eating a superb meal cooked by New York chef Rudolph Stanish. It was only when everyone refused to take their money that they realized they'd gate-crashed a press party, hosted by the British Columbia Egg Marketing Board.

HEARING RESTORED AFTER OPERATION

Actress Discovers Sound

By MERYLE SECREST

WASHINGTON — Nanette Fabray was once so deaf that she could sit beside a telephone and not hear it ringing unless she wore a hearing aid.

Then, a year ago, she had an operation which has restored the hearing in one ear.

"I came out of the operation in this blind rage," said the actress, singer and dancer. She has been deaf all her life but only discovered the problem when she was in her early twenties.

"Somebody was making this terrible noise that was driving me out of my mind, and it never once occurred to me that I was hearing . . .

"That overwhelming sound I heard was the sheet rubbing against the bandage on my ear."

Nanette Fabray is still not altogether used to the blare of civilization, but she is more accustomed to it now than she was at first.

"A good example is to imagine sitting in a dark room for a month and then going out into the sun. It would blind you; you couldn't cope.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

"It was the same thing for me. The slightest sound disturbed me. I couldn't sleep for three months. One morning I was pouring a bowl of cornflakes and clutched my ear because the noise hurt too much."

Her intense interest in the little-understood problems of the deaf has made her something of a spokesman in the field.

She spends hours of her month lecturing, attending classes, going to meetings and conventions and answering the hundreds of letters she gets from the deaf or their friends.

She was in Washington recently narrating a film which is being made by the National Association of Hearing and Speech Agencies to recruit more people to teach and research in the field and train the deaf to live with their handicap.

Its tentative title is "Breaking the Sound Barrier."

Among other things, the film shows a relatively new screening process by which deafness can be detected in very young children.

"Can you imagine, there are children who are considered mentally retarded who aren't at all . . . who just don't hear?" said Miss Fabray, with understandable indignation.

She did not know she was deaf either, as a child. She simply thought she was stupid because other people passed exams in school . . . and she didn't.

She continued that the sooner deafness is detected in the child, the more chance there is of helping him to lead a normal life. The concept of speech is almost impossibly difficult to communicate to a youngster who has never heard sound, she said.

Nanette Fabray, once deaf, now works for the hearing handicapped.

"It's like giving a crayon to a blind child and telling him to draw a tree. You make these mouthing faces at a deaf child," she said, demonstrating, "and somehow make him understand that he has to make noises he can never hear."

As a relative newcomer to the world of sound, Miss Fabray is just as concerned about people who are subjected to incessant noise.

She believes that too little is known about the physical and emotional effects of constant noise on city dwellers, and factory workers, as well as people who work near and under planes.

"Studies being done now indicate that kids who are working with rock and roll music can suffer permanent ear damage," she said.

Miss Fabray lives near Los Angeles, Calif., with her husband, Ronald MacDougall, to whom she has been married for 11 years. They have a son, Jamie, aged 9, and she has three grown stepchildren.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

KEEP COOL WHEN IT'S HOT

When the thermometer is quivering around 90 degrees and you're about to reach the boiling point, simmer down and take this cool view of the situation:

TOO "CLOTHES" FOR COMFORT . . . Would you believe those Sheiks of Araby didn't wear layers of clothing just to be dashing? Rumored: More material insulated you from the heat . . . In any case, the looser your clothes, the more ventilation. Take the Sheiks' hue cue and choose white and light colors for coolness.

BE A COOL-HEADED BEAUTY . . . More hair adds up to more heat. Cut yours short . . . tie it back . . . pin it up. In the sun, wear a hat to save face (and hair) and cast a flattering bit of shadow, too.

MAKE-DOWN TO TAKE DOWN TEMPERATURES . . . Put false lashes, glossy blushers and heavy foundations into cold storage for the duration. Instead, sport a light coat of tan, a smidge of airy base, a fluff of powder plus some appropriate eye highlighting. Tinted lip gloss helps create a luscious summer look and a dark pomade on lashes could easily take over for mascara.

"HOT" TIPS ON COOL TRICKS . . . Don't laugh at those Victorian ladies with their smelling salts. Follow their lead and lean on this old-fashioned treatment when you're too weary to take one step more.

Another cool trick is to soak a bit of cotton in iced cologne and lavish it on back of neck, wrists and temples.

THE WATER CURE . . . A sure-fire way to "cool it" is to stand in a few inches of tepid water in your bathtub. Follow this refresher with a splash of iced cologne. When a shower seems like your salvation, dial W for warm — not hot — water and you'll feel cooler-longer when you emerge.

MOOD FOOD . . . To beat the heat, don't count on chili to make you chilly. Best bet: Fresh, crispy vegetable salads enriched with turkey, ham and-or cheese slivers and a vinaigrette dressing (splash vinegar with twice as much oil and spark with fresh herbs).

Another winner: Fresh fruit salad and cottage cheese, 'dressed' glamorously with honey-thinned yoghurt, a scattering of toasted almonds or sesame seeds, date nuggets and-or dried banana.

For a starter, choose icy vichyssoise or borsch (chilled potato or beet soup, respectively) with a dollop of sour cream and a sprinkle of chives.

For liquid refreshment, count on tall, frosty glasses of honey-sweetened lemonade or iced peppermint tea, garnished with mint leaves, or mixed fruit juices accented by a fresh pineapple stirrer.

And for dessert, what could be more refreshing (and better for that waistline) than succulent melon doused with cointreau or your favorite fruit liqueur?

FRESHEN THE ATMOSPHERE . . . A profusion of fresh flowers and ferns not only brightens your home but also "lends" fragrance to your surroundings.

SWEET AIRY-CONDITIONED DREAMS . . . Your sleep will be the coolest if you spray the sheets with toilet water and sleep in cotton (not nylon) pajamas or gown. A bowl of fresh water on your bedside table keeps the air fresh and enables you to sleep more comfortably.

YOU'RE THE COOLEST, PSYCHOLOGICALLY SPEAKING . . . Remember, just a few months ago you were braving blizzards and searching for the sun. THINK POSITIVE . . . THINK COOL . . . and THE NEW YOU will have the heat licked — by degrees.

JUST FOR YOU: Temper that "hot" temper: If the heat has you close to exploding, lie down flat on the floor (not your bed) and force yourself to relax.

Sotheby's auction rooms said that when the American buyer ~~heard~~ who her opponent was she offered to pass it on at cost. The Queen accepted.

An important announcement for all residents of British Columbia

BE SURE

you are covered under the British Columbia-Canada Medicare Plan before July 1, 1968

Monday, July 1, 1968, will mark the beginning of a new era in medical coverage for all residents of British Columbia.

On that date, the British Columbia-Canada Medicare Plan will begin operating under a scheme by which, for the first time, the Federal Government will contribute a share of the costs of services performed for you by a physician or surgeon.

What you must do right away

If you are now a contributor to a non-profit medical insurance organization that is licensed to operate under the Plan, your name will be automatically registered as of July 1. But it is your responsibility to see that your name is or will be registered.

If you are not currently a member of such an organization, or are in doubt as to whether or not the medical services plan to which you contribute is a licensed one, you are obliged to make sure now.

It is to your advantage to have your name and the name of your dependents registered with a licensed medical plan without delay. An application may be made by you, your employer, or a person acting on your behalf. If you wish, you can apply immediately to join the British Columbia Medical Services Plan in Victoria.

If your medical care coverage is with an insurance company, it does not qualify. It will be necessary for you to apply to a licensed medical plan or have your employers apply for you.

A medical plan that is not licensed will not be in business in British Columbia after July 1st due to the Federal Government Medicare Act.

The new regulations do not interfere with any agreement or arrangement between an employer and his employees regarding the proportion or percentage of the gross premium shared, nor with any arrangement for the collection and remittance of premiums by payroll deduction.

Under the British Columbia-Canada Medicare Plan, the range of medical services and the schedule of monthly rates will be the same for all qualifying medical plans. However, provision is made for other benefits provided by any such plan to continue as a separate sector of that plan's business.

Schedule of rates

(a) Basic Premium Rate
for a subscriber with no dependents	$ 5.00 per month
for a subscriber with one dependent	10.00 per month
for a subscriber with two or more dependents	12.50 per month
(b) For a person who qualifies as an "eligible person" under the Medical Grant Act and who had no taxable income for the immediately previous taxation year for a subscriber with no dependents	$ .50 per month
for a subscriber with one dependent	1.00 per month
for a subscriber with two or more dependents	1.25 per month
(c) For a person who qualifies as an "eligible person" under the Medical Grant Act and whose taxable income for the immediately preceding taxation year did not exceed One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00)
for a subscriber with no dependents	$ 2.50 per month
for a subscriber with one dependent	5.00 per month
for a subscriber with two or more dependents	6.25 per month

NOTE: for the purpose of administration, the Plan year for which premiums under (b) and (c) listed above are paid shall be July 1 to June 30 and changes in status from year to year shall be effected in accordance with that twelve month period.

Do not delay. Make sure your name is registered in a non-profit licensed plan.

B.C. Education Policy Wrapped By Principal

Governments have the right to set education standards but parents should have the right to allocate their tax money to any school system meeting those standards.

This is the view of Brother Kevin Molloy, principal of St. Louis College, as the 104-year-old institution enters its final week.

An announcement in May that the school would close followed failure of a drive for $460,000 within the Catholic community to renovate and expand it.

Education policy is the domain of provincial governments and only in B.C. and Manitoba have governments inhibited private schools by refusing taxpayers the right to direct their taxes to the school system of their choice, said St. Louis' principal.

Parents of students at St. Louis pay an education assessment in their property taxes like everyone else but only a fraction of it benefitted the college.

The Catholic high school required $20 a month from its students, $12 a month as a tuition fee and $8 from the parish.

Non-Catholics at the school paid the full $20 a month. Enrolment of non-Catholics has been as high as 40 per cent in the school's money-plagued history.

The closing of St. Louis College has sent a shock wave through the Catholic community flavored with bitterness. Brother Molloy said today increased awareness of the need for an alternative to the public education system may someday result in the school being reopened.

"This might just be the atmosphere to produce a rebirth."

Ironically, it was the impending closure of the school 54 years ago which first brought the Christian Brothers of Ireland to Victoria to forestall it.

The reason for closing then was the same as now — lack of money.

: costs public schools about $50 a month for each pupil and St. Louis has been trying to struggle by on half that, said the principal.

The time arrived when the shortage of money meant the school could not continue providing first-class education.

"And the boys deserve the best."

Brother Molloy has been appointed principal of Brother Rice High School in St. John's, Nfld., his home town. That school has an enrolment of 1,300 and will go on three shifts a day in the fall.

Appointments for the six other brothers are expected soon. Two lay teachers at the school will have to find new jobs.

Closing exercises will be held June 12. Apart from the graduating class of 25, the 189 students will be dispersed throughout the public schools next September.

Band Become Seamen For Portland Jaunt

Eighteen young men, members of the Victoria City Police Youth Band, went to sea in Pacific Maritime Command's destroyer-escort, HMCS Columbia, Tuesday night. For most it was their first such experience.

The bandsmen, conducted by Constables Kenneth G. Horsman and Gerald R. Cox of the Victoria City Police, are to represent Victoria at Saturday's Rose Festival parade in downtown Portland, Oregon. The young ladies of the band are making the trip by bus.

The Columbia and another command destroyer-escort, HMCS Mackenzie, rendezvoused to sea with the minesweeper Cowichan and two gate vessels Porte de le Reine and Porte Quebec, and arrived in Portland Thursday.

The ships, which are also engaged in a naval officer cadet training program will leave Portland Sunday with the destroyer-escorts going to San Francisco and the smaller vessels returning to Esquimalt. The Mackenzie and Columbia will return June 21.

Industrial Seminar This Month

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett will head a list of speakers at a two-day industrial development seminar in Prince George June 24 and 25.

More than 2,000 business and political leaders from Canada, the United States, Japan and Europe have been invited.

The conference is sponsored by the Prince George and District Industrial Development Commission.

Discussion will centre on forestry, pulp and paper, water, and mineral resources of northern British Columbia.

The seminar will coincide with a visit to Prince George by about 90 touring industrial and political leaders from the U.S. including Alaska governor Walter Hickel, several U.S. senators, press and radio men. The group is interested mainly in the water resources of the Pacific Northwest.

Youth Rebellion 'Kind of Anarchy'

Young people must establish strength and stability, more than 200 Rotarians were told at a Victoria-Seattle luncheon at the Empress Thursday.

Dr. Walter Williams, former under-secretary of state under President Eisenhower, said civil disobedience and the rebellion of youth in the United States is a kind of anarchy.

He said the activities of the "flower-children" and hoodlums can be equated and the situation is very disturbing.

"They seem to be telling us that they will obey the laws they want to obey and disobey those they do not like.

"This to me must be a form of anarchy," he said.

Seattle Rotarians flew to the city for the noon-hour meeting in 30 small planes, some of which landed in the Inner Harbor.

Dr. Williams said democracy would last only if there was a rededication among people who won public office.

"Only if they did what they should do, rather than doing what perpetuated them in office, would this form of government emerge triumphant."

It was also necessary, he said, to impress a sense of character and responsibility into the youth of United States and Canada.

Young people must become citizens rather than "the pestilential effluvium of an affluent society."

Pension Hikes Approved

Pension increases ranging from $3.95 to $12.50 a month for retired municipal employees were approved by city finance committee.

The increases, if ratified by council, affect 104 persons retired before April 1957 and will go into effect July 1. Total cost to the city will be a maximum of $13,050.

In other business the committee:

Refused an application for a trade licence sought by Archie Douglas to sell the Vancouver "hippie" newspaper Georgia Straight on city streets; and,

Voted to enter the city's Victoria Day float in the Langford parade June 29 provided the cost doesn't exceed $150.

Permit Lack Costly

Ilmars Osobit, 3219 Weatherby, was fined $25 Thursday for installing an oil burner without a permit.

Court was told the accused admitted responsibility for the installation of the burner at Pacific Swim School, 1669 Pear, earlier this year.

FOUR MONTHS FOR STRIKING YOUNG SON

A man who shattered a bottle over the head of his seven-year-old son was sentenced Thursday to foru months in prison.

Earlier, Gerald Davis, 519 Craigflower, had pleaded guilty to assault causing bodily harm. The boy required hospital treatment to halt severe bleeding.

Court was told the accused had been placed on two years probation March 15 after an attempted suicide during which he held police officers at bay with a rifle.

PAINTING'S THE THING AT COWICHAN

300 'Serious Amateurs'

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Valley is a growing colony of artists.

This cultural growth is symbolized by the fact these amateurs with palette and brush support an art studio which Mrs. Daphne Mutter and Mrs. Phyllis Springett established here exactly a year ago.

Mrs. Mutter says there are 300 Duncan and district residents who don't just dabble in paint but are serious amateurs.

She conducts private classes in her Hobby Horse Studio and has men and housewives as students.

"We find a terrific amount of interest among young people.

"The hippie-looking types though oddball in appearance take an intelligent interest in art forms."

Heart of the artist colony in the district is Crofton Art Group which was formed 20 years ago.

Mrs. Mutter was a founder member of the group.

Among her teachers was Plato Ustinov of New York, an uncle of English playwright, actor and producer Peter Ustinov.

Plato Ustinov is expected to visit his Salt Spring Island home this summer and again be prevailed upon to give classes.

Mrs. Mutter has some 36 students registered in two adult and one children's class.

Duncan artists' work in a growing number of instances is moving out of the strictly amateur world and fetching prices from $10 to $100.

The love of art is encouraged in the district's public schools and Mrs. Mutter says that lack of time and studio space means she simply can't keep pace with the number of budding young artists referred to her from the schools.

"A teacher sows a seed and it is surprising what will grow."

The Hobby Horse not only specializes in painting materials and books but carried a wide-ranging stock of model kits and encourages local Indian crafts.

It provieds an outlet for the work of well-known Cowichan carvers Cicero August and Simon Charlie and some of the younger band members.

Mr. Stanfield is appearing in support of candidate Blair McLean. He is expected to arrive at 2 p.m. and will be greeted by Comox, Courtenay and Campbell River civic and political leaders.

ALL CANDIDATES SET FOR TONIGHT'S MEET

DUNCAN—The first all-party meeting of the election campaign in this district takes place tonight at Quamichan School at 8 o'clock.

It is the first public platform appearance in the district for all four candidates: NDP Colin Cameron, Liberal Mladin Zorkin, Tory Jeff Brock and Socred Lorne Lee.

The meeting is being sponsored by Duncan Local 1-80 of the IWA and its president Weldon Jubenville will be the chairman.

'DISCRIMINATION'

Grit Officials Quit in Protest

The president and three executive members of the Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal Association have resigned and will not participate in the current election campaign.

The move follows an internal split over the nomination of president James Gorst as candidate in the election and the upsetting of this nomination by party officials in Vancouver.

A second nominating meeting elected David Anderson, a native Victorian who returned from Ottawa. Party officials said the first nomination was unconstitutional. This was denied by Mr. Gorst and his supporters.

Resigning from the executive with Mr. Gorst were secretary-treasurer John Paul, first vice-president Fraser McAlpine and second vice-president Len Skelton.

They said they resigned to protest the action of provincial party officials in Vancouver.

"We feel there was unwarranted discrimination shown against the local executive who had acted in good faith and conducted all association business, particularly the nomination meeting of April 22, fully within the constitution," they said.

Asked why the resignations came three weeks after the second nomination meeting, Mr. Gorst said "the answer is that all these people concerned didn't act in a moment of anger or hastily at a time of upset."

He said he didn't know what effect the resignations would have on the election.

Asked if they were designed to have an effect, he replied "no, they are strictly a protest to show we are not satisfied with the way the Vancouver office interfered."

Mr. Anderson said today the first nomination meeting was unconstitutional and was overturned when Vancouver party officials found out about it.

A "democratic election" was held at the second meeting, he added.

New Legislation Aired Wednesday

DUNCAN — Cowichan Parent-Teacher Association and local teachers are co-sponsoring a Wednesday evening meeting devoted to the effect of new legislation on education.

President Bob Buzza and director of economic welfare Bruce Watson of the B.C. Teachers' Federation will be guest speakers.

Topic of the meeting in Cowichan senior secondary school will be: "How Bill 86 will affect the Cowichan school district."

President Tom Stanko of Cowichan District Teachers' Association said the bill deals with amendments to education finance and in particular with regard to school construction.

Students To Follow Explorer

MILL BAY — Two canoes fashioned after the craft used by explorer Alexander Mackenzie will carry 14 Brentwood College boys on an exploration of waterways in northern B.C. and the Northwest Territories.

They will set out June 26.

Leading the party will be the college English and history teacher Barry Du Temple.

The canoes will travel about 700 miles down the Nelson and Liard rivers to Fort Liard and Nahanni Butte.

Mr. Du Temple said "It will take us about nine days to paddle up the Nahanni River to the Headless Valley where he shall stay for two days.

"It's about 60 miles and will take us about one day to come down again."

End of the journey through the waterways pioneered by MacKenzie will be at Great Slave Lake.

HOME GARDEN

Little Strategy Needed

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

Squash, marrow, pumpkin and cucumber plants all like similar conditions for growing outdoors. Until the soil is warmed by summer sun it is useless to have the plants out or the seed sown. Even now we shall have to resort to garden strategies for getting them started.

If started plants of the varieties you want can be bought, buy them and get them in this weekend. If not, get the seeds and sow immediately.

An open sunny spot with a gentle slope is ideal, if shaded for no more than three hours it would still be suitable. A compost heap partly rotted down can be utilized for this purpose.

The soil needs to retain moisture so that you won't have to water every day to keep up with the rapid growth of the vines and the fruits.

If your supply of rotted compost is becoming low, crumple old newspapers and torn cardboard cartons into the planting holes. Scatter some good soil between and soak well as you proceed, or this dry material may never become thoroughly dampened all summer.

Following this practice for planting during our dry weather will amaze you with results. With an occasional slow watering around each plant, this additional moisture-holding material will never again become really dry. It will gradually rot down and become black soil.

After this job is attended to, you'll have time to see what other gardeners have been doing by visiting the Victoria West Flower Show.

This popular show is open Saturday in the Parish Hall of St. Saviour's Church from 2:30 until 9 p.m. Some of the best rose growers of Victoria district will be competing for honors in the rose classes, while all the early summer flowers have classes too.

Foresighted gardeners will display early vegetables and furits to encourage the rest of us with our later sowings.

YOUR HEALTH

Treatment Depends Upon Cause

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Alvarez

Many people every week ask me how they can treat their asthma, and I have to disappoint them because asthma can be caused by a number of conditions, and the treatment will depend upon the cause. Also, asthma can be confused with emphysema, a now very common disease in which the little alveolas, or tiny cavities at the ends of the bronchi (tubes which carry air into and out of the lungs) are markedly dilated or have ruptured one into another. Emphysema is a disease largely of heavy smokers. Often the patient, usually a man, finds himself so short-winded that every breath that he takes is an effort.

Asthma is a disease in which from perhaps childhood on, the patient has spells of wheezing and shortness of breath. Usually, what has happened is that spasm has come in the bronchial tubes, or there may be obstruction of these tubes by swelling of their inner lining, or by plugging up by mucus.

Fortunately, most of these attacks are mild and the patient can be helped with drugs or sometimes, better yet, with the stopping of the smoking of many cigarettes a day. Oftentimes I can recognize an asthmatic or emptysematous person the minute he comes into the office. His face may be anxious because, during a spell, he has to keep thinking about every breath he takes. Also, the muscles on the front of his neck are likely to be contracted, and his chest eventually may become more round and barrel-shaped than oval.

In asthmatic spells a strain is placed on the heart. Sometimes a heart attack can be mistaken for a spell of asthma. When a child gets asthma, every effort should be made to cure the disease before the habit becomes established and the lungs and bronchi become damaged.

What are the causes of asthma? The commonest cause is an allergy. Sometimes this can easily be discovered. I remember the first patient with allergy who came in when I started practice. When I learned that she had asthma in her grandmother's house and not her parents' house, the diagnosis and cure were easy. Her grandmother had a cat and the girl was allergic to cat fur.

I rember when I worked at the Mayo Clinic, and most patients came from a distance, many made the problems easier when they told me that to their astonishment, they lost their asthma on coming to Rochester, Minn. Then, obviously there was something at home that was causing the wheezing. I remember one man who had suffered much for years. When he lost his asthma in Rochester, I told him how to do home detective work, and he soon found his enemy — it was one pillow on his davenport full of goose-feathers. When he threw that away, he was cured.

I remember one of the earliest patients with asthma whom I saw — a girl of 16. A little questioning showed that she was sensitive to horse dander, and she just loved to ride her horse.

Sometimes the person gets asthma after years of hay-fever. Others get spells after eating certain food, taking certain drugs, wearing wool, or perhaps a fur coat, or certain feathers, or using a new face powder. If asthma comes only during a certain season of the year, it is due probably to a pollen.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Betty Vandenburg, age 13, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, for her question:

What is a grunion fish?

The grunion is a California performer, though not a movie star. He is a slim, silvery fish and on certain special nights of the year, he performs on the moonlit beaches. No other fish is quite like him and he can be found nowhere else in the whole wide world.

If you visit California, you may catch yourself a batch of grunion to fry for supper. But you may do so only on a few special nights of the year. The local newspapers announce these grunion nights and also remind the people that no fishing equipment of any kind is permitted to catch them. No grunion may be caught during April and May. These game laws are enforced to prevent people from catching all the grunion fishes in the world, leaving none for the future. The grunion season usually lasts from June to September, and grunion fishers are allowed to use only their bare hands for catching the slithery little fishes.

The silvery, six-inch fishes are cousins of the jack smelts and the silversides, and other fish that people eat. Another of their relatives is the toothy barracuda who eats people. Their adult lives are spent near the sandy Pacific beaches between Point Conception and Baja California. On grunion nights the people who live near these beaches desert their TVs and drive-ins, their bowling alleys and even their hot-dog stands. Off they go to the beaches, with only a batch of dry logs to kindle a campfire.

The grunion event occurs when there is a New Moon or a Full Moon, which are times of highest tides. As the night tide swarms of silvery grunion are swells to its highest peak, seen riding high on the waves towards the sandy beaches. Shortly before the high tide turns, the silvery multitudes plunge forward and leave themselves stranded on the sand. Then the busy time begins.

Buried in Sand

Each female grunion wriggles her tail to dig a hole in the wet sand. When about a third of her body is below deck, she deposits a batch of small, salmon-colored eggs in the hole. Meantime, several male grunion are wrigling and writhing close around her. When the eggs are laid, the males cover them with deposits of sperm cells. Then the parent fishes flop and flounder back to the sea and swim out into the deep water. The male and female egg cells become fertilized and stay buried in the sand above the level of the tides. Two weeks later, they will be swamped by another one of these high-high tides. The eggs are washed out of the sand, pop open and out come baby grunion. The frisky, quarter-inch infants immediately take to the water and swim out to join their relatives.

A fish out of water is about the most helpless fellow in the world. And the grunion fishes leave the sea for a few minutes to lay their eggs. Sometimes they land in such large numbers that people cannot walk on the beach without stepping on them. The busy, helpless creatures are easy to grab with the bare hands. In a few minutes, you can catch enough to fill the frying pan, already heated on the campfire logs. They have a tasty flavor but there is not much meat on just one grunion. Besides, he has a full quota of spiky fish bones.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to David Skelton, age 10, of South Portland, Maine, for his question:

Are veins the same as arteries?

Both veins and arteries are blood vessels and the body needs both of them. The circulatory system has a closed network of branching blood vessels that weaves its way through every corner of the body. It must be a closed, unbroken network so that the blood can keep flowing around and around in a never-ending circuit. The moving circuit steers the flowing blood out to the body then back to the heart and on to the lungs. There it is purified and refreshed, sent back to the heart and out once again on its way.

Fresh, red blood from the heart carries vital oxygen to the living cells throughout the body. The blood vessels that carry this fresh blood are called arteries. Along the way, the branching blood vessels become thinner and thinner. As the hungry cells take oxygen, they return their waste carbon dioxide gas as the blood goes by. This used blood flows on its way back to the heart and lungs to be purified and refreshed for the next trip around the circuit. The blood vessels that carry the used blood back for purification are called veins.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Today we will give you the South cards and let you assume that you are playing in the finals of a major championship event with one of the greatest players in the world sitting on your right. Just to make it a trifle more fair (or is it?) we are going to assume that you also are one of the world's best.

Opening lead—♣Q

You make some effort to get to seven after your partner's jump raise of your spade response but settle for the small slam when you find one king is held by your opponents.

You are a trifle disappointed in the dummy because there are two potential losing tricks, but not too unhappy since you will have a chance to display your great skill. You can try the spade finesse and fall back on a possible club-diamond squeeze if it loses. But there is a better line of play. At trick two you lead a spade to your ace. The king fails to drop but both opponents have followed and you are ready to prepare an elimination play. You lead a club to dummy and ruff a third club. You cash your king of hearts and dummy's ace and ruff dummy's last club.

Now you play a low spade and are happy when West wins with the king. The spade finesse would not have worked if you had tried it.

You have stripped yourself of everything but trumps and diamonds and West must lead a diamond unless he wants to make the give-up play of letting you ruff a heart in one hand and discard a diamond from the other.

If the diamond honors are divided you will pick up one honor and finesse for the other but West leads the jack of diamonds. He is perfectly capable of false-carding and leading jack from jack-queen, but he is equally capable of leading jack from jack and two small. You decide to stick to your original plan of playing for split honors and rise with dummy's king. Then you finesse against East's queen and sit back to listen to kibitzer applause.

In today's housing shortage, it is nice to have a spare house — but oh, so costly. This vendor's first home is a good buy close to university entrance, elementary and high schools, bus stops, and shops. It is a fine family home. Just over a year ago, all new wall to wall was installed in the 13x19 living room, 10'x11' dining room and through halls. The kitchen is big with eating area plus about 40 feet of cupboarding. The Master bedroom is nearly 13x15 with good closet space. This home is about $4,500 under replacement cost. Level 70'x169' lot is nicely landscaped. So call on this 3-bedroom home (has area in basement for extra bedroom and rumpus room). COURAGE, SPIRIT

Kennedy Trademarks Epitomized by Widow

By United Press International

Ethel Kennedy, a member of the clan by marriage, has always seemed to epitomize the Kennedy trademarks of fighting spirit, courage, and family loyalty.

The 40-year-old widow of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, like another Kennedy-by-marriage four years before, has drawn on a seemingly infinite reservoir of strength in this time of national sorrow.

Ethel had been campaigning alongside her husband since he entered the presidential race in March, asking no special treatment even though she is expecting her 11th child late this year.

She was at his side when he was shot, remained on vigil through his four hours of brain surgery, and was with him when he passed away.

A sportswoman of considerable ability, Ethel played touch football with the Kennedys, went skiing with them, and was an enthusiastic horsewoman.

Made Headlines

She made headlines by falling off a motorcycle in Rome, and falling into the ocean when a boat overturned off Hawaii.

But in Washington, where she had a large circle of close friends, Ethel was known for her compassion for deprived children.

She opened her luxurious home, Hickory Hill at McLean, Va., to them on numerous occasions and organized a three-day telethon in Washington in February to raise funds for poor children.

A devout Roman Catholic, she has borne more than her share of tragedy and suffering.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Skakel, were killed in an airplane crash. A brother was killed in another plane crash a couple of years ago. Her brother's widow choked to death last year at the dinner table.

Closed Ranks

Ethel has long lived in the shadow of her famous sister-in-law, former first lady Jacqueline Kennedy. The two never had a particularly warm rapport, although they closed ranks in times of crisis.

She is one of seven children of George Skakel, a multi-millionaire who headed the Great Lakes Carbon Co. She was born in Chpdluclend, reared in Greenwich, Conn.

While attending the college of Sacred Heart in Manhattanville, N.Y., she roomed with Jean Kennedy and met Bobby during her freshman year in 1945 on a ski trip to Canada.

They were married in June, 1950, and one of Ethel's announced goals — now achieved — was to surpass her mother-in-law, Mrs. Rose Kennedy, who had nine children.

Her husband was considerably amused when Ethel was accused in 1967 of being a horse thief.

Nicholas N. Zemo of the McLean area accused her of stealing a thoroughbred yearling named Pande. Mrs. Kennedy testified at her trial that the horse was starving so she took him in to feed him.

The horse died soon after she had her groom take it from a chicken coop to the stables on her estate. She was acquitted and Zemo was convicted of cruelty to animals.

FOUR TRAGEDIES

Violence Marks Kennedy Deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the death of Senator Robert F. Kennedy, four of the nine children of Joseph and Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy have died violently.

Here is a list of the tragedies that have befallen the Kennedys:

Joseph Jr.—Born July 25, 1915, killed Aug. 12, 1944. A navy pilot, he volunteered for a mission that involved parachuting from a bomber loaded with 10 tons of explosives before it hit a German V-2 rocket site in the Second World War. The bomber expoded prematurely with him aboard. The cause was not known.

John F. Kennedy—Born May 29, 1917, assassinated by Lee Harvey Oswald in Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963. The president and Mrs. Kennedy suffered the death of two children, a daughter stillborn and a son who died two days after birth from lung disease. In the war, Kennedy, a patrol-torpedo boat commander, suffered severe back injury when his boat was rammed by a Japanese destroyer.

Rosemary Kennedy — Born Sept. 13, 1919. In an institution for the mentally retarded since 1941.

Kathleen Kennedy Cavendish—Born Feb. 20, 1920, killed in a plane crash in France in May, 1948. Her husband, the Marquess of Hartington, a captain in the Coldstream Guards, was killed while on an infantry patrol only four months after their marriage in May, 1944. She had been in England as a Red Cross worker during the war.

Senator Robert F. Kennedy—Born Nov. 20, 1925, died in Los Angeles June 6, 1968, a day after being shot in the head as he left a presidential primary victory celebration. His wife's parents and brothers were killed in separate plane crashes and her sister-in-law strangled on a piece of meat caught in her throat.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy—Born Feb. 22, 1932, suffered a broken back in a plane crash June 19, 1964, but recovered sufficiently to enable him to walk to his seat when the Senate reconvened the following January.

Joseph P. Kennedy Sr., the father, has been paralysed by a stroke since 1962. Born Sept. 6, 1888, he has been in seclusion at Hyannis Port, Mass. He and Mrs. Kennedy have three other daughters: Eunice Kennedy Shriver, born July 10, 1921; Patricia Kennedy Lawford, born May 6, 1924, and Jean Kennedy Smith, born Feb. 20, 1928.

Revenge Plot Called Far-Fetched

CHAMPLAIN, N.Y. (AP) — A vigil along hundreds of miles of the Canadian border failed to produce any trace today of eight Quebec "revolutionists" who, an anonymous telephone caller said, planned to assassinate several U.S. leaders.

The caller, identified as a man who spoke in unaccented English, told the U.S. Consulate in Montreal Thursday eight men were en route to the United States to avenge the death of Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Their intent, the caller said, was to kill President Johnson, Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey and Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Consulate officials said they considered the report far-fetched but placed border points on the alert.

Sources in Montreal separatist circles—groups that seek to separate French-speaking Quebec province from the rest of Canada—termed the alleged plot absurd.

Refund Cheques On Way

OTTAWA (CP) — About three-quarters of all Canadian taxpayers will soon have put the bite on the federal taxation division for return of part of their income tax payments.

A division spokesman said Thursday that as of June 3 Canadians had filed 8,151,000 tax returns, 5,589,365 had been processed and the revenue department had issued 4,214,469 refunds.

Exact figures are not yet available, but earlier in the processing of 1967 returns refund cheques were averaging about $70.

Despite initial delays in processing the flood of returns caused by difficulties in getting a new computer into operation, the division now is running ahead of last year's processing pace.

At June 3 the division still had about 2,500,000 returns to process. All but the extremely troublesome ones are expected to be cleaned up by the end of June.

MANY OVERPAY

A variety of reasons lead Canadian taxpayers to overpay their income tax.

More than 500,000 did not claim for overpayment of Canada Pension Plan contributions. Others deliberately don't declare all of their dependents with their employers, or gain a dependent during the tax year.

If you are among those awaiting a refund, the main computer used by the tax men gobbles up 250,000 returns in each two-day cycle.

If it finds you do have a refund coming and there are no complications involved, your refund cheque is likely only a couple of weeks away.

11 Accused Kidnappers Refused Bail

VANCOUVER (CP) — Magistrate Maurice Mulligan Thursday refused bail for 11 men accused in a kidnap-torture case.

He ruled applications should be made to British Columbia Supreme Court. The accused were committed Wednesday for Supreme Court trial.

"To put it another way, I am refusing bail," he said.

Charged with kidnapping and assault are David Black, 24; Herbert Spivey, 21; Victor Gregory, 25; Charles Dumont, 27; William Arthur Cross, 23; Ernest Small, 28; William Binns, 20; Laverne Schmidt, 25; Gary Wilbur, 22; Robert Pearson, 17, and Aubray Leighton Baker, 21.

The supreme court later reserved decision on applications for bail made Thursday on behalf of Black and Schmidt.

During a preliminary hearing James Cannan, 20, said he was kidnapped outside a Vancouver cafe last February and subjected to a night of torture in a building he described as headquarters for the Satan's Angels motorcycle club.

He succeeds Eugene S. Hallman, whose appointment as a CBC vice-president and general manager of English network broadcasting already has been announced.

. . . STUDENTS

$150 in bills, mostly service calls — or no graduation ceremony tonight.

The 268 graduates were assessed $1 each — but this in turn brought howls from some, including parents, who argued they weren't going to pay for something they had no part in.

Graduates were said to be taking another look at the assessment problem today.

'MAKE GOOD'

"The students will make good all the expenses for the teachers," said Jim Armstrong, president of the student body.

"I just hope the stupidity of a few students won't be blown up as typical of all."

Principal Clive Kelly hedged this morning when asked if the staff knew who had taken part in the incident.

It was just a segment of the graduating class, he said, but the group involved was too big.

"We're unhappy so many went along with it."

The matter of reimbursement had been turned over to the student council and was being taken care of by it, said the principal.

"We consider this a serious type of activity," he said of the wheel-loosening incidents.

The students involved thought of it as a graduation prank but didn't realize its extent, the possible need for the cars in an emergency.

"It was thoughtless all the way around," said the principal.

He suggested students and parents who were protesting the assessment when they had no part would probably get any money paid refunded.

And of the threat to cancel tonight's graduation ceremony:

"We didn't expect it to be really cancelled but I'm afraid if nothing had been done we would have had to postpone it."

"We all suffer for the misdeeds of others," was the way school board chairman Peter Bunn viewed the incident this morning. "You are paying from your taxes, for example, to keep a bunch of nuts behind bars.

"I think the irresponsible action of a few is deplorable and I admire the responsible action of the student body."

MAYORS TOLD

Progressive Property Tax One Solution

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

EDMONTON — Property taxes cannot be expected to continue paying for increasing costs of the services they now support, Montreal taxation expert E. J. Newman said Thursday.

He was addressing delegates to the 31st annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, and commenting on findings by six provincial commissions into taxation procedures over the past five years.

None of the reports produced radical new concepts of tax change, Mr. Newman said, and then suggested some.

He said property taxes should be retained, but claimed it has been demonstrated that property is not the best base for extracting revenue adequate to pay for education, health and welfare, highways, streets and justic administration.

These areas of taxation should be taken over by the provincial government and paid for by sales and income tax one of the commission reports proposes and Mr. Newman said he agrees.

DWINDLING RETURN

A practical means of "avoiding the regressive tendencies of the property tax" should be sought and is not impossible, said Mr. Newman.

Property allowed to become run-down, drops in assessessed value under present application, and creates a dwindling tax return to the community.

A progressive rate of tax is a possible solution, Mr. Newman said.

A solution to prevent abuses could be worked out, he said, "because the valuation of a residential property does not accurately reflect a person's ability to pay municipal taxes."

The reasoning that some property owners might not be able to afford a progressive taxation on their properties does not preclude the general application of the principle.

He suggested that freeways, roads and any auxiliary services needed to keep them operating should be paid for by users rather than property owners.

FRUITFUL AREA

"I believe that the proliferation of the motor vehicle in our rapidly expanding urban society is creating a variety of expenditure pressures which should be paid for by the user, and not the property owner," Mr. Newman said.

"It is well established that the revenues from the motor vehicle (to government) do not cover the cost of roads and streets, and some arguments can be advanced why they should not. But surely this is a fruitful area for intensive investigation."

Salesman Committed For Trial

An 18-year old magazine salesman for Maclean-Hunter publications was committed for trial Thursday on three charges of fraud.

About 10 witnesses testified for the Crown in the day long preliminary hearing before Magistrate J. A. Byers.

Guy Jodoin of Edmonton was charged with defrauding three elderly women of a total of nearly $400 in magazine sales.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte told the court the accused sold one woman, Mrs. Christina Cameron, 86, of 817 McClure 129 years of subscriptions to Maclean's and Chatelaine magazines.

He said the complainants signed their names to cheques which were filled in by a salesman identified by two of the women as Jodoin.

A third woman, Mrs. Mary Kinsey, 1811 Oak Bay Avenue, was unable to make a positive identification at first, did so when the accused was brought close to her but then admitted to the defence counsel he only looked familiar.

The women testified Jodoin had told them he was competing in a magazine sales contest with a $1,000 prize which he would use to attend college.

Mrs. Cameron said she liked the boy and took to him at once but told him she couldn't afford the magazines. She said he brought money to her house to cash her pension cheque and laid it on her knee. She said he kept $15 from the $107 cheque.

Mrs. Agnes Cross, 76, of the Kiwanis Village said she wanted to help the youth but "not $142 worth." She said she knew nothing of a cheque for that amount that subsequently turned up at a bank.

Mrs. Kinsey said she thought she was doing a favor for Jodoin when he offered to renew her subscription.

"I thought he was on the level," she said. "That's the last time I'll buy magazines."

Court was told Mrs. Kinsey's subscription had not expired at the time of the sale.

STANDING GUARD over his father's bier in Saint Patrick's Cathedral in New York today is Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., 14. (AP Wirephoto.)

THOUSANDS PAY FINAL TRIBUTES

Ethel, Jackie Join Vigil

NEW YORK (AP) — By the tens of thousands, the young and old, the wealthy and the poor filed past the body of Robert F. Kennedy as it lay in state today in towering St. Patrick's Catholic Cathedral.

The widow, Ethel Kennedy, and three of her children came at noon, after attending private services with other members of the Kennedy family at the Holy Family Church a few blocks away.

They sat in quiet vigil for a while, then approached the coffin.

Mrs. Kennedy paused momentarily, gently touched the smooth, reddish surface, and left.

Mrs. John F. Kennedy, widow of President John F. Kennedy, arrived several minutes later.

Dressed starkly in black, her face almost covered by a black lace mantilla, she kneeled alone in prayer in a pew.

Outside, the lines stretched 18 blocks six abreast, meandering among the skyscrapers of mid-town Manhattan in 90-degree heat.

There were girls in mini-skirts, elderly ladies in print dresses, men in work clothes standing next to well-groomed men in double breasted suits.

There were whites, Negroes, Puerto Ricans and the tongues of many lands were heard among them, talking quietly of the man who had hoped to lead the nation as its president—as his assassinated brother had done.

Police estimated that in the first six hours, some 36,000 persons had passed the coffin.

Family, friends and associates stood vigil over the body of the fallen senator.

Church officials said that because of the size of the crowd the church would remain open all night if necessary.

A crowd of about 1,000 persons, many of them teen-agers, was waiting in the grey dawn light when the massive doors to the old cathedral swung open at 5:41 a.m. Some had been waiting through the night.

In solemn and somber mood they filed by the dark redwood closed coffin in final tribute to the 42-year-old Democratic senator who had aspired to be the second of his family to occupy the White House.

Many in the line were Negroes. There were also a number of nuns.

Some of the mourners, particularly women, kissed the coffin and ran their fingers slowly across its polished surface as though reluctant to say a final farewell.

A candle burned at each corner of the catafalque as friends and relatives of the Kennedy family began a constant vigil, four at a time in half-hour shifts, around the bier.

In the early hours of the night Senator Edward M. Kennedy, the sole surviving son of four in his family, had kept watch over his brother whose life was taken, as was the late President John F. Kennedy's, by an assassin's bullet.

For a half-hour one of the guards was Bobby Kennedy Jr., 14-year-old second son of the late senator, who kept both hands on his father's coffin throughout the vigil.

Mothers with babies in their arms, school children, blind men, others on crutches, students and a large number of old persons, many weeping openly, filed past the closed coffin on its catafalque flanked by six yellow candles.

The cathedral, a New York landmark for 80 years, was closed to the public at 7 p.m. Thursday, while workmen on scaffolding prepared the great nave for Roman Catholic funeral services scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday.

Then Robert Kennedy's body will be taken by train to Washington, for burial at Arlington National Cemetery, where his brother, the late president, rests beneath an eternal flame.

Robert Kennedy was shot down early Wednesday as he celebrated his California presidential primary victory at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles.

He died in Good Samaritan Hospital there at 4:44 a.m. Thursday.

FAMILY MAN THEME HITS HOME

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Bureau

MATANE, Que. — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield gave his crash-course French a work out on a campaign tour through Quebec's lower St. Lawrence and Gaspe region Thursday.

Conservative supporters gave him a friendly reception at every stop but the generally sparse turnout proved, as it did during Prime Minister Trudeau's visit some 10 days earlier, that federal politics is not a major interest in the area.

The main, and last, event on the day's schedule was an appearance at a bean supper in this lumbering and fishing town.

BETTER SOCIETY

A crowd of 300 applauded Mr. Stanfield's call for the "great work of understanding" necessary to build a better society in a "country of great diversity."

The strongest applause was reserved for the PC leader's references to the local Conservative candidate, Julien Chouinard.

Mr. Chouinard, who is building his campaign on an attack on Prime Minister Trudeau's constitutional policies, and on proposed criminal code changes dealing with abortion and homosexuality, introduced his leader as "a good family man."

Mr. Stanfield's day in eastern Quebec began with a visit to Murray Bay, in Charlevoix riding where Conservative Martial Asselin is fighting to hold the seat for his party.

He drew a crowd of 200 to the airport, and another 500 lined the streets of the small resort community as he drove in a convertible to sign the golden book.

SEE, BE SEEN

At the airport, in the first of the day's series of brief speeches, Mr. Stanfield said his first impulse on learning of the death of Senator Robert Kennedy had been to call off his day's campaigning.

Murder Hearing Testimony Opens

BARRAGE OF ROCKETS SLAMS INTO SAIGON

SAIGON (CP)—Saigon took its worst Viet Cong bombardment of the last five weeks early today. The guerrillas slammed in 16 rockets into the heart of the capital that killed at least 30 civilians, a South Vietnamese military spokesman said.

Hiding in rice paddles on the outskirts of the city, the Viet Cong hit a civilian hospital, a Roman Catholic Church, the International Control Commission headquarters and 11 civilian homes. The spokesman said 23 persons were injured.

The pre-dawn attack, fifth in five days, brought the total of civilians killed in rocket attacks on the capital in the first week of June to 51.

Security Heavy For Accused Man

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles county grand jury met today to hear 23 witnesses and consider a first-degree murder indictment against a young Jordanian in the assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, 24, was not present as the 22 grand jurors met. He is in jail under constant surveillance in a maximum security cell.

The jury also was asked to return indictments for assault with intent to commit murder in the wounding of five others in the burst of gunfire that killed Kennedy.

A conviction in the case would bring the death sentence but there have been no executions in the last 12 months in California since capital punishment was challenged as unconstitutional.

The California Supreme Court is expected to bring in a ruling shortly on two appeals which prompted a stay of execution for 75 in San Quentin's death row.

Meanwhile, Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty came under heavy criticism for releasing data alleged to be from the accused man's notebook. Legal authorities said publication of the material may prevent a fair trial.

Heading the presentation to jurors was District-Attorney Evelle J. Younger, who requested the indictment.

Younger said Sirhan would be arraigned within 48 hours in Superior Court, make a plea at that time or shortly after, with trial expected to begin within 60 days of arraignment.

Should the defence seek a change of venue, Younger said he would not oppose it.

The public defender's office is providing Sirhan legal advice.

The prisoner originally was held under $250,000 bond, but that was revoked by Superior Court Judge Joan Dempsey Klein after Kennedy's death.

Janet Out Of Hospital

REVELSTOKE (CP) — Janet Bitterman, 6, of Victoria, who survived when her parents and two sisters died Wednesday in a landslide on the Trans-Canada Highway, was released from hospital Thursday.

Meanwhile, highways department crews hoped to have a single lane cleared today through the debris, 19 miles west of here. The slide was about 3,000 feet long, 600 wide and between 15 and 20 feet deep.

Rev. Frank Funk of Kelowna a relative caring for the girl, said she has a few stitches in a cut hand and other minor cuts. He said it has not been determined who will look after the girl.

Killed when the slide hit their car 240 miles northeast of Vancouver were Ernst Bitterman, 42; his wife Annette, 24, and daughters Sandra, 2, and Terri, 4. The other daughter was thrown from the car.

STUDENTS, AUTO MEN

Gas Breaks Up French Rioting

PARIS (CP) — Battling with tear gas against a shower of stones, riot police broke up a demonstration by thousands of striking auto workers and sympathetic University of Paris students today at the Renault auto plant at Flins.

A sharp, 20-minute battle ended with the students and strikers split into two groups and pushed right out of the village, 15 miles northwest of the capital.

One group sought refuge from the hail of gas grenades in a woods near Flins. The other retreated into fields across the highway.

Elsewhere the French strike wave was subsiding rapidly and Frenchmen turned their attention to politics and a televised interview with President de Gaulle tonight.

The Paris stock exchange opened after being closed for 16 days. French shares rallied after early hesitancy. Foreign stocks drew most attention, however, and some recorded gains up to 10 per cent early in the trading.

FLOW OF ORDERS

The flow of buying orders for the foreign stocks was attributed to a desire for a hedge against inflation.

The Renault plant at Flins was occupied by police early Thursday, and the sit-in strikers who had held it for weeks were expelled.

The fighting began after a demonstration in the main square of the village. More than 5,000 demonstrators marched on the plant in an attempt to retake it from about 2,000 riot police.

The demonstrators began hurling paving stones and the police replied with tear gas grenades. More than 10 persons from both sides were injured in the first clash.

ANGRY REPLY TO BOOS

Separatists Peddling Hate That Killed RFK: Trudeau

Special to The Times

ROUYN, Que. — An angry Prime Minister Trudeau told booing separatists Thursday night they were peddling the type of hate that killed Senator Robert Kennedy.

He tore into a group of youngsters who tried to drown him out when he was having mike trouble at a rally here.

Mr. Trudeau told them they should be ashamed of themselves, particularly of their actions on the day that Kennedy died — a man who had fought for the under-privileged and poor.

It was a noisy meeting — but the crowd was with Mr. Trudeau.

He was cheered and applauded as he took his one-Canada message into rural Quebec, into the Creditiste stronghold.

Hard Day

The youngsters cheered and the adults applauded as he drove home his plea for a united and just Canada.

He drew good crowds in a hard day's campaigning in northern Ontario and Quebec, and the wind-up rally here attracted a crowd of about 3,000.

Mr. Trudeau had troubles with the mike when he started to speak.

When he tried to talk without one, he was drowned out by the boos of the group of about 20 youngsters near the stage, and by the cheers of his supporters in opposition to the booers.

A youngster shouted — "Vive Quebec Libre."

The prime minister shot back — "Vive Le Canada Libre."

He told the separatists that there would be "no free

E. KENNEDY-HUMPHREY VOTE TICKET URGED

WASHINGTON (AP)—Representative Clarence D. Long (Dem., Md.), has urged Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey to invite Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts to be his running mate on the national Democratic ticket.

Edward Kennedy is the brother of Robert, slain by an assassin this week, and former president, John, killed in 1963.

Long proposed the political alliance in a telegram to the vice-president, saying:

"It is virtually certain that you will be the Democrats' choice for the presidency."

Long, an early supporter of Humphrey, said Kennedy's "partnership with you in the coming presidential campaign would strengthen the unity of the Democrats and give us the strongest possible ticket with which to win victory in November."

Hydro to Build Rail Line Connecting Roberts Bank

By BRUCE YEMEN

A provincial cabinet order Thursday handed to B.C. Hydro the $8,000,000 job of building the access railway to the Roberts Bank superport.

The project will start almost immediately and will involve about 27 miles of new trackage in the Fraser Valley.

It will link the proposed bulk-loading port south of Vancouver with virtually every major railway in the U.S. and Canada, giving it potential to serve as a Pacific gateway for a vast hinterland.

A network of rail, road, pipeline and high tension facilities will be needed to serve the superport. Tenders for the first stage of the $10,000,000 port facilities have already been called by the National Harbors Board.

The port must be ready by the spring of 1970 to fulfil terms of a $650,000,000 deal to ship Fernie coal to Japan.

John Southworth, executive secretary of the B.C. Harbors Board, said Hydro construction of the rail link had been accepted by Canadian National, Canadian Pacific and Great Northern Railways.

Hydro will also built a truck route parallel to the rail line to form a service corridor but pipelines and overhead high tension lines may follow another route, he indicated.

The rail link is needed by late 1969. It will form a loop on a 50-acre island on which Kaiser Steel will build coal handling facilities for its 15-year coal deal with Japanese interests.

One 10,000-ton trainload of coal per day will unload at the site without stopping.

Harbors board chairman Robert Bonner said the rail route will cause a minimum of interference with agricultural land in the area.

Soil testing and other preparatory work will begin June 15, Commercial Transport Minister Frank Richter said.

THIRD-PARTY ROLE ONCE MORE

By PETER NEWMAN

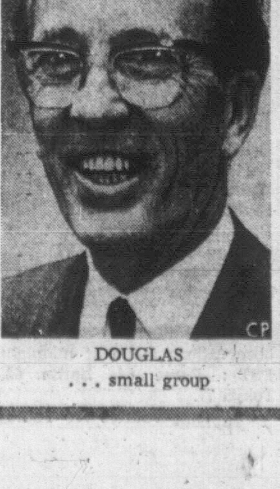
OTTAWA — The big difference between this and the three previous national campaigns Tommy Douglas has waged for the NDP is that he is publicly convinced his party can't win the election.

Newman

Having made that admission to himself, and having politely requested his introducers not to bring him on stage as "the next prime minister of Canada", Douglas is discovering that most audiences are paying much closer attention to what he's actually saying.

By maintaining the myth in previous contests that he was on the verge of a great breakthrough, Douglas was creating a credibility gap that colored his listeners' reaction to the rest of his appeal. In this election, the NDP campaign is being pitched at quite another, more meaningful level.

"In the past," says Cliff Scotton, the party's astute national organizer, "There has been a strong feeling that people were wasting their votes, if they weren't with the winner. The point we're trying to make with our slogan ('You'll win with more New Democrats in Ottawa') is that whatever the composition of the next Parliament, a stronger NDP contingent will have a leavening influence on any legislation that's brought in."



DOUGLAS
. . . small group

The NDP has always been the most open of Canada's political parties, quick to reveal the source and extent of its electoral funds (this time the party will spend about $1.25 millions collected largely through union check-offs.) But by publicly insisting that it could form the next government, its appeal lacked true conviction.

"We're not so much interested in which political party wins this election," says Menahem Dunsky, the young Montreal advertising agency owner who devised the new approach." What we're interested in is that the public win the election for a change, by voting for the candidates who'll fight hardest for the

Reports Loss

OTTAWA (CP)—The National Harbors Board had a net loss of $6,174,360 in 1967 compared with a $1,212,648 loss in 1966, its annual report says.

An income drop was due mainly to a $2,000,000 increase in operation and maintenance expenses and a $2,000,000 decrease in grain elevator revenue.

Rothmans In Beer Business

TORONTO (CP) — Two of Canada's largest industrial companies were integrated Thursday when Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd. bought an 11-per-cent interest in Canada Breweries Ltd. of Toronto.

Rothmans made the surprise announcement after the Toronto Stock Exchange closed for the day. President John H. Devlin said the company bought 2,400,000 shares of Canadian Breweries from Argus Corp. Ltd. of Toronto for $28,000,000.

Argus is a holding company headed by industrialist E. P. Taylor and the purchase transfers its 11-per-cent interest in Canadian Breweries to Rothmans.

The purchase price is about $2.50 a share more than Thursday's $9.50 closing price for Canadian Breweries on the Toronto exchange.

Mr. Devlin has been appointed chairman of Canadian Breweries while John G. Campbell remains as president of the brewery company. Wilmat Tennyson, vice-president of marketing for Rothmans, has become vice-president of Canadian Breweries.

Six members of the brewery company's board have resigned and have been replaced by Rothmans nominees.

If you happen to have a copy of George Nicholson's definitive and highly readable "Vancouver Island's West Coast" on your shelves, here is a worthy companion piece. It is titled The Queen Charlotte Islands, 1774-1966. In its 340 mapped, illustrated and indexed pages, Kathleen E. Dalzell, of Prince Rupert, sheds much light on northern neighbors about whom most of us know all too little.

Author Dalzell, the daughter of Queen Charlotte Islands pioneers, grew up in the land of tall Haida clansmen, taller spruce, and big everything. She writes with enthusiasm backed by sharp observation, and research conducted with the aid of a Koerner Foundation grant.

Her publisher, Charles M. Adam of Terrace, is also a Q.C. Is. earlybird, with the founding of Port Clements (formerly Graham City) to his credit. He has produced a good-looking book with the help of Evergreen Press.

I could wish the print were slightly larger, and you might as well know at once that the price is a hairy $12.

As a useful and highly readable record, however, it's worth acquiring, and I hope that it will join Mr. Nicholson's hearty chronicle in British Columbia school libraries.

From the white man's first intrusion on this coast, Queen Charlotte Islands place-names have been changed by every trader-explorer who stumbled on the group in its North Pacific isolation. But the landmasses themselves are now firmly pinned down as Graham, from whose northerly elevations the not-so-distant Alaska peaks stand plain, and Moresby to the south, with Hakai passage between.

These are the two great islands of an extensive archepelago. They offer white-sand beaches, mountains, some of the world's most awesome timber stands, and superlatively good fishing.

This is also the land of the Haida, whose Raven and Eagle clans once made legend as the Vikings of the coast.

Mrs. Dalzell tells us much about them, their totems and their enormous houses, and their chiefs who befriended the white intruder oftener than they turned upon him.

I am especially grateful for her chapter on the Haida canoe, product of a race of superb boatmen.

She tells how the shaped and hollowed cedar-log was steamed to pliability by pouring water into its interior, then adding heated stones and covering all with cedar mats.

"At the right moment," she tells us, "when the body of the canoe was steamed through and had become flexible, the man in charge gave the signal: 'Now!'

"Then eight men grabbed the gunwales and pulled gradually and carefully on either side. Before your very eyes, the sides would come out to the proper beam desired, and the big hump in the centre would disappear, leaving the canoe in beautiful, symmetric design."

Many an oldtimer figures in Mrs. Dalzell's book, It is, in fact, a history of those who came, stayed or departed since the 18th century traders for sea otter pelts made their rich hauls.

Here's 'Father' Hogan, the Irish Anglican missionary red of hair and beard, who came to Masset in 1908, and was loved by the Haida as no white man before him.

"Beware of his handshake!" the whispered word spread; but in later years, his friends were to fulfil his final wish.

"Let me lie forever with my Haida braves," he asked. And so he does, at Old Massett, in a casket fashioned by Haida hands.

There's much of legend, much a history in Mrs. Dalzell's pages, and any amount of tale-spinning. Her knowledge of the Islanders is plainly encyclopedic.

Not the least of the author's handiwork is a map on which the ancient Haida villages and campsites are listed. They are fewer now; and the whites more numerous. But it will be a long time still before the Queen Charlottes are overcrowded.

CIVILIAN CLOTHES are now worn by teaching Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary on Vancouver Island. Picture shows Sister Mary Kenneth, principal of the Tsartlip Indian School, chatting with a student. The Sisters' right to experiment with modern dress was upheld in a pontifical ruling today.

BISHOP BACKS MODERN DRESS

Bishop Remi De Roo, head of the Roman Catholic Church on Vancouver Island, said today he is all in favor of nuns experimenting with modern forms of dress.

Thirteen Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary on Vancouver Island have adopted modern dress. And their right to do so was confirmed today by a special pontifical commission in Washington, D.C.

Because of a dispute on dress and custom within the 600-member order, the commission ordered the nuns to divide into two communities — one modern, the other conservative.

"This means Sisters of the Order on Vancouver Island have the right to associate themselves with either the progressive or conservative communities," Bishop De Roo said.

EXPERIMENTAL

"But they have already adopted modern dress on an experimental basis."

Nuns teaching at three schools operated by the Order in Victoria (Sacred Heart), Tsatlip and Tofino have worn ordinary civilian clothes for more than a year.

Bishop De Roo said he considered the ruling of the pontifical commission a wise one.

"The concept of renewal in religious life in the order was so divergent among some of the sisters they could never reconcile their differences in one community.

'SMALL MINORITY'

"The conservative group is actually a small minority, but is not permitted to function as a separate community."

Bishop De Roo said he had authorized experiments in modern dress among the nuns of Vancouver Island as part of a renewal of religious life.

The pontifical commission was appointed last April following a dispute between Cardinal James Francis McIntyre and the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary.

The dispute was whether the Sisters could wear ordinary street dress; drop mandatory worship services and engage in work other than teaching.

The commission ignored Cardinal McIntyre's role in the dispute and characterizes it as a split within the community.

So they ordered the community to divide.

One has the right to experiment and come to "definitive" decisions about their way of life.

The other will return to the order's former tradition of dress and conduct.

Bishop De Roo said the dispute become a national issue among Roman Catholics in the U.S. because many regarded it as a test case.

SCHOOL BOARD FROWNS ON GRADUATION PARTIES

'Recognition' Tonight, Awards Next Week

By DON VIPOND

It's a special Friday night for 1,223 young men and women in Greater Victoria.

"Recognition" ceremonies will be held in each of the school districts five senior secondary schools for graduating classes.

Programs include music, a speaker, introduction of students, valedictorians and tributes from school board representatives.

But much of the hustle and bustle surrounding this landmark precedes the event as graduates turn out in new suits and dresses.

The school board terms the events recognition ceremonies because many students will not know wherher they graduate until department of education exam results become available towards the end of July.

Next week each of the schools will hold an Awards Day to honor students who have excelled. At Victoria High it will be Wednesday, at Esquimalt Senior and Mount Douglas Thursday and at Mount View and Oak Bay Senior, Friday. Douglas High it will be Wednesday, at Esquimalt Senior and Mount Douglas Thursday and at Mount View and Oak Bay Senior, Friday.

Likely the Greater Victoria school board had vandalism at Courtenay in mind following a recent high school graduation celebration when it sent a letter to parents this week.

"The school board does not favor pre-graduation or post-graduation parties," the letter says. "The former, usually breakfast parties, provide an unsettling beginning for the arduous day ahead: the latter, especially when held in public places and on a large scale, may lead to undesirable developments. Both tend to relegate the ceremony at the school to a position of secondary importance."

Recognition ceremonies will conclude in the schools, the letter says, and what happens after that will be parental responsibility.

"Graduation can be a rich and impressive experience for the participants; but this can be achieved only if the students, the home and the school co-operate to make it so."

School board chairman Peter Bunn will be speaker at Victoria high school. Other speakers: Mayor Bryant at Esquimalt high school; William Reid, assistant superintendent of education, at Mount View; Uvic history professor Alfred Loft at Oak Bay and A. G. Coning, manager of the Mayfair shopping plaza, at Mount Douglas.

Students' Raid on Teachers' Cars Backfires

Pranksters from the graduating class at Esquimalt senior secondary school jeopardized their recognition ceremony scheduled for tonight with a raid on teachers' cars early Thursday.

At least 15 cars had tires deflated. In some cases the nuts holding wheels on were loosened.

The cars were tampered with while parked at the teachers' homes in the early hours of Thursday morning. In one case, a neighbor's car had tires deflated in what was apparently a case of mistaken identity.

The wife of one teacher ruined a $30 tire when she drove her car before noticing the flat.

In some cases the air was let out of all four tires. In other instances only one was deflated. None of the autos was otherwise damaged.

18 DAYS TO GO

'Give Money Directly To University'

Liberal candidate David Anderson criticized the Pearson government Thursday for distributing money earmarked for higher education to the provinces instead of directly to the universities.

Speaking to 45 persons, many from Uvic, at a coffee party in the Mt. Tolmie area, the Esquimalt-Saanich candidate also said federal aid to universities should be increased.

"It is ridiculous for one of Canada's most important natural resources, its human resources, to be under-utilized."

He said the solution lies in close federal-provincial cooperation.

"The federal government is not responsible for education, nor should it be. However, if the federal government makes money available for capital construction or for research, it should go to the universities and not to the provinces, which may be tempted to use this money for some other purpose.

"The problem is too urgent and the stakes too high for bickering over jurisdiction. We must tackle this problem together," Mr. Anderson said.

At the start of the campaigning there was a fuss over political signs appearing on lawns.

The fuss ended when a homeowner won a test case back east and it was obvious local bylaws would be unenforceable if taken to the courts.

So far so good. But why has there never been a fuss about real estate signs and construction company signs which have sprouted for years on front lawns?

A city hall official says, "Come to think of it, I don't know. The bylaw states there shall be no commercial signs in residential areas."

Another inconsistency — B.C. Hydro often warns residents about the danger in tacking or stapling signs on power line poles. (Workmen climbing poles often tear their legs on the tacks.)

Then how come returning officers are allowed to post voters' lists on the poles?

A Hydro spokesman says the lists aren't supposed to go on poles either.

"But there are only a few of them. They are easily controlled. They are there for only a short time. We don't make any exceptions but we don't make an issue of this."

Four Charged In Forced Haircutting

Four Salt Spring Island men have been charged with common assault in a hair-cutting "attack" on the island, RCMP said today.

The charges were laid after four youths told police some men had forcibly cut their hippy-style hair during the night of May 31 and morning of June 1.

Charged are Brian Percy Beech, John Lawrence Quesnel and Gilbert Moise Narcotte, all of Ganges, and Mervin Douglas Walde of Fulford Harbour. All are in their 20s.

Three of the boys were attacked in their cabin near St. Mary's Lake, and the other one had been forced from his car and had his hair cut earlier, police said.

Arraignment was to be later today.

Mollard Retires At End of Year

Ald. C. W. Mollard will resign from Central Saanich council at the end of the year.

In a letter to coucil, the alderman who is head of the waterworks committee, said he its retiring in mid-term for health reasons.

He is serving his third term.

Driver Fined $100

Frederick Stevenot, 1219 Johnson, was fined $100 today for driving while his licence was suspended.

Court was told he was observed driving on Harriet Road Dec. 12. His licence was suspended in January of 1967.

Strike Vote Set By RNs June 14

Three City Hospitals Involved

More than 4,000 registered nurses at 61 British Columbia hospitals will cast ballots in a government-supervised strike vote one week from today.

Three Victoria hospitals are affected by the dispute — Royal Jubilee, St. Joseph's and Gorge Road.

The nurses voted earlier by an 81 per cent margin to reject a unanimous conciliation board report which recommended pay raises of between 21.8 per cent and 27.4 per cent in an 18-month contract.

Nurses currently earn $390 a month to start rising to $466 after four years. The conciliation report, accepted by the hospitals, would have lifted this to $475 rising to $593.75 after five years in the second increase effective July 1.

UP TO $841

Before negotiations, the nurses sought $600 a month to start increasing to $841 after five years.

A statement by the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. said that as professional workers, nurses are demanding "salaries that reflect their education, skill and responsibility."

It said that "existing salary inequities within the health field place the professional registered nurse in an intolerable position."

A sanitary inspector in Vancouver earned more than a public health nurse with a master's degree in the same city, the statement said.

A floor cleaner or window cleaner in a hospital at present earns more than a registered nurse beginning her career, it added.

Questioned on this point, an association spokesman said a floor cleaner in the Vancouver General earned $392 a month last year, or $2 more than the starting registered nurse.

"In the area of direct patient care, an orderly with no formal training whatsoever who gives only simple nursing care under the supervision of a registered nurse earns $50 a month more than the nurse on the starting rate," the association said.

Acceptance of the conciliation report would have meant the nurse moving only a few dollars ahead of the orderly, it added.

$500 FINES SLAPPED ON PITLAMPERS

Two Nanaimo district men have been fined $500 each for pitlamp hunting of deer near Youbou.

George Brian Wallace, 20, of RR 1, Nanaimo, and Michael Allen Lazare, 19, of RR 2, Nanaimo, pleaded guilty.

Conservation officers and RCMP seized a shotgun, a flashlight, a knife and two deer carcasses in the car of the men.

Pitlamping is the illegal hunting of deer at night with a light.

GEORGE BURNHAM
. . . 'fight the good fight'

He'll Salute Flag Chosen By Plebiscite

By ERIC MAURICE

George Burnham is the flag man in this election. The candidate in Victoria is obsessed with the idea of restoring the Red Ensign as our national flag.

He claims the Canadian maple leaf flag was stolen from Peru. (The Peruvian flag has narrow red bars on both ends of a white centrepiece. The bars are narrower than on our flag).

The white centre portion of the Peruvian flag was removed and doubled in size and "a so-called leaf, representing a maple leaf," he claims in a public—but not legal—indictment of former Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Burnham admitted that the maple leaf flag had been duly authorized under Canadian law, but said it is not legal "under international law."

international law on three

He claims Canada violated grounds: "1. The Berne Convention of 1886. 2. It is a crime to infringe on the copyright of another. 3. Trespass on other people's property is illegal."

"The Red Ensign was bought and paid for (with Canadian lives during the first World War)—it is ours by Divine Right and will be forever. Fight the good fight now," the old veteran urged.

PLEBISCITE

What about the candidates? Why are they running? What do they stand for? What are their objectives?

The Times assigned a new staffer, Eric Maurice, to take a fresh look at the Greater Victoria hopefuls in the June 25 federal election.

The interviews appear daily, Victoria candidates first. This is the fourth.

Mr. Burnham wants a new Canadian flag to be chosen by plebiscite, and until then, he wants the Red Ensign retained.

"I want the people of Canada to adopt a national flag that is real, but I love a maple leaf as good as anybody if the people choose it."

Other planks in the Burnham platform include a return to the wartime Defence of the Realm Act—"to restore the power that we had in wartime so we can use it in peacetime"—and military training for all students for the defence of Canada.

He wants to stop the loss of our money which he said is draining into the United States, but how does he intend to do it?

HE HAS SECRET

"That's a secret I don't want to divulge at the present time."

He said if Canada takes the lead in keeping its money at home, other countries would follow suit.

"The United States would follow our example."

He wants to reopen the shipyards, renew our merchant marine, have housing supplied in all municipalities as required and grant all Canadians "first class" citizenship, with language no barrier.

CUT RENTS

Rental rates for housing should be reduced, he said.

"High rent never should have been allowed in the first place."

If elected, he said he would present his credentials and offer his services to whoever forms the government.

"I don't believe in party . . . I want concrete results."

Mr. Burnham emigrated from Yorkshire in 1920. He served on the Jordan River Chamber of Commerce 20 years ago, and has since worked with the New Westminster Board of Trade.

He has been in Canada for 47 years and said "I have worked for charity all my life."

Ask The Times

Q. What is the number of gallons of water required for a family of three, including gardening requirements, per day? T.P.

A. The city water works department estimates an average water consumption of 200 gallons per person per day—but this includes industrial and other uses. They estimate a family of three would use about 3,115 gallons of water in a month, breaking down to approximately 103.8 gallons per day. The department stresses that this is only an estimate, however, and suggests the only way to tell how much water such a family would use is to check the water bill.

Q. I have heard political candidates speaking on various topics at great length. Is there any record length for a political speech? L.M.

A. The longest recorded political speech is one of 29 hours 5 minutes by Gerard O'Donnell in Kingston-upon-Hull, Yorkshire, on June 23 and 24, 1959.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

'WE'RE HOPING'

Student-Run Shop To Open Wednesday

By DERYK THOMPSON

Frances Morgan and Anne Milner are hoping for a busy tourist season in Victoria this summer.

The girls, aged 19 and 20, are both University of Victoria students and are opening a tourist shop on the site of a local rent-a-car agency on the corner of Douglas and Humdoldt.

Agency proprietor Jack Hawthorne has put up a small building for them to use and is giving them a free hand to run the new business as they see fit.

His idea, explain the girls, is to have Uvic students operate the project during the summer months and thereby create jobs for those who otherwise would be out of work.

SELL SOUVENIRS

The store, which is called the "University Student Gift Shop" will be officially opened at 2 p.m. Wednesday by Dean Robert Wallace, acting president of the university.

The girls plan to sell local souvenirs made in the city such as ceramics, pottery, jewelry and painting. They are now gathering stock, mostly on a consignment basis as they have no operating capital to begin the business.

Local artists will supply work to the girls to be sold on a two-thirds for the artist and one-third for the girls agreement.

All the work in managing and running the store will be left completely to the girls.

"We're hoping to do well," they chimed in the Times office Tuesday. "A lot of business will come our way from the ferry traffic on the Causeway and from the Empress Hotel."

Other similar stores in town will have goods displayed either for sale or advertising. The girls stressed that students or other Victorians with goods for sale need only get in touch and they'd be happy to sell them.

CHATTING OVER PLANS for nearly completed tourist store are carpenter Jim Vye, Frances Morgan and Anne Milner. The girls, both Uvic students, are opening their new curio shop June 12 on the site of a car-rental firm near the Empress Hotel. Firm manager Jim Hawthorne thought up job and supplied store to give jobs to students. Girls hope to make enough money to travel to Europe next summer.

THOUSANDS PAY FINAL TRIBUTES

Ethel, Jackie Join Vigil

NEW YORK (AP) — By the tens of thousands, the young and old, the wealthy and the poor filed past the body of Robert F. Kennedy as it lay in state today in towering St. Patrick's Catholic Cathedral.

The widow, Ethel Kennedy, and three of her children came at noon, after attending private services with other members of the Kennedy family at the Holy Family Church a few blocks away.

They sat in quiet vigil for a while, then approached the coffin.

Mrs. Kennedy paused momentarily, gently touched the smooth, reddish surface, and left.

Mrs. John F. Kennedy, widow of President John F. Kennedy, arrived several minutes later.

Dressed starkly in black, her face almost covered by a black lace mantilla, she kneeled alone in prayer in a pew.

Outside, the lines stretched 18 blocks six abreast, meandering among the skyscrapers of mid-town Manhattan in 90-degree heat.

There were girls in mini-skirts, elderly ladies in print dresses, men in work clothes standing next to well-groomed men in double breasted suits.

There were whites, Negroes, Puerto Ricans and the tongues of many lands were heard among them, talking quietly of the man who had hoped to lead the nation as its president—as his assassinated brother had done.

Police estimated that in the first six hours, some 36,000 persons had passed the coffin.

Family, friends and associates stood vigil over the body of the fallen senator.

Church officials said that because of the size of the crowd the church would remain open all night if necessary.

A crowd of about 1,000 persons, many of them teen-agers, was waiting in the grey dawn light when the massive doors to the old cathedral swung open at 5:41 a.m. Some had been waiting through the night.

In solemn and somber mood they filed by the dark redwood closed coffin in final tribute to the 42-year-old Democratic senator who had aspired to be the second of his family to occupy the White House.

Many in the line were Negroes. There were also a number of nuns.

Some of the mourners, particularly women, kissed the coffin and ran their fingers slowly across its polished surface as though reluctant to say a final farewell.

A candle burned at each corner of the catafalque as friends and relatives of the Kennedy family began a constant vigil, four at a time in half-hour shifts, around the bier.

In the early hours of the night Senator Edward M. Kennedy, the sole surviving son of four in his family, had kept watch over his brother whose life was taken, as was the late President John F. Kennedy's, by an assassin's bullet.

For a half-hour one of the guards was Bobby Kennedy Jr., 14-year-old second son of the late senator.

Mothers with babies in their arms, school children, blind men, others on crutches, students and a large number of old persons, many weeping openly, filed past the closed coffin on its catafalque flanked by six yellow candles.

The cathedral, a New York landmark for 80 years, was closed to the public at 7 p.m. Thursday, while workmen on scaffolding prepared the great nave for Roman Catholic funeral services scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday.

Then Robert Kennedy's body will be taken by train to Washington, for burial at Arlington National Cemetery, where his brother, the late president, rests beneath an eternal flame.

Robert Kennedy was shot down early Wednesday as he celebrated his California presidential primary victory at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles.

He died in Good Samaritan Hospital there at 4:44 a.m. Thursday.

ANGRY REPLY TO BOOS

Separatists Peddling Hate That Killed RFK: Trudeau

Special to The Times

ROUYN, Que. — An angry Prime Minister Trudeau told booing separatists Thursday night they were peddling the type of hate that killed Senator Robert Kennedy.

He tore into a group of youngsters who tried to drown him out when he was having mike trouble at a rally here.

Mr. Trudeau told them they should be ashamed of themselves, particularly of their actions on the day that Kennedy died — a man who had fought for the underprivileged and poor.

It was a noisy meeting — but the crowd was with Mr. Trudeau.

He was cheered and applauded as he took his one-Canada message into rural Quebec, into the Creditiste stronghold.

Hard Day

The youngsters cheered and the adults applauded as he drove home his plea for a united and just Canada.

He drew good crowds in a hard day's campaigning in northern Ontario and Quebec, and the wind-up rally here attracted a crowd of about 3,000.

Mr. Trudeau had troubles with the mike when he started to speak.

When he tried to talk without one, he was drowned out by the boos of the group of about 20 youngsters near the stage, and by the cheers of his supporters in opposition to the booers.

A youngster shouted — "Vive Quebec Libre."

The prime minister shot back — "Vive Le Canada Libre."

He told the separatists that there would be "no free

E. KENNEDY-HUMPHREY VOTE TICKET URGED

WASHINGTON (AP)—Representative Clarence D. Long (Dem., Md.), has urged Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey to invite Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts to be his running mate on the national Democratic ticket.

Edward Kennedy is the brother of Robert, slain by an assassin this week, and former president, John, killed in 1963.

Long proposed the political alliance in a telegram to the vice-president, saying:

"It is virtually certain that you will be the Democrats' choice for the presidency."

Long, an early supporter of Humphrey, said Kennedy's "partnership with you in the coming presidential campaign would strengthen the unity of the Democrats and give us the strongest possible ticket with which to win victory in November."

Hydro to Build Rail Line Connecting Roberts Bank

By BRUCE YEMEN

A provincial cabinet order Thursday handed to B.C. Hydro the $8,000,000 job of building the access railway to the Roberts Bank superport.

The project will start almost immediately and will involve about 27 miles of new trackage in the Fraser Valley.

It will link the proposed bulk-loading port south of Vancouver with virtually every major railway in the U.S. and Canada, giving it potential to serve as a Pacific gateway for a vast hinterland.

A network of rail, road, pipeline and high tension facilities will be needed to serve the superport. Tenders for the first stage of the $10,000,000 port facilities have already been called by the National Harbors Board.

The port must be ready by the spring of 1970 to fulfil terms of a $650,000,000 deal to ship Fernie coal to Japan.

John Southworth, executive secretary of the B.C. Harbors Board, said Hydro construction of the rail link had been accepted by Canadian National, Canadian Pacific and Great Northern Railways.

Hydro will also built a truck route parallel to the rail line to form a service corridor but pipelines and overhead high tension lines may follow another route, he indicated.

The rail link is needed by late 1969. It will form a loop on a 50-acre island on which Kaiser Steel will build coal handling facilities for its 15-year coal deal with Japanese interests.

One 10,000-ton trainload of coal per day will unload at the site without stopping.

Harbors board chairman Robert Bonner said the rail route will cause a minimum of interference with agricultural land in the area.

Soil testing and other preparatory work will begin June 15, Commercial Transport Minister Frank Richter said.

FAMILY MAN THEME HITS HOME

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Bureau

MATANE, Que. — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield gave his crash-course French a work out on a campaign tour through Quebec's lower St. Lawrence and Gaspe region Thursday.

Conservative supporters gave him a friendly reception at every stop but the generally sparse turnout proved, as it did during Prime Minister Trudeau's visit some 10 days earlier, that federal politics is not a major interest in the area.

The main, and last, event on the day's schedule was an appearance at a bean supper in this lumbering and fishing town.

BETTER SOCIETY

A crowd of 300 applauded Mr. Stanfield's call for the "great work of understanding" necessary to build a better society in a "country of great diversity."

The strongest applause was reserved for the PC leader's references to the local Conservative candidate, Julien Chouinard.

Mr. Chouinard, who is building his campaign on an attack on Prime Minister Trudeau's constitutional policies, and on proposed criminal code changes dealing with abortion and homosexuality, introduced his leader as "a good family man."

Mr. Stanfield's day in eastern Quebec began with a visit to Murray Bay, in Charlevoix riding where Conservative Martial Asselin is fighting to hold the seat for his party.

He drew a crowd of 200 to the airport, and another 500 lined the streets of the small resort community as he drove in a convertible to sign the golden book.

SEE, BE SEEN

At the airport, in the first of the day's series of brief speeches, Mr. Stanfield said his first impulse on learning of the death of Senator Robert Kennedy had been to call off his day's campaigning.

Murder Hearing Testimony Opens

Security Heavy For Accused Man

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles county grand jury met today to hear 23 witnesses and consider a first-degree murder indictment against a young Jordanian in the assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, 24, was not present as the 22 grand jurors met. He is in jail under constant surveillance in a maximum security cell.

The jury also was asked to return indictments for assault with intent to commit murder in the wounding of five others in the burst of gunfire that killed Kennedy.

A conviction in the case would bring the death sentence but there have been no executions in the last 12 months in California since capital punishment was challenged as unconstitutional.

The California Supreme Court is expected to bring in a ruling shortly on two appeals which prompted a stay of execution for 75 in San Quentin's death row.

Meanwhile, Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty came under heavy criticism for releasing data alleged to be from the accused man's notebook. Legal authorities said publication of the material may prevent a fair trial.

Heading the presentation to jurors was District-Attorney Evelle J. Younger, who requested the indictment.

Younger said Sirhan would be arraigned within 48 hours in Superior Court, make a plea at that time or shortly after, with trial expected to begin within 60 days of arraignment.

Should the defence seek a change of venue, Younger said he would not oppose it.

The public defender's office is providing Sirhan legal advice.

The prisoner originally was held under $250,000 bond, but that was revoked by Superior Court Judge Joan Dempsey Klein after Kennedy's death.

BARRAGE OF ROCKETS SLAMS INTO SAIGON

SAIGON (CP)—Saigon took its worst Viet Cong bombardment of the last five weeks early today. The guerrillas slammed 16 rockets into the heart of the capital that killed at least 30 civilians, a South Vietnamese military spokesman said.

Hiding in rice paddies on the outskirts of the city, the Viet Cong hit a civilian hospital, a Roman Catholic Church, the International Control Commission headquarters and 11 civilian homes. The spokesman said 23 persons were injured.

The pre-dawn attack, fifth in five days, brought the total of civilians killed in rocket attacks on the capital in the first week of June to 51.

STUDENTS, AUTO MEN

Gas Breaks Up French Rioting

PARIS (CP) — Battling with tear gas against a shower of stones, riot police broke up a demonstration by thousands of striking auto workers and sympathetic University of Paris students today at the Renault auto plant at Flins.

A sharp, 20-minute battle ended with the students and strikers split into two groups and pushed right out of the village, 15 miles northwest of the capital.

One group sought refuge from the hail of gas grenades in a woods near Flins. The other retreated into fields across the highway.

Elsewhere the French strike wave was subsiding rapidly and Frenchmen turned their attention to politics and a televised interview with President de Gaulle tonight.

The Paris stock exchange opened after being closed for 16 days. French shares rallied after early hesitancy. Foreign stocks drew most attention, however, and some recorded gains up to 10 per cent early in the trading.

FLOW OF ORDERS

The flow of buying orders for the foreign stocks was attributed to a desire for a hedge against inflation.

The Renault plant at Flins was occupied by police early Thursday, and the sit-in strikers who had held it for weeks were expelled.

The fighting began after a demonstration in the main square of the village. More than 5,000 demonstrators marched on the plant in an attempt to retake it from about 2,000 riot police.

The demonstrators began hurling paving stones and the police replied with tear gas grenades. More than 10 persons from both sides were injured in the first clash.

PATCHOGUE, N.Y. (AP) — More than $300,000 worth of dimes—part of a $500,000 shipment hijacked from a Railway Express Agency truck May 29—was recovered Thursday night by FBI agents and Suffolk County police, the FBI said.

Protest Plane Crash

Janet Out Of Hospital

REVELSTOKE (CP) — Janet Bitterman, 6, of Victoria, who survived when her parents and two sisters died Wednesday in a landslide on the Trans-Canada Highway, was released from hospital Thursday.

Meanwhile, highways department crews hoped to have a single lane cleared today through the debris, 19 miles west of here. The slide was about 3,000 feet long, 600 feet wide and between 15 and 20 feet deep.

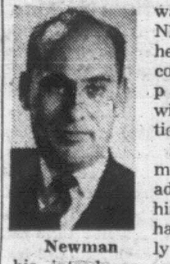
Rev. Frank Funk, of Kelowna, a relative caring for the girl, said she has a few stitches in a cut hand and other minor cuts. He said it has not been determined who will look after the girl.

Killed when the slide hit their car 240 miles northeast of Vancouver were Ernst Bitterman, 42; his wife Annet, 24, and daughters Sandra, 2, and Terri, 4. The other daughter was thrown from the car.

THIRD-PARTY ROLE ONCE MORE

NDP Won't Be Winner, Douglas Freely Admits

By PETER NEWMAN



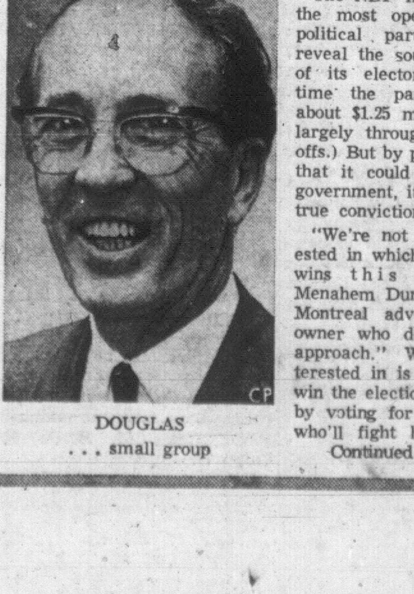
Newman

OTTAWA — The big difference between this and the three previous national campaigns Tommy Douglas has waged for the NDP is that he is publicly convinced his party can't win the election.

Having made that admission to himself, and having politely requested his introducers not to bring him on stage as "the next prime minister of Canada", Douglas is discovering that most audiences are paying much closer attention to what he's actually saying.

By maintaining the myth in previous contests that he was on the verge of a great breakthrough, Douglas was creating a credibility gap that colored his listeners' reaction to the rest of his appeal. In this election, the NDP campaign is being pitched at quite another, more meaningful level.

"In the past," says Cliff Scotton, the party's astute national organizer, "There has been a strong feeling that people were wasting their votes, if they weren't with the winner. The point we're trying to make with our slogan ('You'll win with more New Democrats in Ottawa') is that whatever the composition of the next Parliament, a stronger NDP contingent will have a leavening influence on any legislation that's brought in."



DOUGLAS
. . . small group

The NDP has always been the most open of Canada's political parties, quick to reveal the source and extent of its electoral funds (this time the party will spend about $1.25 millions collected largely through union check-offs.) But by publicly insisting that it could form the next government, its appeal lacked true conviction.

"We're not so much interested in which political party wins this election," says Menahem Dunsky, the young Montreal advertising agency owner who devised the new approach." What we're interested in is that the public win the election for a change, by voting for the candidates who'll fight hardest for the

B.C. Education Policy Rapped By Principal

Governments have the right to set education standards but parents should have the right to allocate their tax money to any school system meeting those standards.

This is the view of Brother Kevin Molloy, principal of St. Louis College, as the 104-year-old institution enters its final week.

An announcement in May that the school would close followed failure of a drive for $460,000 within the Catholic community to renovate and expand it.

Education policy is the domain of provincial governments and only in B.C. and Manitoba have governments inhibited private schools by refusing taxpayers the right to direct their taxes to the school system of their choice, said St. Louis' principal.

Parents of students at St. Louis pay an education assessment in their property taxes like everyone else but only a fraction of it benefitted the college.

The Catholic high school required $20 a month from its students, $12 a month as a tuition fee and $8 from the parish.

Non-Catholics at the school paid the full $20 a month. Enrolment of non-Catholics has been as high as 40 per cent in the school's money-plagued history.

The closing of St. Louis College has sent a shock wave through the Catholic community flavored with bitterness. Brother Molloy said today increased awareness of the need for an alternative to the public education system may someday result in the school being reopened.

"This might just be the atmosphere to produce a rebirth."

Ironically, it was the impending closure of the school 54 years ago which first brought the Christian Brothers of Ireland to Victoria to forestall it.

The reason for closing then was the same as now — lack of money.

It costs public schools about $50 a month for each pupil and St. Louis has been trying to struggle by on half that, said the principal.

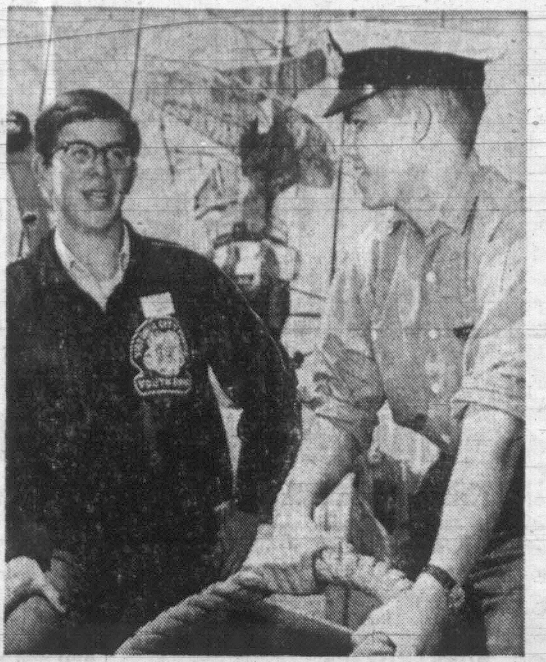
The time arrived when the shortage of money meant the school could not continue providing first-class education.

"And the boys deserve the best."

Brother Molloy has been appointed principal of Brother Rice High School in St. John's, Nfld., his home town. That school has an enrolment of 1,300 and will go on three shifts a day in the fall.

Appointments for the six other brothers are expected soon. Two lay teachers at the school will have to find new jobs.

Closing exercises will be held June 12. Apart from the graduating class of 25, the 189 students will be dispersed throughout the public schools next September.



SURE IS A LOT OF SHIP . . . at least it seems so to Victoria City Police Youth Band member Ken Crawford, 562 Dumeresq, son of RCMP Sergeant Robert A. M. Crawford (left). Band Become Seamen For Portland Jaunt

Eighteen young men, members of the Victoria City Police Youth Band, went to sea in Pacific Maritime Command's destroyer-escort, HMCS Columbia, Tuesday night. For most it was their first such experience.

The bandsmen, conducted by Constables Kenneth G. Horsman and Gerald R. Cox of the Victoria City Police, are to represent Victoria at Saturday's Rose Festival parade in downtown Portland, Oregon. The young ladies of the band are making the trip by bus.

The Columbia and another command destroyer-excort, HMCS Mackenzie, rendezvoused to sea with the minesweeper Cowichan and two gate vessels Porte de le Reine and Porte Quebec, and arrived in Portland Thursday.

The ships, which are also engaged in a naval officer cadet training program will leave Portland Sunday with the destroyer-escorts going to San Francisco and the smaller vessels returning to Esquimalt. The Mackenzie and Columbia will return June 21.

Industrial Seminar This Month

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett will head a list of speakers at a two-day industrial development seminar in Prince George June 24 and 25.

More than 2,000 business and political leaders from Canada, the United States, Japan and Europe have been invited.

The conference is sponsored by the Prince George and District Industrial Development Commission.

Discussion will centre on forestry, pulp and paper, water, and mineral resources of northern British Columbia.

The seminar will coincide with a visit to Prince George by about 90 touring industrial and political leaders from the U.S. including Alaska governor Walter Hickel, several U.S. senators, press and radio men. The group is interested mainly in the water resources of the Pacific Northwest.

Youth Rebellion 'Kind of Anarchy'

Young people must establish strength and stability, more than 200 Rotarians were told at a Victoria-Seattle luncheon at the Empress Thursday.

Dr. Walter Williams, former under-secretary of state under President Eisenhower, said civil disobedience and the rebellion of youth in the United States is a kind of anarchy.

He said the activities of the "flower-children" and hoodlums can be equated and the situation is very disturbing.

"They seem to be telling us that they will obey the laws they want to obey and disobey those they do not like.

"This to me must be a form of anarchy," he said.

Seattle Rotarians flew to the city for the noon-hour meeting in 30 small planes, some of which landed in the Inner Harbor.

Dr. Williams said democracy would last only if there was a rededication among people who won public office.

"Only if they did what they should do, rather than doing what perpetuated them in office, would this form of government emerge triumphant."

It was also necessary, he said, to impress a sense of character and responsibility into the youth of United States and Canada.

Rothmans In Beer Business

TORONTO (CP) — Two of Canada's largest industrial companies were integrated Thursday when Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd. bought an 11-per-cent interest in Canada Breweries Ltd. of Toronto.

Rothmans made the surprise announcement after the Toronto Stock Exchange closed for the day. President John H. Devlin said the company bought 2,400,000 shares of Canadian Breweries from Argus Corp. Ltd. of Toronto for $28,000,000.

Argus is a holding company headed by industrialist E. P. Taylor and the purchase transfers its 11-per-cent interest in Canadian Breweries to Rothmans.

The purchase price is about $2.50 a share more than Thursday's $9.50 closing price for Canadian Breweries on the Toronto exchange.

Mr. Devlin has been appointed chairman of Canadian Breweries while John G. Campbell remains as president of the brewery company. Wilmat Tennyson, vice-president of marketing for Rothmans, has become vice-president of Canadian Breweries.

Six members of the brewery company's board have resigned and have been replaced by Rothmans nominees.
